

NEWS OF CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA AND CITY'S SUBURBS

CHAIRMANSHIPS ARE IN DISPUTE

Conference at Capitol to Settle Controversy Over the Appointments

Serenity of the inaugural morning at the Capitol was broken by reports of ill feeling engendered by committee chairmanships and patronage.

A conference of men interested in straightening out the tangle was scheduled to be held during the parade.

Resolutions providing for state recognition for the men who served on selective service boards in Pennsylvania is to be proposed in the Senate.

While the inaugural crowds were gathering the gubernatorial parties assembled at the executive department.

Governor Brumbaugh, who arrived early, gathered his officials about him and the inaugural party met in the big reception room.

There did not appear to be much cordiality. The incoming governor and his officials made no statements and kept close to their own friends.

Governor's statement last night that he could not be hired to write a history evoked considerable comment from the officials.

They refused to make statements for publication and some might have burned their own papers if they had not been authorized use of their words.

NINTH ANNUAL AUTO SHOW TO BE BEST EVER

Dealers Plan to Open Show in Overland Service Station March 15

Harrisburg's ninth annual automobile show will be the biggest and best ever held by Harrisburg Motor Dealers' Association, according to the plans of the committee on arrangements, which already are taking definite shape. The show will be held in the Overland service station at Twenty-Sixth and Derry streets during the week of March 15 to 22. The forty-four members of the dealers' association will reserve floor space in the huge building, so that everything in any way connected with the motor industry will be on exhibition. The sudden cessation of the war last November altered the entire situation of the automobile industry for that time.

The close of the war abrogated stringent priority orders and produced changes of holding the usual automobile show, but with the advent of peace, the effect of peace upon the automobile industry is being felt. The decorative scheme of the building will be elaborate. Mr. Myton is manager, and is laying his plans well. Contracts for the building will be let in the near future. Arrangements also will be made to have the interior of the exhibition room finished in white to insure good lighting in the building. There is 30,000 feet of floor space in the room, unmarred by columns or posts. Special lighting arrangements will be made.

Antes of Every Kind.—The automobile show starts the 1919 automobile season. There will be automobile descriptions on hand. One feature will be the elaborate display of commercial cars, including trucks and delivery cars. Trucks of all sizes, large and small, will be on exhibition for the investigation of business men who desire to modernize their present motor apparatus.

The service station will contain one of the most interesting passenger car body displays during the week that has ever been gotten together in Harrisburg. A number of expensive passenger cars already have been selected by various dealers, and there will be some fine examples of custom bodies and rich coach work, as well as the regular stock bodies.

An interesting feature of the show will be the large number of tractors and trailers to be displayed. The local dealers have been pushing this branch of their business with great energy during the year, and expect to interest hundreds in the efficient farm and commercial machinery they will display.

The accessory department will be one of the most elaborate and most interesting. Every modern detail of equipment and incidental connected with successful motoring, will be displayed for the edification of motor enthusiasts.

The dealers do not anticipate any trouble drawing crowds to the service station, in spite of its distance from the center of the city. The street car service will be arranged by each one last year. A number of prominent speakers will be in attendance. The list will be made known as soon as arrangements are completed. Committees were appointed to take charge of the various activities.
