MARRYING MEN KEEP OUT OF ALMSHOUSES

based on investigations found in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth wards in Philadelphia, the Eighteenth ward of Pittsburgh and five wards in Reading. Investigations to have been made in the Cambria county coal fields were stopped by the influenza epidemic.

Many remarkable findings are reported by the commission: It was found that the industrial life of Pittsburgh glass blowers commonly believed to be very short is in reality very long; that railroad workers go to the human scrap heap quicker than any other workers; that few Pittsburgh people carry life insurance, and that poverty is far from being confined to the alien born, while the almshouses get comparatively few men and women who make the matrimonial venture.

1,500 Questioned

The commission points out that it sought to find our primarily the number of average American citizens are dependent upon relatives and the ability of such relatives to support their dependants. A total of 4,500 persons in an area surporting 90,000 were questioned and asked to fill out cards containing thirty-two questions. These industrial questionnaires gave details of the life history, physical condition, age, sex, conjugal condition, occupation or source of income, average weekly wage, former weekly wage, number in family, property owned and derived income, disability and number in family.

American-born citizens were mostly questioned in Pittsburgh where 1,200 persons of fifty and over were questioned out of the 18,000 living in the Eighteenth ward and in Reading where 2,300 persons were examined out of a population of 40,000. Eleven hundred were examined in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth wards of Philadelphia. In the latter place the commission dealt with a large foreign element.

Much For Food

The average wage scale was not high while the cost of foodstuffs was mounting. Thirty per cent. of those examined were earning nothingly, chiefly because of physical disability while sixty per cent. were in good health and able to performe as much labor as their age would permit. Four per cent. of those examined earned less than 5 per cent. because poor health prevented them from working full time while more than 10 per cent. earned from $5 to $12. Only 10 per cent. earned $25 a week or over; 28 per cent. earned $12 to $20, and 11 per cent. earned $20 to $25.

Pittsburgh leads in the higher wage scale, 17 per cent. of those earning $25 to $50 a week living in that city; Reading has 11 per cent. and Philadelphia 6 per cent., the number of aliens in the latter city reducing its totals. Philadelphia, however, leads in those making from $15 to $25.

Earnings Diminished

Despite increased wages due to the war the earnings of the aged group diminished. Before the war 52 per cent. of the number of those examined had earned as high as cnt. This is said to show that even $15 to $20 a week, the figure now being decreased to 28 per cent.; 28 per cent. had earned $20 and over, while now the figure is but 11 per cent. This is said to show that even with the war the aged cannot get the wages they received while in the prime of life.

The report on the cost of living is rather startling. Approximately 32 per cent. spent $10 a week for food and 45 per cent. expended from $10 to $45. This figure represents the cost of food for the entire family of the wage earned. Between 60 and 70 per cent. of all moneys earned went for food. So much money was expended for this necessity that little was left for clothing. Many strange tales were told by 24 per cent. of those examined as to how they got their clothes without any expenditure of money. More than half spent less than fifty cents a week for the clothing of entire families.

Little Life Insurance

Pittsburgh comes to the front in the number of home-owning residents. More than half, 560 out of 1,112 examined, owned their own properties in Pittsburgh. That city also reported the startling fact that only 65 had any life insurance.

Careful investigation was made into the reasons for early retirements from various trades. Railroading made the worst record, none of the retired workers examined having lived long enough to be retired because of age.

Figures for Trades

Figures covering the more important trades follow:

Building—Forty-eight per cent., practically incapacitated before 60 years old; reasons, sickness, 40 per cent.; old age, 33 per cent.; accidents, 12 1-2 per cent.

Steelworkers—Seventy-five per cent., incapacitated before 60; acidents, 18 per cent.; old age, 24 per cent.; sickness, 41 per cent.

Railroaders—Seventy-two per cent., out before 55. No retirements because of old age retirements being due equally to acidents and sickness.

Outdoor Trades—Sixty-five per cent., incapacitated before 60; sickness, 47 per cent.; old age, 28 per cent.; accident, 9 per cent.

Sedentary Trades — Ninety-five per cent., still working at 65; retirements being due; sicknes, 50 per cent.; old age, 17 per cent.; accident, 5 per cent.

Glass Blowers, Pittsburgh—Seventy-five per cent., continue to 60 years of age; incapacitation being due, sickness, 42 per cent.; old age, 30 per cent.; accident, 4 per cent.

James N. Maurer, Reading, chairman o fthe commission, intends to file hisreport before March 15.
