Sergeant Howard Tells How Colored Men Fought

In an address at the Wesley A. M. E. Church yesterday, Sergeant Louis Howard told of the experiences of the colored men in the Ninety-secthe colored men in the Ninety-second Division, many of whom were from this section of the State. Sergeant Howard returned to this city last Thursday with about fifty colored men who had been discharged from the army. The meeting was held under the auspices of the People's Forum. After Sergeant Howward spoke the fifty men who returned from overseas service were given a chicken supper in the dining room of the church. Dr. C.H. Crampion, president of the Forum, is planning to have several officers of the Ninety-second division speak at several meetings in the future.

Beautiful Memorial
For Mrs. Cunningham

A recent issue of the Presbyterian Banner, published in Pittsburgh, has a most beautiful "in memoriam" to Mrs. Clyde Beaumont Cunningham, of this city who passed away early in the year. The writer speaks of her happy disposition and lovable character, her fondness for people and the pleasure shotok in doing for others. Of her love of home, nature, the beautiful in everything and closes by saying: "Mrs. Cunningham brought the charm and joy of her own life not only into the home she graced with peculiar beauty but into every circle into which she entered. She cared for people and loved to help them. To relieve distress, to bring cheer, to restore to gladness, to renew hope, to care for the little ones whom. Jesus loved and to do it for His sake, to share in the life and to do her part as the wife of a man active in public and professional life, to be faithful in every duty and to be a minister of others always—this is the biography of Clyde Cunningham. Her husband, her sisters and her friends mourn that she has gone. Most of all, however, they rejoice that they knew her, that they had her with them for so many years, and that they shared in the bright and joyous life she lived."

It Pays to Have Your Clothes Dry Cleaned

There can be no doubt in your mind as to how our DRY CLEANING service can help you when once you have tried it.

Many a person has discarded a garment at the beginning of a season all for the want of newness. Many have set aside as useless the very garment that will be best suited for this spring's wear just because it lacked the freshness of newlybought apparel.

How foolish! How wasteful! But perhaps you didn't know at the time there was such a service as ours. So we're glad to tell you of it now.

Let us DRY CLEAN your garments and put into them that newness and freshness you so much desire. It will save you considerable in money and add greatly to your personal satisfaction in having your own garments for further use, rather than worry about newly-bought clothes.

Three Stores Both Telephones Harrisburg Steelton

"Now," asked Mr. Hershey, as he seated himself at his desk, "what do you want to know?"

"I want to know," answered the Ad Man, "more about those dairies that supply you with the cream you use in HER-SHEY'S SUPERIOR ICE CREAM."

"To begin with, there are about a thousand different dairies," said Mr. Hershey.

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed the Ad Man, "you don't mean to tell me that it takes that many dairies to supply this plant?"

"It certainly does; and there are times in season that we could use many more. We've got a pretty big business here and it's growing all the time. We don't consider a thousand enough!" replied the general manager of the big creamery.

"Where are all these dairies?" asked the inquisitive person, who was getting more inquisitive every minute.

It seems the more questions you answer some people the more they will ask: and the Ad man was no exception to the rule. But Mr. Hershey was patient, or at least appeared to be, and the Ad man kept up his rapid-fire interrogation.

"Our dairies are located in Dauphin, Perry, Franklin, Cumberland, Adams and York Counties," replied Mr. Hershey, in answer to the last question.

That's a big field to draw from and a credit to the section, for it proves that those counties produce the best quality milk, else the Hershey Creamery Company would not use it.

"How do you get all that cream to your plant here in Harrisburg?" asked the Ad man.

"Well, as I explained to you before," replied Mr. Hershey, "the farmers bring the milk to our central receiving stations. We have a sufficient number of them conveniently located in each district so that the farmers won't have to haul the milk far."

Think what a wonderful saving that is for the farmer who used to haul milk for many miles to town or to a railroad station to be shipped. The Hershey Creamery Company practically brings its vast facilities right up to the farm door. That's one of the links in the chain between the farm and the city.

"What if a farmer has more milk than you can use?" remarked the Ad man.

"The farmer has the best of it," answered Mr. Hershey, "we take all the milk his farm produces, year in and year out. If it's the right quality we need it all."

"When you have the milk at your central receiving stations, what then?" asked the Ad man.

"That's an important question," answered Mr. Hershey.
