

MARKETS DECINE IN PRICE OF EGGS IS DUE

Dealers Say Sixty Cents Per Dozen Probably by Next Week

Philadelphia, Jan. 21.—Market interests continue to center in the poultry and egg division. Indications point, it is said, to a continued decline in the price of eggs. Many of the local dealers say they expect to see the 60-cent mark reached before the end of the week.

Cold storage stocks, however, are described as short. Dealers are due for a drop in prices, according to the larger operators.

Butter, on the other hand, it is said, shows a tendency to stiffen slightly. The production is increasing, according to reports from the country reaching independent handlers, and this may hold the market down.

Winter vegetables are plentiful. The quality is good and prices fair. Fruits are becoming more plentiful with prices satisfactory.

BOMB MEANT FOR ROCKEFELLER IS FATAL FOR REDS

Washington, Jan. 21.—A plot on the lives of John D. Rockefeller and his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., planned by anarchists in New York in 1914, shortly after the beginning of the European war, was described to the Senate Propaganda Investigating committee to-day by Thomas J. Tunney, police inspector of New York.

Inspector Tunney, who was in charge of the bomb and neutrality squad before the United States entered the war, testified that there was evidence of renewed activity of anarchists in the United States.

Penrose Flays The Food Millions

adding, "and there will be subsidies after the fashion of March."

Senator Penrose declared that Pittsburgh was ordered over the top without having had a word in their hands until ordered to advance to be slaughtered.

He also asked if Senator Hollis objected to investigation of the Ford shipbuilding project and alleged inefficiency of the War Department.

In the latter connection, Senator Penrose declared that Pittsburgh was ordered over the top without having had a word in their hands until ordered to advance to be slaughtered.

FIRST MAN IS PROUD OF ARMY

He predicted a higher Americanism when the soldiers come back. He declared that the hyphen has been knocked out of the soldiers, and that they appreciate the privilege of being Americans. He also predicted that politics and office-holding will be raised to a higher plane when the soldiers return.

He said that there is a profound feeling of longing to return home, and that the boys in Germany are eagerly awaiting the day when they can return. One of them, he said, "declared he was beginning to think that if the Statue of Liberty ever saw him again, it would have to turn around."

There is no fraternizing with the Germans in the occupied territory, he said. He declared that it is a trifle hard for the Americans to resist a pretty German girl when she waves at them, but nevertheless they must ignore all advances of the German civilians.

He affirmed that there is no doubt the Germans were thoroughly beaten. As they retreated, he said, they deserted huge stores of war supplies. The Germans, during the occupation by the Americans, would retreat so far each day, the Americans following closely behind.

To show that peace, as well as war, makes strange bedfellows, the Colonel recalled how, the first night in Germany, he was billeted in a German house where two brothers still wore the uniform of the German army, and their father wore the uniform of a German army officer. Naturally, he said, there was no discussion of the war.

The food situation in the part of Germany he occupied was not acute, he said. There was a slight supply of pork, some cabbage, beets and potatoes. Clothing was plentiful enough to supply all.

Colonel Rasmussen was in the fiercest offensive of the war, that of the Meuse-Argonne, from November 1 to the 10th. He declared he and all other regular army officers have had enough of war fighting, and don't even want to fight a mosquito after their experiences. He said that it is conceded by all that the Pennsylvania soldiers were unsurpassed in the world's history.

He has been in the regular army fifteen years. In France he served as a lieutenant colonel division machine gun officer, on the General Staff. He began his military career as a lieutenant after graduation from West Point. He served as a lieutenant with the Fifth Cavalry at Fort Myer, Washington, next on the Mexican border, the Fort Sill, Okla., then as a major the General Staff at Washington and in September, 1918, went overseas.

Prof. F. L. Spangler, a relative Speaker Spangler of the House, dropped dead in front street to-day while drilling the York Cadet semi-military organization, bro here to enter the inaugural parade. Excitement and over-exertion believed to have caused Mr. Spangler's death.

Prof. Spangler was 60 years and was librarian of the York Public Library.

TO PROBE FORD'S DEFECTS

Washington, Jan. 21.—In an election contest, the Senate privilege and election committee late to-day ordered a favorable report on Chairman Pomeroy's resolution authorizing an immediate investigation into measures to take possession of the Ford Motor Co. All Democrats present in the Senate, however, reported to the Senate for its decision.

The Investment Outlook

It seems probable that after the war there will be a greater demand for investment securities than at any time heretofore. Such conditions warrant the expectation of higher prices for investment securities and lower rates of interest.

The recent improvement in the market prices of investment securities reflects the improved investment outlook. We do not hesitate to recommend the purchase of long term bonds or short term notes at present prices.

We suggest for special consideration the following securities.
