

11 KILLED AND 18 HURT IN READING WRECK AT NIGHT

Engine of Express Plows Into Coach; Three Probes Under Way

Philadelphia, Jan. 14.—A triple investigation is under way to fix the responsibility for the wreck at Fort Washington last night, in which eleven persons were killed and eighteen injured. The Scranton flyer crashed into the rear end of the Doylestown local, seventeen miles from Philadelphia.

Runs Past Danger Signal

The engineman of the express passengers declare, ran past a danger signal set to guard the halted accommodation. The local was stationary about three-quarters of a mile east of Fort Washington station. A brakeman was posted 100 yards behind the local as a further protection.

The engine of the express ripped through the wooden coach at the rear of the local and the killed and injured were in this car. Hot coal from the engine's firebox set fire to the splintered wood work of the passenger car. Wind fanned the flames into a fierce blaze and the victims, penned in debris, were rescued with difficulty. Escaping steam added to the suffering of the victims.

Three inquiries in progress. Reading officials are directing one of the inquiries into the cause of the wreck. Already they have quizzed trainmen. The second investigation is in charge of Coroner Neville Montgomery. The third is directed by John P. Dohoney, of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission.

Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluff, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

The Busy Coal Season

A HEAVY snowfall with the mercury disappearing from the bottom of the thermometer brings customers flocking for their supply of fuel.

Then it is that coal dealers have need of large facilities. When coalbins are nearly empty you want your order filled quickly.

Our business has been built with a view of taking care of rush orders. Our three large coalyards are placed at advantageous points for making prompt deliveries.

One yard at 15th & Chestnut Sts., on Allison Hill; a second yard in the heart of the city at Forster & Cowden Sts., and a third yard up town at 7th & Woodbine Sts., makes short hauls in every direction.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

Stories of Greece and Rome.—Edward Lucas White, whose vividly realistic story of ancient Rome, "The Uppelling Vesuvius," was published last spring by E. P. Dutton & Co., has made a collection of his short stories dealing with life in Greece and Rome during the centuries just before and just after the Christian era which the Duttons will bring out in book form about the middle of January. Mr. White, who has been a student and teacher of the classic literatures and of the civilizations which produced them, is quite as familiar with the life and times and characteristics of the men and women who made "the glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome," as the novelist of current times is with the life of to-day, and he has a peculiar facility for making those far-gone days come graphically alive again. The same gift won very wide reading for his historical romance, which was also one of the most realistic of novels, "El Supremo," published by E. P. Dutton & Co. two years ago, which gave a picture of life in South America a hundred years ago combined with a complicated story of intrigues and ambitions, dangers and adventures and love-making.

Automobile Liability.—"If you offer your car and chauffeur for the free use of another," says John A. Post in his little book, "Automobile Liability and How to Deal With It," just published by E. P. Dutton & Co., basing his opinions upon court decisions in various states, "you remain responsible; but if one borrows your car he operates it at his own risk. In all cases where the owner has reason to know that he is entrusting his car, to operate, to some one who is incompetent to do so without danger to the public, he is responsible. Also, if he undertakes to teach another to drive his car, he takes the risk, but probably not if the pupil owns the car unless it is pursuant to some contract of selling. When your chauffeur is operating the car in the course of his employment, partly or wholly, you are responsible as though you were so doing. But if at the time he was solely proceeding upon his own private business with or without your consent you would not be liable."

One of the famous authors of South America will be presented to three weeks by E. P. Dutton & Co. who are preparing to publish Jose Marmol's historical novel, "Amalia." Marmol was an Argentine whose span of life covered the years from 1818 to 1871. He was not only a poet, dramatist and novelist, but a statesman and patriot also. As a deputy representing Buenos Aires he defied the despot, Rosas, and was banished by him. Later he returned and stoutly upheld the rights of the people. As an author he is most widely known, both in his own and other countries, by "Amalia," which has long been familiar to European readers in several languages and is considered to be one of the best productions in all South American literature.

LABOR NOTES

Lumber workers in Bend, Ore., receive better wages and have better conditions to work under than in any other of the yellowpine districts. This result has been brought about by the strong organization among the men.

A large sugar company in Port au Prince, Haiti, which employs over 1,500 laborers, besides skilled labor, had expended more than $2,000,000 in erecting an extensive plant, providing buildings for the employees.

The Japanese government has decided to place the development of the Chining-chen iron mines in the hands of the mining department of the Shantung Railway instead of concluding a contract for this purpose with a private concern.

The Swedish Industrial Committee's Bureau of Fats has organized the gathering of refuse fats for making soap. Hospitals, barracks and prisons make their own soap, while the rest of the fats are sent to the soap factories for treatment.

Over 25,000 employees of the General Electric Company's plant at Schenectady, N. Y., and 3,500 of the 5,000 employed in the Pittsfield (Mass.) plant recently left their work in sympathy with a strike of their co-workers in the Erie (Pa.) plant.

Trade councils composed of representatives of employers' associations and of trade unions in a particular trade or section of an industry are suggested at the first court of appeal in the case of disputes which may arise among workers in England.

Abolition of the national eight-hour day and the lowering of wartime wage scales are essential if American mines and factories are to continue to compete with the world trade, according to William H. Barr, of Buffalo, president of the National Founders' Association.

At a recent conference held in Bradford, England, there was granted an increase in wage of employees in the dyeing and finishing trades from $5.58 to $7.14 in the case of time workers, from 65 to 72 per cent, to 88 per cent, for piece workers and from 50 to 62 per cent for pressers.

U. S. Troops Waiting Calmly on Deck of Torpedoed Transport For Turn at Lifeboats

The United States official photograph from the American front in Russia shows American, British and Cossack soldiers defending an improvised fort on wheels in the strict south of Archangel. The allied troops and the doughboys used to good advantage a number of steel cars, the sides of which were lined with bags of sand. In this car they are keeping the enemy off with a light mortar, machine guns and rifles.

American soldiers have won praise for bravery and fortitude under all circumstances. This photograph, just released by the censor, shows the deck of a transport which has just been torpedoed. They were calm and perfect discipline prevailed as they waited their turn to enter life boats. While these men were standing quietly before the camera a number of their buddies were as quietly leaving the ship.

bor always have been poorly paid. It was necessary for all classes of employees to increase the pay schedules, either voluntarily or as the result of demands, to enable employers to meet the extremely high cost of living.
