MANY ARMY MEN ARE ENLISTING IN THE U. S. NAVY

12.9 Per Cent. of Last Week's Enlistments Were Discharged Soldiers

Returned soldiers are enlisting in large numbers in the United States Navy, navy recruiting officials told at the local navy recruiting station, 221 Market street, today.

Explaining they say: "There's a reason. The overseas troops have had a chance to get on the inside of navy life. On the trips across they have lived close to the real heart of the navy. A soldier returning on the Mongolia was heard to remark, 'The navy officers treat their men as though they were one of them. The navy has been good to us on this home trip. The life has a positive lure once it has been tested.'"

"The 12.9 per cent. enlistment of discharged soldiers in the navy also indicates a splendid work of the United States Employment Service, which is co-operating with the Navy Recruiting Service."
