

LAST THOUGHTS OF ROOSEVELT OF PARTY UNITY

Desired Republicans to Close Ranks and Solve Domestic Problems
EVIDENCE OF HIS WISH
North American Review Gives Facsimile of Pencil Memorandum

Theodore Roosevelt's last thoughts were of the great domestic issues of his country, issues whose determination will decide the weal or woe of the next generation. He saw in a United Republican party, just given a vote of confidence and a commission to formulate and carry into action policies of reconstruction, the guarantee of the prompt recognition and successful handling of these domestic problems.

Has he seen him? He must go to Washington for 10 days, see Senate and House, prevent split on domestic policies.

Tangible evidence of this is a memorandum, the last penciled thoughts of the late President, to Col. George Harvey and the North American Review, the country and the Republican party are indebted for the publication of this interesting document which carries a message from him "who being dead yet speaketh." In the leading article of the current number of the North American Review, Col. Harvey sets forth the vital import of this last penciled notation of Mr. Roosevelt. He says:

"Mr. Roosevelt died the acknowledged leader of the great party into which he was born. His last written words, penciled by his own hand a few hours before his death and addressed in the form of a memorandum for the brilliant young man, for whose selection as Chairman of the National organization he was largely responsible, were these, as reproduced elsewhere in fac simile:

"I see him; he must go to Washington for 10 days; see Senate and House; prevent split on domestic policies."

"Here is evidenced as clearly as if the few words filled a volume Mr. Roosevelt's realization of both his responsibility and his obligation. The simple memorandum marked the inauguration of a definite party policy, to be carried through to a no less definite conclusion. It was more than a passing thought or a mere suggestion. It was a Message, signifying the need of immediate and unremitting vigilance in achieving complete unity of action in resolving domestic problems before attacking those of wider range—soon to be thrust upon the country—a true soldier's call first to close the ranks. "Nothing could be more characteristic or more clearly illustrative of the breadth of vision, the foresight, the directness in method and the painstaking attention of the man. Nothing, too, probably could have served his purpose better than that these words should have been his last. Difficult as it is to reconcile one's self to the decree of divine Providence that at this crucial moment was not untimely, we cannot but realize, as he would have been the first to acknowledge, that the last vestige of animosities which might have continued to impair his highest aspirations was buried with him, and thereby the perfect union which he so ardently desired against all things un-American was attained. "Thus we find the Republican party resuming full legislative authority thoroughly united and invigorated by the peculiar confidence which so often carried it to victory in former years."

Many Opportunities For Disabled Men

Washington, March 14.—Any man with one eye, one arm, fair hearing, or one leg off below the knee but capable of easy movement with artificial foot, should be able to qualify for the position of safety engineer or inspector, according to the federal board for vocational education, which is in charge of the vocational rehabilitation of disabled soldiers, sailors and marines. The fact that a great part of the safety engineer's work is in the field and usually in locations where some degree of agility and ability to get about is required, would indicate that men with legs off above the knee would be unable to fill such positions. The one armed man would be less handicapped for this sort of work than a man with only one eye, or defective hearing, or the loss of one foot.

WIFE WOULD QUIT GERMAN

New York.—Mrs. Emma Snyder of 44 Bushwick avenue, Brooklyn, applied to the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday for annulment of her marriage to Edward H. Snyder on the ground that he was a German and had deceived her into believing he was a citizen of the United States. The application was denied by Justice Benedict because she had accepted $7 for maintenance from him after she had left him.

NEW MOTOR FUEL DEVELOPED

Washington.—Development too late for use in the war of a motor fuel which adds ten miles an hour to the speed of airplanes, and has possibilities for use in automobile racing, is announced by the Bureau of Mines. The liquid, a combination of benzol and cyclohexane called hexar, costs about $1 a gallon, so while of military value it is not regarded as practical for commercial purposes at present.
