He comes to Paris bearing an official statement of the views of the Swiss government on pending international questions, which will be laid before the Peace Congress.

Switzerland expects to be admitted with other states to the peace negotiations as far as they will deal with her own special interests or with problems of general importance. Exclusion from deliberations on problems of the league of nations would be considered by the Swiss people as inconsistent with the principles of democracy. Neutral states, not having been called upon to make as heavy scarifices as belligerents, have, nevertheless, suffered severely in consequence of the war. All have been able, especially in the case of Switzerland, to render considerable service to humanity.

approves of the creation of a league of nations for preserving peace, and expects from it a complete reform of international relations.

The Swiss republic recognizes the necessity for actions which may ultimately consist of military pressure within the system of the league of nations. Nevertheless, a statement says, Switzerland is determined not to abandon her neutrality, which is laid down in the Swiss constitution and based on the tradition of 400 years of peaceful politics.

Freedom of production and commerce is recognized as of vital importance for Switzerland. The Swiss people hope peace will re-establish the principle of commercial freedom.

As a land-locked country, mainly dependent upon its share of the world's commerce, she highly approves of the principle of free access to the sex.
