

The Motor Dealer and Service

ARTICLE NO. 5

"KNOCKS"

By L. H. HAGERLING

Often times when taking a small incline or on an exceptionally hard pull, the motorist hears small knocks coming from his engine. To the careful motorist this is a warning that something is going wrong in the vital part of his car, something that needs attention immediately. Others who are more or less careless about their motor pass it up as one of the inevitable "things" that are but daily occurrences about the car he is running.

A gas knock and this is why the careful motorist takes the hint when he hears a knock and has it looked into at once. Many a time could a bearing be saved or a connecting rod kept from going through the crankcase if only that little knock would have been looked after. And many a large bill for repairs is saved by getting after that little knock when it is first heard.

And this is where the motor dealer service comes in. The dealer who is conscientious and conducting his business on a service basis is always glad to give any information whatever that will mean better results from your motor. If a knock develops in your motor when it is still under the guarantee, the dealer will gladly tighten up the bearing or if the motor is older and out of guarantee, it means but a small outlay of money to have the knock looked after.

It is the small details that are so neglected in a motor cause it to lose power, to lack pep, to slow down and to cause many other inconveniences. The many troubles in starting a motor can be traced to the small thing that started trouble. It is the little things that once looked after and given the necessary attention that make you feel that you have really gotten your money's worth out of the car you have purchased and that it is the best little old car on the market. It is mainly up to the driver of a car just what it will do for him and it is my recommendation that no matter what kind of car you may own, it is to your advantage to give attention to the little knocks that develop and in doing that you will lay at rest the "big" knocks that are sure to develop later in more ways than one.

Carlslake Visiting Local Firestone Branch

Brownie Carlslake, who is well known among the motorcycle fans, has just concluded a week's visit in Harrisburg. While his racing days are past, Brownie is still interested in the cycle game, being a special representative of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, sent out to impart to the riders and dealers some of his store of knowledge of motorcycles, tires and accessories. Brownie says that many a time his life has depended on the tires on his racer and that the quality of Firestone motorcycle tires is responsible for his world's records and his being alive today to tell of his many thrilling victories. Brownie expressed regret at not having sufficient time to get in touch with all Firestone dealers who here, but promises to pay Harrisburg another visit in the near future, when he will make the entire round and increase his host of friends.

Teachers Attend Session of City Institute Dr. Charles H. Judd, of the University of Chicago, and Dr. Richard T. Wyche, of Washington, were the two speakers who addressed the city school teachers last evening and this morning in the Tech High school auditorium at the third session of the institute. Dr. Judd, who is a national figure in educational circles, spoke to the teachers last evening on "Educational Measurements." He pointed out the fact that children of this generation are better, work arithmetic better, are better readers than the children of a generation ago. To prove this assertion, he stated that the same examinations given to pupils recently and that in every case higher averages were made by the pupils of to-day.

This morning Dr. Judd held a sectional meeting with the high school teachers of Central and Tech in the library, while Dr. Wyche had a general meeting with the grade teachers in the auditorium. At the conference in the high school, Dr. Judd supervised the study with the purpose in view of teaching the pupils how to attack a problem. He pointed out the work set forth in the book. He advocated class room periods of about ten to fifteen minutes for the Junior High schools. Following his address a roundtable discussion followed. Dr. Judd pronounced one of the best speakers who ever addressed the local institute. The teachers were delighted with his concise and clear opinion in regard to educational matters. At his second period, with the entire teaching force in the auditorium, Dr. Judd discussed "Measuring Reading." Dr. Wyche, the other speaker, entertained the audience with stories that he related. The use of the story, and the kind of stories to tell, were what he spoke of. The next institute will be held March 21, and March 22. Superintendent Downes made his first appearance before the teaching corps since his illness and was given a great ovation. During the intermission, this morning, Miss Sallie Hollerman conducted several selections by groups of children from the group Curtin, Hamilton and Steele buildings.
