British Wool Trade on Pre-War Basis Soon

London, March 28.—The wool trade of Great Britain, which has been controlled by the government since the middle of 1916, is gradually being freed from restrictions and soon will be practically on a pre-wambasis. The only remaining restriction will be that the government, which has bought the forthcoming Australian clip, will act as merchants and put this on the market at auctions at fixed minimum prices, which, however, will be somewhat elastic as the sales proceed.

The first auctions will be held in the first week of April and about 30,000 bales are expected to be catalogued during that month. Belgian, French and Italian buyers will be allowed to compete with the British trade for supplies but there will be no American competition.

GERMAN PHOTOGRAPHERS
DOING BIG BUSINESS

Coblenz, March 25.—German photographers in Coblenz recently have been doing the largest business in their careers, their principal customers being American soldiers. From two to five thousand Americans of units in districts beyond the Rhine and other parts of the occupied area visit Coblenz daily, the soldiers being allowed one day in the city every few weeks. Hundreds of these men have their photographs taken.

In their display windows the photographers have arranged the pictures of Americans on one side and soldiers on the other, always with a dividing line of some kind in between.

DISTINCTIVE FOOTWEAR

That is what you get in this shop run BY women FOR women. After all isn't it absurd to expect a man to be able to select clothing for women? He can fit it, yes;—that's a problem in anatomy. But when it comes to buying how can a man grasp a woman's viewpoint.

A woman is born with an instinctive knowledge of women's apparel that a man can never gain. She knows styles as he can never know them. She understands the principles of line and color as applied to dressing women more thoroughly than he can ever grasp them.

There are effeminate men and masculine women, but when it comes to meeting the clothing requirements of women, who is best equipped—who but normal women. We are an organization of women throughout. We have the woman's viewpoint. We can meet the woman's needs.

The smallest type in the above space should be read with comfort and without straining the eyes at 14 inches. If you cannot do this you need reading glasses. We do high grade optical work at reasonable prices.
