BUY COAL EARLY, WITH LENROOT URGE OPERATORS

BELL 1991-2356 UNITED Anthracite Mine Owners Foresee Shortage of Supply Next Winter

They are urging early buying by householders to forestall any scarcity.

Here is a statement handed out by the anthracite operators' committee, with headquarters in this city:
"Prompt buying of next winter's household fuel has been recommended by the United States fuel administrator, who has given warning that a coal shortage next season is quite possible.

"There is one way to prevent a shortage, and that is to buy coal now or in the early spring. Anthracite mines are working broken time and there are no reserve stocks of consequence at the mines which can be drawn upon.

"Conditions are approximating those in 1917, when the consuming public delayed purchases in the mistaken hope that there would be plenty of coal later on. The result was a deluge of orders in the midst of a severe winter when tae efficiency of the mines was at the lowest and the cellar bins were empty and many families were suffering.

"Anthracite is used chiefly in winter, but the winter's supply must be mined over the whole twelve months of the year. February production was only 3,871,932 tons, the lowest monthly record for eighteen years, save three when there were labor troubles, and 1,940,000 tons less than the February shipments of last year. There is no assurance that next winter will be mind, and if there is lailare to mine part of the needed supply now through lack of orders the eight in the winds and the deficit later on."
