

LAW ACCIDENT RECORD IS MADE

February Marked By Decrease in Casualties in Industrial Army

What is said to be the lowest monthly record of workers injured through industrial accidents in Pennsylvania since the Workmen's Compensation Act became effective, 3 years ago, was established during February of this year, according to announcement made today by Acting Commissioner Walter McNichols of the Department of Labor and Industry.

During last month, reports of 11,977 workers injured, including 207 fatalities, were received at the Department of Labor and Industry. The next lowest record was established in November 1918, when 12,556 workers were reported injured, of whom 264 died.

The monthly fatality record of 207 workers killed last month is lower than any month since June 1916, when 169 workers were killed.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime. *Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them, 25c and 50c per box. All druggists.

The highest monthly fatality record of the last three years was in August 1918, when 207 workers were killed. Although February is the shortest month, the record of workers killed and injured in February 1919 is considerably lower than the same record for the months of February in the three preceding years.

During last month, workmen's compensation, amounting to $72,561 was awarded to two workers totally blinded by industrial accidents and to fifty-two other workers, each of whom lost an eye. Compensation for the following dismemberments: $22,201.50 for sixteen feet; $31,103.50 for twenty hands; $13,144.18 for seven arms, and $16,752.50 for 8 legs.

From January 1, 1916, to March 1, 1919, accident reports indicating injuries to 684,797 Pennsylvania industrial workers, totaling 8,438 died from injuries, have been received at the Bureau of Statistics and Information of the Department of Labor and Industry. The total amount of workmen's compensation awarded and paid in fatal cases and paid for disabilities, since January 1, 1916, is $23,394,055.86.

Lieutenant Noble Sissle, the soloist with Lieutenant "Jim" Europe's world famous band of the "Three Hundred and Ninety," was singer in the French Campaign. He was in the Dardanelles and Champagne. Sissle has a sweet tenor voice, which was heard to great advantage in the popular ballad, "John of Arc." This song was translated into French for him, and Sissle learned to sing it in this strange tongue while entertaining the dough boys at the Aix les Bains rest center last winter. A few days after the colored regiment reported for duty with the French army, he was ordered to entertain the distinguished visitor. In the course of the concert Sissle sang his favorite song for the general, which delighted the one-armed warrior so much that afterwards, whenever he was near the regiment, he would always have a "John of Arc" sung for him. Sissle was a jubilee singer on the Chauvignotte and a society entertainer before he went into the Army. He was originally regimental drummer major, and a society entertainer, commissioned lieutenant and assigned to duty with the Three Hundred and Ninety, where he was assigned to duty with the Three Hundred and Ninety.

"The Aftermath" which will play at the Orpheum Theater, Thursday evening, is a story of a young soldier from France, who had been wounded in an American girl, who helped nurse him back to life, comes from the east and tells him and they fall in love. But when the soldier, a young captain, goes to consult the girl's guardian who is a physician, about some illness, he is informed that he is suffering from a disease that renders him unfit to marry.

"The young captain declines to believe this diagnosis. He declares that the physician is in love with the girl himself and has told him an ugly lie only to scare him away. The soldier persists in trying to marry the girl, and lo, the doctor, in desperation, tells the truth to his friend, an Army minister, who refuses to perform the ceremony. "When the girl's mother demands an explanation, the doctor beseeches the young soldier to tell the truth. This he refuses to do until the first diagnosis of his case is positively confirmed by a distinguished physician and then he broke down and confessed to a mad night in Paris, when he celebrated the victory, and heard broken he gives the girl her freedom. Adequately to present so striking a dramatic play, a strong cast is necessary, which has been assured by including: Rose Coghlan, Malcolm Fassel, Grace Carlisle, Malcolm Dunn, Richard Gordon and Mona Kingsley."

SCENE FROM "WANTED FOR MURDER," FEATURING ELAINE HAMMERSTEIN

With the war over and an everlasting peace assured, the natural trend in amusement lines is toward romance or comedy. Recognizing this fact, S. Jay Kaufman, newspaper writer, was especially inspired by the desire to lift the pall of heavy war drama from the screen, and he wrote "Wanted for Murder," probably the greatest story of his entire career and the first one he has ever consented to have produced. This exceptional production, starring beautiful Elaine Hammerstein, has created great interest, and will be shown at the Victoria Theater, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

At times you will be mighty near the brink of tears, when suddenly you are lifted out of yourself by some thrilling action, or probably a touch of comedy will turn the tears to smiles. and a host of lively boys and girls make up the cast.

The Majestic's splendid vaudeville show the last half of this week is headed by Stan Stanley and his company. The "Three Hundred and Ninety" bits of the Majestic season, Stanley is a funny comedian and keeps the audience in uproarious laughter for twenty-five minutes. The rest of the bill is strong, and includes such choler, which was heard to great advantage in the popular ballad, "John of Arc." This song was translated into French for him, and Sissle learned to sing it in this strange tongue while entertaining the dough boys at the Aix les Bains rest center last winter.

Pauline Frederick, the beautiful and talented actress, will be seen at the Colonial for the last time to-night in her first Goldwyn picture, "The Woman on the Index." Monday and Tuesday, the photoplay conceived from the world-renowned musical comedy, "The Belle of New York," tells the story of the Sixty-ninth Army girl, who became a society queen.

"Little Women" over Louisa M. Alcott's classic, "Little Women," will welcome the opportunity to see this splendid picture at the Regent Theater, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Production was staged at Concord, Mass., in the home of the author, where the incidents set forth in the book occurred. It is a most beautiful picture with novel happenings and a surprising climax that virtually every one will enjoy.

"Good Bye, Bill" is a comedy of the war, which features Shirley Mason and Ernest Truex. It is being shown for the last time to-day. The shortcomings, adventures and mishaps of Kaiser Bill and his attendant, but-foons are portrayed realistically and humorously in this funniest of comedy offerings. A delightful flag comedy, "One Every Minute," is also being presented.

From Louisa M. Alcott's Famous Story. Filmed in Miss Alcott's own home; scenes in the home of Ralph Waldo Emerson, stage of Concord. Don't miss it. Thursday, Friday, Saturday Douglas Fairbanks in "Arizona."
