

DEPARTMENTS TO BE CHANGED

Printing Chief Assumes Office; Labor and Industry Due For a Shakeup

Capitol Hill is looking forward to reorganizations in two of the departments within the next fortnight. Robert C. Miller, of Gettysburg, who today assumed charge of the department of printing and binding, will study the general printing situation and in addition to making changes in the personnel of the office force will recommend a number of radical departures from present ways of doing things in the printing end. Ways will be considered for reduction of department printing and some of the matter now piled on desks awaiting a time when the printing establishment can handle it may go back to those who wrote it. It is expected that Walter McNichols, acting commissioner of labor and industry, will be succeeded within a short time by C. E. Connelley, the Pittsburgh man selected by the Governor. It is not known whether Mr. McNichols will go back to his former place of supervising inspector or not. Theodore J. Gould, long connected with the department's inspection work and who lately returned from a year's service in France, left to-day to accept a place with a big New York insurance company under Lew H. Palmer, former acting commissioner. When he returned it was not thought that he would remain long under the regime which succeeded in the fall. With the separation of the municipal and statistical bureaus from this department a general reorganization will begin and some of the welfare work will be taken over by the new welfare commission. The department will confine itself more to the original purposes.

The State Commission of Agriculture, which will be abolished by the Jones bill now in the Senate, has not met since its members offered their resignations to the Governor and is not likely to do so. There is no opposition from any of the stranger elements to the reorganization measure.

Murder Trials Go Over to June Term of Court

A number of others were heard and entered bail to appear in June. In juvenile court many of the 37 children who were given hearings were on trial for the first time and were placed on probation. Richard Pope, colored, charged with stealing flour from a store in Steelton, and Agnew Wenrich, said to have broken parole by playing truant, was sent to Glenn Mill by Judge S. M. McCreel. Disabled Soldiers to Get Chance For Jobs

Many interesting cases have been brought before H. E. Giles and U. S. G. Scott, representatives of the Bureau of Vocational Education, who are at the offices of the local Red Cross Chapter in the basement of the Public Library, assisting wounded soldiers, sailors and marines to secure vocational training. Among these was a veteran of eight battles, who fought valiantly in the thick of the conflict until he was wounded in the Argentine fighting. He was recommended for mechanical draughtsman's education. Two married men were among those interviewed by the representatives yesterday. It is planned to have them re-educated in one of the city's industrial plants. If the plans are approved by the authorities at Washington the course will begin immediately.

Admiralty officials say they received no report of the sinking of the Cyclops. They add that no German submarines were operating at the time in West Indian waters.
