LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A REPRIMAND To the Editor of the Telegraph: The writer witnessed an incident in one of your city's shoe-shining parlors last Saturday that may be worth the telling for the common good.

The decorations were lavish and lively. Entering the lobby suggested conservatory. Wreaths and long lines of greenery twined here and there and about the desk were dozens of floral displays. Businessmen sought it significant of the loyalty in the United Hotels Company that so many of the other hotels in the organizations should respond.

Mr. Wallower's Address When coffee had been served and the Star Spangled Banner had been sung and while the room was noisy with racket-making the dinner talks, Toastmaster Wallower called in order to introduce Frank A. Dudley, president of the United Hotels Company.

Mr. Reinhold's Address General S. Reinhold, newly-elected president of the Chamber of Commerce, was called upon to tell of the Chamber's part in the new hotel project and he facetiously related how the archiving of the city show the new hotel movement to have started away back with John Harris, Mrs. Harris insisting that Harrisburg should have just as good taverns as those of Boston and Lancaster.
