"Oh, cheer up; that won't hurt you. Just think how happy you are about Betty and cut out the whimpering. Meet me at 8.15. And mind you look sweet. No grouch, now."

(To be Continued.) Maeterlinck Marries Again Five Weeks After Divorce Nice, March 8 .- Maurice Maeter-

Nice, March 8.—Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian playwright, several days ago married Renee Dahon, a young woman of Nice, it became known yesterday. Maeterlinck has been a resident of Nice for the last ten years. The marriage took place at Chateau Neuede-Contes, a small village twelve miles from Nice, with the strictest privacy. Only four villagers were present as legal witnesses.

It crowns a romance which commenced eight years ago. Maeterlinck is 58 years old and his bride 26. Maeterlinck was divorced from his former wife, Madame Georgette Le Blanc, five weeks ago.

Standerds of female beauty differ all over the world, the Arab admires slenderness to the point of emaciation. Other desert tribes share the limb. We arabis abhorrence of fat. Readers of the "Garden of Allah" will recall Hitchin's description of Irena, the Kabyle dancing girl who looked and the body was so slender her waist so small, that, with her flat breast and meager shoulders, she looked almost like a stick crowned with a human face and hung with brilliant draperies."

The tribes of Africa, on the contrary, esteem fat. And they are not alone in their admiration of a generous outline. "The Reubens type." says another authority, "is perhaps the most admired by man." No doubt the desire for a disparity of structure and form, in the two sexes is deep and fundamental."

Havelock Ellis, who has written a library on the general subject of sex attraction, asserts that carriage has a decided influence on selection, and that an awkward gait detracts from a woman's attractiveness. Stoutnes is, however, not necessarily a handicap to graceful movements Spanish women tend to stoutness but they have the inward curved spine which makes for statusague bearing and nimbleness in motion.

Carrying Bucket on Head

The carrying of a bucket of water or other burden on the head insures an incomparable beauty of gait. A number of opera singers have recourse to this particular form of exercise in their physical culture exercises. It insures poise with a to the end.

Havelock Ellis also notes a masculs. She recognizes that as an incontrovertible truth, and she would never think of visiting the Hottentots to observe its baleful effect. She may see it next door, down town or under her own roof, for that matter, and the she will be seen to the strictive way of looking at things, a book on the subject would be a swate of ink. Without stopping to theorize, she turns to the business in hand—the subjugation of man by good looks, either natural or acquired. She changes her figure, the color of her hair, her expression, her very stature itself to suit the prevailing standards of beauty, whatever they may be. Her business is to look pretty and appeal, and this she does quite successfully. In the meantime, man writing tomes on the subject sent on the man was allured by physical characteristics and continue to give themselves away in their chapters. Life's Problems
Are Discussed

By MRS. WILSON WOODROW
Most people feel very strongly that they could manage their own affairs rentirely to their own satisfaction if they were not always being interfered with; but unfortunately for the perfect working out of this theory, our lives and our affairs are usually all tangled up with other people's affairs and other people's lives. And that is what makes this matter of living so adventurous and exciting.

"My face broke out in big red pimples and they formed heads that I could open. They itched so badly I had to scratch them and I had them so irritated I could hardly sleep at night for the burning and stinging. "Then I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and after using them I found success. I bought another cake of Cuticura Ointment and now my face is clear of the pimples and blotches. I am healed." (Signed) Mrs. D. H. Strominger, New Cumberland, Pa., Oct. 10, 1918.
