Church Board Offices to Remain in Harrisburg

The headquarters of the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church in America will be retained in Harrisburg. The recent merger of the three general bodies has enlarged the work of this board very materially, comprising the entire southern territory and extending into Canada. There was some thought that the board's headquarters would be removed to Washington or New York. At the organization of the new board at Washington recently, however, it was determined to remain here. The local offices of the board have recently been changed from the Telegraph Building to the new Evangelical Building, where a suite of rooms is now occupied. Dr. Charles S. Bauslin has been retained as general secretary of the board, and two other secretaries will be associated with him in the work. The supervision of twenty-five schools, located from New York to California, is in charge of this department of education of the United Lutheran Church.
