 New York, Jan. 20.—"Tell them the American people that I love and adore them. Tell them that I love their ardor and spirit. Tell them that I am in full accord with their noble ideals and their high principles of freedom and justice." This was the message Archbishop

Blair, Getting No Winter, Sees Spring Just Ahead

Altoona, Pa., Jan. 20.—Spring is just around the corner, judging from the signs. Here are three—Bluebirds have made their appearance in the vicinity of Frankstown, and weather probes are predicting a quick finish of winter.

Robins have been heard carolling, springtime songs in Altoona, according to James Jones.

Levi Sparr, of Williamsburg, lover of nature, brought to Altoona cuttings from alder bushes, along the growth of 1918 in the timber line. Tiny branches, tipped with small but full-formed leaves, were growing from the parent stem.

PERSHING WOULD DECORATE MUIR FOR HIS SERVICE
 Major General of the Twenty-Eighth Division In Selected For Medal

By Associated Press
 Washington, Jan. 20.—Ten major generals, thirteen brigadier generals and one colonel have been selected by General Pershing for distinguished service medals for their work in connection with the creation of the American army in France and its successful assault on the German lines.

One of the major generals, Charles T. Menoher, commander of the 42nd (Rainbow) division now director of the air service, was decorated Saturday by Secretary Baker.

General Pershing's citation of this officer showed that the division participated in practically all of the important engagements of the American army.

The other major generals to be decorated are William M. Wright, successively commander of the 37th Division, the Third, Fifth and Seventh Army Corps and the 89th Division; George W. Read, 30th Division; John L. Hines, successively regimental, brigade division and corps commander; Charles H. Muir, 28th Division; Charles P. Summerall, First Division and Fifth Army Corps; William G. Haan, 32nd Division; Henry T. Allen, 90th Division; Adelbert P. Cronkhite, 80th Division; Francis J. Kernan, organizer of the overseas service of supply and member of supreme war council.

The brigadier generals decorated are Leroy Ething, assistant chief of staff, A. E. F.; Preston Brown, chief of staff of the Second Division and later commander of the Third Division; Harry D. Andrews, assistant chief of staff in charge of transportation; Dennis E. Nolan, chief of intelligence, A. E. F.; Fox Conner, assistant chief of staff in charge of operations; George V. H. Mosely, assistant chief of staff in charge of equipment; Harold B. Fiske, chief of training section, general staff, A. E. F.; Harry A. Smith, commandant of army schools at Langres, France, and civil administrator in occupied German territory; Johnson Hagood, organizer of training system in France; Paul B. Malone, brigade commander during major operations; Frank R. McCoy, secretary, general staff, A. E. F., and subsequently commander of the 68th Infantry Brigade; Hugh A. Drum, chief of staff, First Army, and William Conner, assistant chief of staff of the A. E. F., and later chief of staff of the service of supply.

The colonel named is John McA. Palmer, who was on the general staff and later commanded the 58th Infantry Brigade north of Verdun.

Shaffer's Last Flight
 SHAFER BEHIND HIS MACHINE GUN

Life in the camp was much the same as in the prison, except that one had a little more space for walking and more scenery, for we were close to the town of Mont-Cornet, and this town being somewhat of a railroad center we could, at least, watch the trains come in. I suffered little from the cold for the simple reason I rarely went out. Being a sergeant I was not compelled to work, and since all the sons-of-bitches were in our barracks which was well heated by a stove, I had no kick coming except for lack of air. Being an aviator, I was in the habit of having lots of air and of the finest grade.

Times had changed, for here were some 40 men in a room 20x15 and not a window open day or night. This suited the Frenchmen right down to the ground as they hate air like the Boche. It's a pretty strong comparison, but true, nevertheless. As for the eating it was nearly the same as at prison, except that the soup was more of an entable nature. The diet of coffee continued steadily morning and night, the same black tasteless stuff.

Always Black Bread.
 Our next day's ration of bread was given up in the night, a portion of black bread no bigger than one of your home made common buns. And to think that I refused often to eat your excellent bread without butter and jam! There I was, wishing I would be given a whole loaf of that black, cogy mass.

Having no work to do I found the camp interesting as something new, and thus spent my leisure time between meals. One had to do something to keep one's mind off his stomach. I'll hand it to the Boche. They sure had it down to a science as to the amount of food required to keep one alive. We got that much and no more and as for saving up grub for an opportunity to escape out of one's rations was utterly out of the question. The soldiers might do it, but not we officers for the soldiers (privates) were compelled to work every day, and every night one could see them coming back to camp with a little wood under one arm and some vegetables under the other. We drones did not get any chance like to swipe stuff from the fields as we were. Some were even caged up in our double-wired prison all day to meditate and to fast. This combination, I believe, was much more pure in soul and spirit, but in this case the effort was for from religious, especially to me. For, in about four days there was nothing of interest in that camp except a way to get out.

No Time to Laugh.
 The first few days I was much amused watching the universal "cooties" hunt indulged in immediately after dinner. Everybody did it, and just as regularly and matter-of-factly, as the American smokes his after dinner cigar. The amusement did not last long, for by the third day we were scratching myself and was so interested getting rid of the numerous families I had acquired, I forgot to laugh at my unfortunate comrades. We were all in the boat now, and it was a cinch if the families continued to increase at the same rate, said boat would sure be sunk. No, I certainly found it neither amusing nor interesting. It was disgusting to be swarming with vermin like that, and never having had lice before I sure got them right that time. Golly! they sure did get to me. In two or three days my body was one mass of little red itches, and Iitch—oh, boy! how I did scratch!

You begin to see, I guess, why I was

LAST WAR LOAN DRIVE IN APRIL, SEC. GLASS SAYS
 Amount Will Not Be More Than Six Billions, Treasury Head Declares

Washington, Jan. 20.—Only one more big war loan drive is being planned by the Treasury Department, according to Secretary Glass. This will be the Victory Liberty Loan, to be floated probably the last three weeks in April. The amount will not be more than $6,000,000,000 and may be $5,000,000,000.

"I expect the Victory Liberty Loan to be the last intensive campaign for the sale of Government bonds," said Mr. Glass. "Reports that there would be two more bond issues this year, aggregating $12,000,000,000, are entirely without foundation not only as to amount but also as regards the number of campaigns."

More bonds probably will be issued by the Government even after the next campaign, but it is planned to market these quietly through banks and other financial institutions.

The result of Secretary Glass' announcement that the next intensive loan campaign would be the last is that Liberty Loan organizations throughout the country will make this a big selling point in the campaign.

The misapprehension regarding the number and amount of remaining loans may arise, treasury officials explained to-day, over the fact that the treasury had planned to float two loan issues aggregating about $12,000,000,000 this fiscal year. The fiscal year began last July 1, however, and ends next June 30, and the Fourth Liberty Loan of nearly $7,000,000,000 already has been floated in that period.

Most treasury officials believe that the terms of the Fifth, of Victory, Loan will have to be made more attractive than those of the past, either by raising the interest rate above 4 1/2 per cent. or by some other means.

EIGHT DIE IN NIGHT FIRE IN PHILADELPHIA
 Father and Mother and Two Small Children of One Family Perish

By Associated Press
 Philadelphia, Jan. 20.—Eight are dead as the result of a fire last night in the Italian quarter. Father and mother and two small children were burned to death by a fire which started in the kitchen of a house occupied by two families, all of whom were asleep at the time. Two children of the other family were also burned to death and two died to-day of their injuries.

Mildred Napolitano, 12 years old, is the only one of the nine occupants of the house alive. She almost succeeded in saving two small children after a heroic effort, but the fury of the flames forced her to drop them. A colored man at the risk of his life rescued her.

Following eleventh months of service overseas, Corporal S. C. Clouser has returned from England, where he was connected with the Four Hundred Seventy-third Aero Squadron.

"TIZ" FOR TIRED AND SORE FEET
 Use "Tiz" for puffed-up, burning, aching, calloused feet and corns.

Sergeant Ogelsby Returns Home From Overseas

Sergeant Richard B. Ogelsby, formerly a member of Troop C, and now a member of the 10th Machine Gun Battalion, surprised his friends Saturday evening by running in on them unexpectedly. Wounded in the left hand during the Argonne drive, he was sent to the hospital and brought to this country, arriving at Camp Merritt, N. J., on Friday last. He gave no advance notice of his return, and his appearance at home on Saturday evening was a genuine surprise to all who saw him. Sergeant Ogelsby is in fine condition, and hopes to be back home permanently in the near future. He returned to Camp Merritt early Sunday morning.

Mrs. Mary Smeltzer, John and Samuel Smeltzer, of Proggess; Mrs. Annie Zeiders, Mrs. Russell Smith, and Robert Smeltzer, Harrisburg; Mrs. I. W. Goss, Shellsburg; Mrs. John L. Penbrook; William, Harry and Charles Smeltzer, Buffalo, Indiana, and Leroy Smeltzer, now in France. In addition, he is survived by twelve grandchildren; two great grandchildren and a sister.

MORRIS SNEIDMAN
 Young Sneidman was exceedingly gifted in oratory, winning the Kunkin prize at Central High School in 1908, and the Valedictory at Tech in 1910. He was graduated from State College in 1914 with honors and has since been a civil engineer, lately with the Marshall-McClintock Construction Company. He is survived by his mother, one brother, George Sneidman, and four sisters, the Misses Fanny and Clara Sneidman, Mrs. Robert Lagree and Mrs. Goldstein, of New Haven.

Anthracite Operators Throw Men Out of Work

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 20.—Anthracite operators have started a retrenchment policy. Each colliery in the Wyoming Valley is laying off men. The number forced into idleness within the last few days now reaches 2,000, according to claims of mine union leaders.

Union men explain the policy by charging it up to an effort to reduce operating costs. The men affected are mostly day workers and not skilled mine workers.

CLASS IS GRADUATED

Certificates of graduation were issued this morning at Red Cross headquarters to the following pupils in the class in elementary hygiene and home care of the sick, taught by Miss Frances M. Scott: Miss Lillian K. Ziegler, Miss Stella Macey, Miss Mary R. Pelly, Miss H. Celeste Landis and Miss Carrie Wagner.

Waiting For Bread.

That being settled we waited for the bread to materialize. While we were waiting we heard of the peace talk. This made the Englishmen hesitate. What was the use of escaping if peace was so near, for hide and seek, and a long one perhaps. This hesitation and suspense made me rather sore, for according to the way I doped it out, if peace talk there was, surely it would last a month, before anything definite came of it—and I'll be jiggered if I was going to house, feed and warm 9,000,000 Boche "cooties" for that length of time. Not, by golly, if I had a chance to beat it. And so, the days passed with nothing to vary the monotony except the eating ability of my French comrades. Never have I ran across a race that lived better, and so often and still remain hungry. Of course, being in this camp, hunger was to be expected, but later when I was returning with other prisoners and we had plenty to eat, I noticed this habit. They seemed to be endeavoring to make up for all the time lost. As for this particular camp, the other sergeants and adjutants with me lived very well. Some were even getting fat on it, those which had some money, for they would buy vegetables and sometimes maize flour from the returning working parties. That some of it was swiped from the kitchen goes without saying. Anyway, someone or other always had some sort of a stew steaming on the fire, a stew, however, without meat, for meat seemed to be something neither to be bought or stolen, and that was horse meat at that. If beef was ever used in our soup I never discovered any, for the few times I really did find any meat rest of the afternoon. Believe me, I used them for chewing gum the anyone of us would have been thankful for any kind of steak, horse, mule or dog.

The Tale of the Cat.
 One day I saw a Frenchman come proudly in with his working party, carrying a large cat by the tail. It was the regular house variety of tabby, and whatever possessed him to kill it got me. Being curious I watched to see what he would do with it. My curiosity was soon satisfied, and probably his hunger, for he promptly skinned, and ate it, watched enviously all the time by his comrades, and would you believe it, even the Boche received a share of that, taking the

 BELL 1091—2256 UNITED HARRISBURG, MONDAY, JANUARY 20, 1919. FOUNDED 1871

By Consent of the Governed

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by the Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

"That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundations on such principles and organizing its powers in such forms as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness."

Tomorrow the officials who will govern the affairs of the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the elective period will be inducted into office. Chosen by the will of the people, these representatives will endeavor to interpret the wishes of a majority of the citizens of this state. Upon these fundamental principles our great nation is founded.

The people of one state may entrust its affairs in the hands of one political party, year after year, while the people of adjoining states may show preference for another party. Either party, however, must ever bear in mind the wishes and welfare of the people it represents, otherwise the sovereign will of the people will assert itself by making such changes as may be deemed necessary. If all governments on earth derived their just powers from the consent of the government, no despotic monarch or extreme radical faction could ever endanger the peace and welfare of mankind.

Under the great dome of the State Capitol, Pennsylvania's greatest men assemble from every section of a state that ranks among the greatest in our nation.

Like a great hub, around which the affairs of the Commonwealth center, Harrisburg may justly feel proud of its towering dome—and, as the capital city, proud of the privilege of entertaining the representatives of this great state.

To the people's chosen representatives and to the tens of thousands of visitors who come here to participate in the inaugural ceremonies, this store bids a most hearty WELCOME!

Everyone, old and young, can drink INSTANT POSTUM with benefit to health. A delicious, drug-free beverage.
