The erection of a million-dollar hospital as a memorial to the soldiers of Dauphin county who have lost their lives in the service, was the recommendation contained in the resolution offered by Dr. John B. McAllister, and passed by the Dauphin County Medical Society at its meeting in the society's headquarters, Second and North streets, last evening.

The proposed hospital for the prevention of communicable diseases, and the plans for it formerly made by the Board of Health and Sanitation, and the Chamber of Commerce were endorsed. The physicians stood on record as recognizing the need for additional hospital facilities here.

AMERICANS WIN HAIG'S PRAISE

Continued from First Page. The report takes up in detail the fighting on various parts of the British front, which, the Field Marshal states, was carried on as part of the grand plan of the campaign laid down by the Allied high command. At the close of operations, the report declares: "In the decisive contests in the period covered by the report the strongest and most vital parts of the enemy's front were attacked, his later communications were cut and his rear divisions were fought to a standstill. On the different battlefronts the British took 137,000 prisoners and 2,850 guns, bringing the total number of prisoners captured during the year over 201,000. These results were achieved by fifty-nine fighting British divisions, which in the course of the three months' battle engaged and defeated separately nine German divisions. When the armistice was signed by the enemy, his defensive powers had already been definitely destroyed. Continuance of hostilities would have meant only disaster to the German armies and an armed invasion of Germany."
