the time. As I have remarked be-fore, when in action with an air-plane, things happen quickly, you see things and understand their sig-nificance in relation to you quickly, and naturally your brain tunes it-self up to the same speed. Then, no sooner had I pulled up and saw my mistake, on looking around for a real balloon I saw a whole line of them to the right of me. Having dived so far for no other purpose but to attack balloons, a couple miles further in made little differ-ence to me. Besides, I had the fever then. I was going to shoot something up before I went back or know the reason why, for maturally, after falling over 3,000 meters only to find the balloon I had been diving on turn out to be a hole in the ground, or something else equally unshootable, did not put me in a very good humor. Haff a Dozen Balloons So I promptly headed for that line of balloons-there must have been half a dozen-looking all around for protecting Boche planes as I did so. Also seeing that both guns were loaded and ready, the motor work-ing without a hitch and trying ail my controls to see that they worked easily. Apple Pie Order very but ln

Apple Pie Order Everything was working in apple pie order, including all the Boche guns in that vicinity, the latter being a bit distracting, but being a part of war I tried to forget it in aiming my guns, for the big black and white cross on the balloon was becoming very distinct now, and when I can make that out very easily it's time to start shooting. Using the black cross as a target I got a good bead on it and attempted several bulleyes. Whether I made any I don't know. Surely they hit any I don't know. Surely they some day and that was as har as i let my thoughts run in that direc-tion. It was after I had turned and was using the gun with one chance in five that the unexpected hap-pened. You might say more cor-rectly, the expected, depending, you understand, on the point of view anyway, for the second time I was headed straight for that slowly de-scending balloon, one angry boy you can well imagine—fighting mad, you might say. Just the same, I got some pleasure out of seeing the Boche observer take to the air via the parachute route. don't know how to do anything but heat. The sins of smoking and smelling have been banished from their make-up long ago. They stand in a corner, out of the way, ready to make any room in the house warm and comfortable whenever you want it so.

Your Perfection will be economical to operate because it burns kerosene, but don't make the mistake of using any kind of kerosene. For perfect results always use Atlantic Rayolight Oil. It is different from the others-so scientifically refined that it must give its full quota of heat and all without sputter, smoke or smell.

Best of all, a Perfection is safe. You can depend on it. It's impossible to turn the wick too high. And with ordinary care your Perfection will last for many years. Priced $5.65 to $10.00. Ask your dealer.
