VICTORY GARDEN CAMPAIGN PLANS

Vegetable Growing Regarded Best Antidote for Bolshevik Doctrine

Washington, March 14.—Americanism illustrated in growing victory gardens is "the best antidote for Bolshevik doctrine," according to the Young Men's Christian Association, which is planning a 1919 campaign of English language and the speaking of English language via the victory garden. Details of the campaign were completed here to-day by the National War Garden Commission, co-operating with the immigration department of the Young Men's Christian Association in Chicago. Plans also provide for the showing of the victory garden work in moving pictures throughout the country.

To start off the campaign ten thousand garden and canning books have been sent to Chicago in addition to several thousand posters. The Young Men's Christian Association had 150 acres of industrial gardens last year and they hope to better that record this year. These gardens are 25x150 feet.

"This is one of the most constructive campaigns yet undertaken," said Charles L. Pack, president of the National War Garden Commission today. "Do not forget that the garden produces something besides food. It produces thrift so important to the nation at this time. Then, too, it means contented workers everywhere. The man with a victory garden realizes the value of a home and he knows the value of making regular trips to the bank. Then, too, the incentive to get out in the open and speak the English language is of tremendous value.

"The banks of the country know the home food producer for a good customer and a good citizen. The time to begin making that citizenship is when the citizen is new. The best antidote for Bolshevik doctrine is the production of food for the kitchen door."

IMPRISON RAHMI BEY Washington.—Rahmi Bey, formerly Governor-General of Smyrna, has been imprisoned by Turkish authorities, according to advices received by the State Department. During his term of office Rahmi Bey adopted a benevolent attitude toward American and allied interests and was especially active in protecting American schools and property.

ENGLAND HAS COAL FAMINE

Dilatory Work of Miners Causing Much Suffering Throughout Empire

London, March 14.—Coal queues, the terror of the poor of London, have again made their appearance because of an acute shortage in the coal supply, and thousands upon thousands of persons have been daily standing in line in the hope of getting enough coal to keep some kind of fire going in their humble homes.

A coal queue is an interesting sight. Early in the morning the number of customers appearing at some distributing point exceeds the number being disposed of by the coal merchant. So they line up, in the order of their arrival, and patiently wait until they are supplied, or are told by the merchant that he has no more—by no means an infrequent development.

They buy in small quantities for two reasons—some of them have little money to invest in coal at existing high prices, while the second cause is the lack of means to remove large quantities. Often perambulators provide the vehicle, but more often the purchaser tucks his "black diamonds" away in an old basket, and hurries on his way.

The shortage of coal is ascribed to a number of reasons, chiefly the dilatory work of the miners who have demanded a six-hour working day, and the scarcity of railroad cars. Coal supplies in all centers of population are far below normal, and there is no prospect of an immediate improvement in the situation. Many persons have sought other means of keeping warm. One old man and his wife, they are over eighty, have been in bed for a week because they have no coal in the house, and their daughter cares for them. Children also are being kept between blankets with success, but the sturdy of the city must bear the burden as well as they can, with mighty little prospect of relief until the railroads are in better position, or the balmy days of spring come to chase away the necessity for artificial heat.

BOARD MAY MAKE CHANGES IN CAMP CURTIN SCHOOL

Architect Asked to Furnish Estimate to Eliminate Bad Features

After receiving the report of investigators who studied conditions at the Camp Curtin School building, and recommended changes so that the structure will be safe from any dangerous fire hazards for the pupils attending school there, the city school board in special session yesterday afternoon unanimously authorized M. L. Kast, architect for the addition now being built, to furnish the directors with estimates of the cost for the improvements.

Director John F. Dapp upon whose motion the investigation of conditions he alleged existed in the building brought about the investigation by the experts offered the motion directing Mr. Kast to submit figures on the cost of changes such as the committee report would give the building a "considerable degree of safety to its occupants. A special meeting will be held as soon as the architect completes these estimates.

President Robert A. Enders stated. The report of the committee of experts including C. Heller and Charles A. Hexamer, Philadelphia, and H. W. Foster, New York, was ordered to be entered on the minutes of the board meeting. It was not read after the directors assured Mr. Dapp that had studied it. Director Dapp, following his motion to have Mr. Kast estimate the cost of the changes, also asked him to include the cost of covering the two fire towers with fire proof material. Director Harry A. Boyer then asked that an estimate should be made on the expense of installing sprinklers in the building, particularly on the stairways.

The board did not decide upon any definite changes in the present plans for the addition under construction at the Camp Curtin building, the directors preferring to wait until they receive figures showing the cost of the various improvements recommended to reduce danger to pupils from fire to a minimum.

A discussion of the controversy with the Susquehanna township school directors about the taking of the building in the Fourteenth ward, formerly part of the West precinct, Susquehanna, followed. The city board finally agreed to follow the advice of the solicitor, M. W. Jacobs.

Unemployed Women May Help Farmers

Philadelphia, March 14.—"The Woman's Land Army isn't trying to take the position of men on the farms, but the returning soldiers have shown no desire to go on the land," says Mrs. Charles Davis Clark, one of the executives of the Woman's Land Army movement.

"The employment bureau in New York is just swamped with returning soldiers, who want to work right in the city. They have been seeing a great deal of excitement, and many of them who lived on farms want to remain in the excitement of the city. "But the food must be raised. Normally there is a shortage of between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 in farm help in this country, and the Woman's Land Army would like to help make up that supply.

"The Land Army was planned as a war emergency, but if the soldiers don't return to the land there is no reason why women should not continue the help that they gave last year."

Organize to Oppose Present Constitution of League of Nations

Washington, March 14.—Preliminary plans for the formation of a national nonpartisan organization designed to keep the American people better informed as to events at the Peace Conference and to oppose acceptance of the constitution of the League of Nations as now drawn were made at a conference yesterday between Senators Reed, of Missouri, Democrat, and Bland, of Idaho, and Poindexter, of Washington, Republican, and George Wharton Pepper, a lawyer of Philadelphia.

After the conference it was announced that Henry Watterson, former publisher of the Louisville Courier Journal, would be president of the organization with Mr. Pepper as directing supervisor.

France Was Richer Since the World War

Paris, March 14.—Louis Klotz, the Minister of Finance, began his Chamber of Deputies to-day on the financial situation by denying that he had made the statement that France had become richer since the war. From the fiscal point of view there had been more resources created the minister conceded, but it would be absurd to say that any country with departments in such a condition as the invaded departments of France had become richer.

The yearly budget, M. Klotz announced, would be three or four times greater than before the war, the deficit to meet being 21,750,000,000 francs.

MRS. MARY MILLER DIES Halifax, Pa., March 14.—Mrs. Mary Miller, aged 79 years, died on Wednesday night at the home of her son, Penrose Miller, near Fishersville, after a brief illness. Besides the son, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. James Gipple, of Lancaster, and Mrs. Charita Sweigart, of Enders. Funeral services will take place on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock in charge of the Rev. J. F. Stables, of the Fishersville Lutheran Church, and burial will be made in the Enders Cemetery.

SOLDIER GUEST OF HONOR Columbia, Pa., March 14.—Charles Weaver, a soldier from overseas, recently discharged, was the guest of honor at a reception held last evening by Washington Camp No. 209, P. O. S. of A., of which he is a member, an d he was presented with a beautiful chain as a souvenir of the event.

ST. PATRICK'S BAZAAR The senior class of the Linglestown High School will hold a St. Patrick's bazaar Saturday evening, March 15, in the school building. Ice cream, cake, candy, coffee and soft drinks will be on sale and a musical program has been prepared.

DEAR FOLKS:

I HAVE written you four letters thus far. You surely understand by this time what I am aiming to get into your minds and hearts about the Wilson & Company business, Chicago. In my first letter I told you why I intended to reveal to you the heart of a big business. In my second letter I introduced to you the man who heads this big business. In my third letter I gave you a glimpse into the hearts of the men's employment bureau. In my fourth letter I gave you a look into the heart of the women's employment bureau.

Now let me get it into your minds that what I am telling you about Wilson & Company in this series of letters represents the opinions that came to me personally from the mouths and hearts of the workers, and they do not, in any sense, represent the opinions of Mr. Wilson personally, or those of any member of his official family. I am the spokesman for these happy workers. They revealed to me their innermost thoughts. They talked to me frankly and unreservedly. They told me what they really and truly feel about working for this company.

And please remember that the Wilson & Company business, or any other business, represents the length and shadow of one man. He may have in his official family and as heads of departments some of the best men in the world, but after all it is one man who must shape the policy and lead and inspire his associate workers.

I must give you the sincere and honest expressions of these workers if I am to truly represent them, and in doing so, it will be necessary to refer frequently to Mr. Wilson in a very complimentary way. The workers insisted on telling me what they think of him and why they are so proud to work under his leadership and why they are so determined to make a success of the Wilson & Company business.

Please bear in mind, also, that this is the first time in the history of business that a Big Institution has shown a willingness to go to the public with the opinions of its workers and to rest its case with the people, so far as good will and patronage is concerned, on what they think of it.

This is so unusual that it is bound to make as much of an impression on you as it did on me. You are certain to think, as I do, that a business is sure to be all right in all particulars when the workers in the ranks are anxious to go on record in paying tribute to the man and the institution they work for.

A worker in the beef department told me one day that Wilson & Company had given him a new idea as to the meaning of the words "Wilson & Company" in a firm name. He said: "Mr. Wilson has made us workers feel that we are the 'Wilson & Company.' A great many of us have been taken into the business as partners. We are encouraged to save our money and to buy stock in the company with our savings. We make enough money to save some. Mr. Wilson will be pleased when we all become his partners, but not any more so than we will be.

"Mr. Wilson's just treatment of us and his consistent kindness inspires us all to do our work well. We have our hearts in our work. We know the business will grow because we are doing the right thing by the boss. He is proud of us and our work and tells us so. He treats us as personal friends. I think we do more work in a day than any crew of workers in the United States. The conditions under which we work are very happy.

"Leading us by kindness is the reason for our happiness and enthusiasm in our work. We like words and appreciation the same as other folks and we get both. Why shouldn't this business succeed when we are all working together so contentedly and so proudly?"

Another workman, speaking enthusiastically of the Wilson & Company environment, got off his bit of philosophy to me:

"If a fellow wakes up in the morning and says to himself, 'Oh, I hate to go to work, he has better not go to work.' He'd better get another job. He'd better work for a company that puts pep into him and makes him want to work.

"Say, boss, one of the happiest parts of my day is when I wake up in the morning and think about going to my work. I know that I am going to enjoy the whole day. I get a lot of pleasure out of my daily work for Wilson & Company. I am one of the family, you know, and the other workers feel the same way about it that I do."

I said to myself: "It must be fine to go to one's daily toll with that spirit."

In my next letter I will tell you about several incidents that gave me a new angle on what a big workshop can accomplish when the HEAD of it is prompted by the HEART of it.

Sincerely, William C. Freeman, 151 E. 23rd St., New York City.
