GET PLACES FOR RE-TRAINED MEN

Rotary Club Gets Behind Government Movement in Behalf of Disabled Soldiers

The Rotary Club of Harrisburg at its meeting in the Y. M. C. A. endorsed the movement of the Federal Board of Vocational Education for the re-education of disabled soldiers and offered to co-operate heartily for the re-employment of these trained men in positions for which they are fitted.

This action was taken following a discussion of the subject by C. J. C. Clarke, the Government representative, who made a deep impression on the members.

"You men must find jobs for these re-educated men," said he, "else the whole plan will fail, but I feel sure that it will succeed mightily. You can't be of service simply by talking; you must act. We will train the men and guarantee they will give satisfaction or you need not keep them. We will even permit you to train them in your own places of employment, paying them what they are worth while they are learning and fair wages after they have learned and the Government ceases to pay them an allowance."

Mr. Clarke, who has his headquarters at the Boy Scout offices in the Calder biulding, says that some able-bodied soldiers have been unable either to get their old jobs back or something just as good. He cited several cases and asked the club to do what it can for them.

Women's Night

The club planned for a women's night some time in February, when a dinner will be served at the Penn-Harris. Norris S. Longaker will have charge of the event.

It cost the club nearly $600 to give the Big Brother dinner on New Year's Day to children of Harrisburg and a deficiency of $75 was made up in five minutes.

The club will continue to hold its weekly luncheons at the Penn-Harris, it was decided upon by a vote of the members, transferring its quarters from the Y. M. C. A., where it has been well served for the past year or more.

Noted Lecturer Says Christians Triumphed

"The War and Christianity," was the subject of the second of a series of five lectures being delivered every night this week by the Rev. Dr. Francis L. Patton, widely known lecturer and formerly president of Princeton University, in the Pine Street Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Patton emphasized four factors in the effect of war upon Christianity, first, that Christianity does not unfit a man for battle; second, that war made it evident that Christians have the courage of their convictions, and fight for them; and third, that the war was not started by Christianity.

The speaker declared that the only remedy for war is the constructive teaching or Christianity. He said that the achievements of the Allied armies against the Huns is sufficient evidence that Christianity is a predominating force in war as well as peace.

The third lecture, "The War and the Church," will be delivered tonight. There is no charge for admission, or collection, at the meetings.

WAY TO LASTING PEACE DISCUSSED

tions between President Wilson and Colonel House last evening.

President Wilson will hold informal conferences with David Lloyd George, the British premier; Premier Clemenceau, of France, and Premier Orlando, of Italy, later this week.k

Premier Orlando and Foreign Minister Sonnino, of Italy, and Premier Lloyd George and Foreign Minister Balfour, of Great Britain, are expected here soon to confer with Premier Clemenceau and Foreign Minister Pichon.

The American delegates to the world peace conference have taken note of the "American plan" for a league of nations as outlined by the Paris edition of the Daily Mail. It is said they have no knowledge of it beyond what they have read. The members of the commission declare it did not originate with them.

The American plan, it is declared, is not yet definitely formulated and will not be until the President further examines various tentative suggestions, including several from allied governments. It is added in authoritative quarters that the statement that the British government has accepted the plan outlined by the Daily Mail is incorrect.

M. Bourgeois' plan, embodying the French point of view, while general, also embraces a number of specific details, including compulsory arbitration, restriction of excessive armament, an international tribunal and a series of sanctions or penalties for enforcing observance of the league's decisions. These sanctions include various diplomatic, judicial and economic measures, whereby the united nations may enforce their decrees.

The American viewpoint, now being formulated by the specialists as the groundwork for the President, seeks to reach an accord on fundamentals on which all agree, and present them in simple working form. One of the chief of these fundamentals is the formation of a league which will embrace all the nations of the world, but not one which will establish any balance of power among a group of nations.

Care also is being taken that the influence of the various nations in the league would be in accordance with their size and importance, so that the great powers and the small powers would have voices according to their standing.

Another feature especially concerning small undeveloped nations is to be established, according to the American plan—a system of international trusteeship whereby the various larger nations having a developed and stable civilization will act as trustees for the Society of Nations in fostering the progress and development of undeveloped communities.

Governor Brumbaugh's Tribute to Pennsylvania

"Pennsylvania is an imperial Commonwealth. It has sent into this war more volunteers than any other state. Its entire soldiery exceeds in numbers all the forces, Federal and Confederate, that fought at Gettysburg. Its volunteer division, the Twenty-eighth, will wear the Red Keystone and live in history as the Iron Division. Her entire army and navy complement has gone forward and gained undying fame, both for themselves and for Pennsylvania. Her leadership in this, as in the Civil War, is manifest to the student of her achievements. Her population is double the entire population of the British colonies when they won independence in the War of Revolution. Her laws are generally respected and enforced. She has no internal strifes. Her people are prosperous. Her economic outlook is admirable. Her fiscal resources matchless. Her spiritual activities well established and freely functioning. It has been a great privilege to serve her people — her great, wonderful groups of people—who, in the aggregate ,are the Commonwealth, and whose welfare I have daily kept in mind. For them and against those that would exploit them unworthily I have labored, and in them I confidently trust that they may, through you, continue to keep the fair fame of the dear old Keystone State unsullied and to make all of us who call her home proud to be a part of the finest Commonwealth God ever carved out of his love for ernor's farewell message to thet the dwelling of men."—From the Governor's farewell message to the Legislature.

Antisaloon League Opens Headquarters in City to Direct Prohibition Fight

The fight to make Pennsylvania one of the first thirty-six states to ratify the national prohibition amendment opened here to-day when the Anti-Saloon League, of Pennsylvania, with State Superintendent C. F. Swift in charge, opened its headquarters in the new Penn-Harris Hotel, and started issuing bulletins showing the nineteen states that have thus far ratified the amendment. With 100 members of the House said to be committed to the ratification and twenty-three Senators, the dry leader is close to the goal of 104 votes in the House and twenty-six in the Senate, necessary for ratification.

Superintendent Swift believes that before the Legislature reconvenes, on January 20, at least twenty-five or more states will have ratified the amendment and that its positive ratification by the necessary thirty-six states will be so apparent that some undecided legislators will fall in line and assist in carrying the vote for ratification.

The liquor forces have some bills of their own that are scheduled to appear early in the session. They want a short term license bill, so that those who desire license will only have to pay the pro rata to July 1, when the sale of liquors pending the demobilization of the Army, is scheduled to cease.

Salespeople Competent to Select Mourning Apparel

In time of bereavement it is impossible to devote thought and attention to the selection of clothing. It is at such a time one will appreciate the advice and judgment of a salesperson who is competent to accept the responsibility of selecting an appropriate costume.

All my assistants are trained for their work. You can rely upon their taste and judgment; upon their ability to select an entire wardrobe.

You can be fitted in one of my private salons. And any alterations needed in mourning attire will be made within a few hours.
