ANSWERS TO NIMRODS

ANSWERS TO NIMRODS. Question: When attending the Grand American Handicap last year noticed the different positions of men at the trap? Also noticed some men pointed their guns directly over the trap house, low down, while others pointed the muzzle of their guns high in the air. Which is the proper position at trap which is the correct method of holding a gun? THOMAS HENDRICKSON, Louisville, Ky. Answer: Take a position at the trap, which is easy to yourself, favoring the bird or angle that seems to give you the most difficulty, by turning your feet and body in that directly to a slight degree. In my opinion the best results are obtained by holding just above the traphouse, locate the target as soon as possible from the trap. Keep both eyes open, locate the target as soon as possible as you can pull yourself together for concentration.
