Germany since the ending of hostilities.

Both organizations are resting in the Argonne sector; the Iron Division in the town of Heudicourt and the Liberty Division in the town of Souilly. The latter is approximately 200 miles east of Paris.

A map, issued a few days ago by the War Department, gives the location of every American army division in France. By scanning this may it will be noted that the American army holds the center of the Allied line that was extended into German territory and in the front are Divisions 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the regular army and Divisions 32 and 42, representing the National Guard. How Soldiers Spent Holidays in Germany Told by Well-Known Harrisburger

Among the very interesting letters received from overseas, is one from Sergeant William F. Wilson to his mother, Mrs. Franklin C. Wilson. Twenty-first street and Parkhill Lane. Sergeant Wilson is connected with the Headquarters Motor Section, Fourth Corps Artillery Park. He described graphically his Christmas day in Germany. Among other things he says:

Felt Like Millionaire
"My pay for the two months amounted to 322 francs so that upon its receipt I felt like a millionaire but will hold it like one also.
"At 12 o'clock we again returned to the house of Schmitz for our Christmas dinner, served in wonderful style, consisting of baked rabbit and the usual 'Rings.' It is such a pleasure to sit down to a table with china dishes and a table cloth. The food was well cooked and delicious and we disposed of it in a true American style, consuming it in vast quantities, for we all have the rosiest of apper tites, until it was well after one when one we had to excuse ourselves and proceed to our own Christmas dinner at our own kitchen. We were all pretty as well stuffed but not so much that we could not clean up some dessert."

"These Germans make their Christmas extend over a period of, two days instead of one, so that today is as much a holiday as yesterday and none of them work. We, however, were on the job and remained there all day with plenty to do.

Snowballing

"This snow of yesterday was the first of any moment this season and in going down to the office yesterday morning the entire town lined the streets, snowballing everybody, to which our fellows joined so that we were pelted by both soldiers and inhabitants on, our way and we returned the fire. A statue of the Kaiser, a bust of him, I should say, stands in a small park at the junction of two streets and of course that too came in for its share. The Kaiser was duly 'straffed' and his countenance plugged with beauty spots.

"The statue is quite gigantic and could not be pushed over by the men so we are endeavoring to get the gang together some night, throw a noose around his neck and have one of our Quads pull the thing over into the creek. It may mean court martial but we must pass it every day and the idea of that despoler reposing in peace on that piece of granite is more than we can endure, so "To hell with the Kaiser."

"The general continued: "I never want a wounded man to salute me. I know how hard it was for you men to fight in the front lines and how easy it was for me to remain fifteen miles in the rear. I would consider it dishonorable in me if I permitted you to salute me. It is a privilege for me to salute every one of you."

An Overcoat Sensation!!

Just 85 Overcoats That We Were Selling Up to $30.00

Your Ch ice Tomorrow

Here's the Story---Read It

The Wm. Strouse Store---310 Market Street

We have just finished taking inventory and find that we have 85 overcoats that we are going to sell for a mere song.

We realize that the weather was warm for overcoats but there will be plenty of cold weather, and whether you need an overcoat or not, it certainly is a stroke of good business on your part to buy one of these overcoats at $14.75.

We want to impress upon you that there are only 85 overcoats to sell at this price. They might go in a day, they might carry over two days, but one thing is certain that you will have to come early in the morning and take your pick, if you want to stand a chance of selecting from the full assortment.

We want you to understand that these are all high grade, finely tailored overcoats, right from our regular stock. They are the same class of merchandise carried by the Wm. Strouse Store all the time, and while you might think we are a bit impulsive to sell these coats at this price, we want you to know that our policy not to carry anything over from one season to the next, must be strictly adhered to.

TI re are conservative overcoats and snappy overcoats for spring wear and heavier weight, for winter wear.

There are grays, browns, blacks and hand-some mixtures. Every overcoat is a sensational value — we use the word sensational because $14.75 is a price not heard of for this grade of goods, since the war started. We even hesitated to put so low a price on them, for we feel some people might think they were not our regular goods but they are regular goods, but they are.

There are all sizes from 33 to 42 - not all sizes in each style because there are just one or two of a kind — but all sizes among the 85

Our former prices ranged up to $30.00.

O. K. Bread All Wheat Bread-

Bricker's

Many of our customers have been asking, "when are we going to get back to all wheat bread?"

We are now back to All Wheat bread-the Original Bricker's O. K. Bread that you were accustomed to eat before the war.

We'll admit that during the war it was quite a study how to make bread good so people would like it.

Notwithstanding government restrictions on the use of wheat flour in bread Bricker's O. K. Bread was considered the best war bread in this section of the state.

And just as it was the best war bread-the Original

Bricker's O. K. Bread

is unquestionably the best peace time bread.

Tell your grocer that you simply MUST HAVE Bricker's O. K. Bread. Tell him that every good grocer has it.

and the idea of that despoiler reposing in peace on that piece of granite is more than we can endure, so "To hell with the Kaiser."

"We have many times wondered if there is some ulterior motive behind all this genefosity of the Germans but our deductions always let us in a circle, so to speak. Are they doing it because of the impression they expect to make, in the expectation of having the Allies deal with them more leniently at the Peace Conference? Or is it with the idea of alleyiating that existing repulsiveness and hatred for them in the hope of oring a future market in America for their manufactured goods? It's hard to say but I know it is almost general, this cordial treatment by these Huns. They don't like that term nor do they like Boche for we have tried them with both and they usually resent it.

"The Major went to Coblenz the other day and upon his return had the orderly bring from his car twenty or thirty helmets he secured there. The Germans had their storehouses loaded with these very highly impressive spiked helmets in preparation for their entry into Paris but never got there and so now the same heliumets are returning nome to bring along it spossible. The place sunds like a sault boiler shop for the fellows are taking them apart with punches, all being riveted together."

Ridicule for Kalser

Ridicule for Kalser

We returned to the billet and again were invited to partake of a lunch with Herr Gadzka and his wife. After the meal we blayed chess and other amusing card games. Jones conceived the very brilliant idea of bringing down from our room a bundle of American magazines, given us by the Red Cross and forthwith the fun started for the magazines were thick with cartoons of Hindenburg, the Kaiser and the Crown Prince, all caricatured in every conceivable, ridiculous form. That started things, arguments in half-German, half-Eng-lish, all, of course, was taken in the spirit which it was intended and we all got the greatest amusement from these comics and the books were just polluted with them. Herr Gadzka proved himself a good scout and derived as much pleasure from the cartoons as we did but the females, especially one, got peeved, but it soon were off.

Washington, Jan. 29.—With the hope of reaching a final vote before adjournment to-day the Senate devoted yesterday to consideration of the bill, for the validation and settlement of informal war contracts. The measure which was framed by the military affairs committee as a substitute for the suse bill was amended in several minor details.

Without a record vote, the Sententatively accepted an amendment offered by Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, providing that in no case shall any award made include "prospective or possible profits on any part of a contract beyond the goods and supplies delivered to and accepted by the government and a remuneration which may include a reasonable profit for expenditures and obligations necessarily incurred in performing the contract."
