Mrs. Nelson extoled the greatness of Roosevelt as a scholar, a soldier as a statesman, and in eloquent inguage spoke of his broad Americans.

and a statesman, and in cloudlanguage spoke of his broad Americanism.

She drew from his life lessons which she said every American could emulate and said his fearlessness and courage were two characteristics that the colored people could well follow in these days of reconstruction.

She told her audience how he, more than any other man in public life argued and fought that "the door of hope" should not be closed against any one on account of color and how willing he was that the square deal should apply to all Americans regardless of race and creed. She told how he fought proscription, segregation and prejudice wherever found and that he exemplified in his life and work that broad Americanism that made him the idol of the people.

Colored people in this day, speaker said, can well take from the life of Roosevelt those qualities that made him truly great and by applying those qualities of courage, fearlessness and thoroughness, they could be in their work in the industrial world, in their schools and churches as well as in every avenue of activity, a successful and respected element in their several communities their loyalty to American ideals demand they

Would Let People Decide on Billboard Problems

Members of Council, businessmen and other persons interested in improving Harrisburg probably will hold a conference in the near future with J. Horace MacFarland, secretary of the Municipal League, to discuss proper measures to be included in an electric sign and billboard ordinance Mayor Keister said.

The more important provisions of the proposed ordinance which Mr. MacFarland will submit to the Mayor follow: Giving residents in each block the right to decide whether billboards may be erected in that block; elimination of al lelectric or other overhead signs, extending across the fairway of the street, which are owned or leased for private reverses. which are owned or leased for private purposes; prohibiting the use of any part of the street from building line to building line for private purposes.

Last April Mayor Keister in-troduced a sign ordinance but it only provided regulations for the erection and inspection of electric signs and billboards. It was not passed fin-aly by council.
