400 ENGINES SENT ABROAD

Were Assembled in France and Moved Under Own Power in Few Hours

The shipment of American built steam locomotives, weighing seven-by-three tons and assembled, all but the smokestack and the tender, so that they could move away under their own steam within a few hours after their arrival in France, was among the accomplishment of the United States Army Transport Force under stress of war, and has since been continued.

More than four hundred of these locomotives were so shipped from New York in a few months, and these were in addition to 1,200 which were shipped in sections—nine to a locomotive packed in cases. The ships used to transport the locomotives, complete, were of a special type with three holds, each measuring 60x102 feet, entered by hatches 39 feet wide and 42 feet long.

Into each of the three holds was placed twelve locomotives—thirty-six to a ship. For a bed or flooring on which they rested for the voyage, steel rails. The locomotives when in position were braced with heavy wooden beams and the space between the boilers to the level of the top of the steam dome packed solid with highly compressed baled hay.

Wilmington Made Terminal of B. & O. Freight Traffic

Philadelphia is no longer the terminal point for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad's freight business from the South, West, and Baltimore, routed through to New York and Staten Island. All through freight of this class is now handled at Wilmington.

The change was made by order of the Federal Railroad Administration, through Charles H. Markham, director of the Allegheny region, it deprives Philadelphia of a daily business that aggregates on the average 150 cars per day.

Crowded local conditions, leaving no room for expansion to take care of both the through business and shipments emanating from the Philadelphia district on the Baltimore & Ohio, made the move necessary. It does not affect the passenger business in any way, nor make any change in the freight business coming over the Baltimore & Ohio destined for points on the Philadelphia & Reading.

Cumberland Valley People Want Chair Car Service

Cumberland Valley citizens are voicing cries for the restoration of chair car service on the Cumberland Valley Railroad, and the agitation is gaining considerable volume. The people of the district claim that it was a decided convenience to them, which they gladly did without during the continuance of the war, but that now with so many other restrictions being withdrawn, they believe travel over the railroad warrant the re-establishment of the service.

SERVED C. V. R. R. 39 YEARS.

John McClelland, popular and well-known conductor of the South Penn division of the Cumberland Valley railroad, observed the thirty-ninth anniversary of his service to the railroad company on Saturday. Born in the Mercersburg-Jameson district, he early had a desire to become a railroader and when he became old enough, he sought his first railroad job. He was assigned to the Mont Alto branch by Colonel Lull, then in charge of the railroad. He was later promoted to the main line, where he has been serving faithfully and efficiently ever since.

Monkey's Antics Call Out Fire Department

San Francisco.—Down on the waterfront the other day Oscar Lipman, a jewel broker, traded a watch to a sailor for a cunning little monkey. Lipman took the pet home to his apartment on Powell street. Then the trouble began.

The monkey escaped. The agile creature appeared, leering, in the room of a guest at the Fairmont Hotel. The man was trying to shave after a strenuous night before.

Calls for help brought out the fire department. As the firemen clambered up their ladders the monkey as rapidly climbed down from the window sill and next discovered swinging into an artist's studio near the hotel, where it joined a group of surprised Bohemians around a hearth fire. Lipman regained his pet through an advertisement.

OBJECT TO SALE

Objections were raised in court to the private sale of 1020 Market Street to Max Smeltz for $9,100 by Annie L. Fasnacht and Edna May Anderson, administratrices of the estate of John F. Fasnacht. The attorney for the estate and counsel for Smeltz bid the price up to $9,550, when President Judge George Kunkel stopped them and said that the court was not sitting as auctioneers. He ordered the objections to be entered of record and it is likely now a public sale will be held to dispose of the property. It was stated Mrs. Edith A. Herman offered $9,400 for the property; counsel for Smeltz then bid $9,450; for Mrs. Herman, $9,500, and the last offer was $9,550 when the court stopped the lawyers.

It's conceded by everybody, who wants to be fair about it, that DOUTRICHS have "the drop" on the Clothing business, but they EARNED this reputation—it wasn't handed to them—you know how it was years ago before Doutrichs came to town, a great many Harrisburg people went out of town for their clothing, but it only took a short time for this "Live Store" to become established because we started RIGHT, gave the people square dealing, honest representation and greater values.

These things were just the things people were looking for and they were glad to come Here and send their friends to this Always Reliable "Live Store" — some of the merchants thought that it was a good joke that a country merchant was going to take hold of a clothing store in Harrisburg, and at that time there was a great deal of speculation as to the future of this store.
