

COL. ROOSEVELT IS FOUND DEAD

Dr. John H. Hartwell, of New York City.

Expected Soon to Chop Wood

Forty-eight hours before his death the former President had been visited by one of his physicians, who stated he found the Colonel apparently in good condition and spirits.

On the day before Christmas when Colonel Roosevelt left the hospital here to spend the holiday in Oyster Bay, Miss Stricker said he was in slight pain at the time but was apparently free from being seriously ill.

So marked had been his improvement under the regime provided at the hospital that Mrs. Roosevelt, who, at the beginning, remained with her husband continuously, was implored by him to rest.

Two separate blood tests had been made at the hospital, one by Dr. Richards and the other by Dr. Hartwell, each of which, it was said, indicated that the Colonel was entirely free from any organic disease and that his only trouble was the inflammatory rheumatism.

"If you could see that trayful of food that is sent in to Colonel Roosevelt's room at dinner time," said a friend of the family, "you would think he was eating on the mend. He had the appetite of a vigorous, healthy school boy."

Had Arteries of Younger Man Blood pressure tests, it was said, showed that the patient had arteries of a man of forty instead of sixty years.

One of the things that is believed to have contributed more than any other to the Colonel's breakdown was the death last fall of his son, Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt, the aviator, in action in France.

Quentin was skilled in combat on July 17, 1918, at Chamery, France. For some weeks previous to confirmation of his death there were reports that he had possibly been taken prisoner by the Germans and might turn up alive.

Colonel Roosevelt had been known to be looking forward to his journey overseas with mingled feelings of sadness and pride.

ing and convalescence at Sagamore Hill had been expressed by his friends. That statement was true and given to the Associated Press with Colonel Roosevelt's approval.

While the Colonel was in the hospital he had a pulmonary embolism, which nearly cost him his life at that time. This was caused by a clot of blood breaking away from a thrombosed vein.

Embolicism to Lungs Fatal "Since leaving the hospital he had been doing well until last night, when he died in his sleep. The cause was probably another embolism—whether to the lungs, as I believe, or to the brain, as may be possible, it would be difficult to determine."

"Mixed Pickles" was the title of a successful play presented years ago by an actor named Polk. It was a comedy of mixed metaphors.

"Lasses White, with Field Minstrels" is introducing some mixed metaphors in his various comedy offerings. Some of these metaphors fit in nicely and are decidedly humorous.

"The Flirt," in which "Jimmie" plays the title role, is a comedy of mixed metaphors. It is a big Broadway beauty chorus, and the costumes worn by the bevy of girls are a feature of the production.

Prohibition Scores Victory in Ohio Cincinnati, Jan. 6. — Prohibition forces gained an important victory in the federal district court on Saturday when United States Judge Hollister handed down an opinion dismissing a suit to enjoin Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, from presenting to the coming meeting of the Ohio Legislature the proposed national prohibition amendment.

Judge Hollister, in a lengthy opinion, not only dismissed the injunction suit, but said that it is his opinion that the chief point made by the plaintiff, Albert G. Erkenbrecker, a real estate man, what the proposed amendment should have received two-thirds of the total membership of both houses of Congress instead of two-thirds of the members voting, is not good logic. In this respect the court said:

"Since the 'body' is the 'house' and majority of quorum transmits the business of the house, in passing a bill, so two-thirds of a quorum passes a regulation proposing an amendment. So it seems to this court.
