A new comedy, with music, entitled "That's My Wife," presented by "Jimmie" Hodges and his company of twenty-five, scored a decided hit at the Majestic yesterday. The show is built for laughing purposes only, and it serves its purpose well, for from the rise of the curtain to the fall of the curtain the audience is kept in constant laughter. "Jimmie" is a big feature and in the role of a convict, and later a lady's maid, he is a scream. The girls dress gorgeously, the stage settings are elaborate and the song and dance numbers are all live.

Another episode of "The Lure of the Circus," with dancing "Eddie" Polo, is also being shown.

"Under the Top"
A thrilling love story of the circus, brimful of pep and vigor, with an unusual plot and a surprising climax. Out of the ordinary and decidedly unique; shows the star in breath-catching death-defying stunts that make you gasp and wonder.

Also SENNETT COMEDY, "The Village Smithy"

Monday, Tuesday — Lila Lee in "Such a Little Pirate," and Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle in "Love."

There will be shown a special attraction, "The Talk of the Town," an adaptation of the story, "Discipline and Geneva," with Dorothy Phillips. This is a story of high society, one that will please old and young alike. Miss Phillips is given a part just suited to her talents and is supported with a capable cast. Monday and Tuesday, Mae Marsh, the dainty little star, will be seen in her latest success, "The Bondage of Barbara."

In the early part of "Under the Top," the new Aricraft picture starring Fred Stone, which is being shown at the Regent theater to-day and to-morrow, a famous comedian has to do a dive down a rope from a church steeple. The scene comes in when he, as "Jimmie Jones," the village painter, quits for the noon hour. Fred came down the rope head-first at top speed, while three cameras "shot the scene" and numerous people around the Lasky studio stood around watching breathlessly to see if he would land safely. He did, and when he landed everyone agreed that when it came to doing stunts, Fred Stone was in a class by himself. This is one of many similar hair-raising feats which Fred Stone performs throughout the picture. "Under the Top," Ella Hall, Guy Oliver, Charles O'Grady, and other noted film stars are in the cast.

An extraordinary bill is scheduled for Monday, when Lila Lee will be shown in her latest picture, "Such a Little Pirate," and "Fatty" Arbuckle will appear in "Love." The first is a splendid and thrilling story of a little girl, who turned buccaner, and the second—well, the inimitable comedian falls in love, and you can guess the rest.

Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle, noted screen comedian, has signed a contract with the Famous Players-Lasky Company, to appear under the Paramount banner in motion pictures for the next three years.

Work on the first picture will be begun within the next two weeks, it was said.

Arbuckle's contracts, it is said, involve more than $2,000,000. Elaborate plans for coming productions were discussed at a recent meeting and conference.

A hoodoo can be more pestiferous than a mosquito. If a man is born on Friday, the 13th, he is doomed to a life of misfortune, that is a joke to others and a nuisance to himself.

George Walsh proves this conclusively in his latest William Fox comedy, "Never Say Quit," which shows the jinx to-day and to-morrow. "The jinx is after him from the day

SCENE FROM "THE BETTER 'OLE," AT THE ORPHEUM, STARRING JAMES K. HACKETT

"The Better 'Ole," the comedy with music which will be offered by Mr. and Mrs. Coburn as the attraction at the Orpheum to-morrow, with James K. Hackett in the leading role, is said to present three of the most humorous characters that have ever been attempted upon the stage. These characters, "Old Bill," "Bert" and married bliss, and the jinx presents him with weeping triplets. Reginald Jones and thirteen are ever on the warpath, and thirteen always comes out on top.

"Alf," form the three modern musketeers of Captain Bruce Bairnsfather's famous war cartoons, "Fragments From France," upon which the play is based. With a dash of pathos here and there, these three so-called musketeers picture the lighter and more humorous side of trench life.

"The Kiss Burglar," with a big metropolitan cast, including the famous Peacock Allyn, is the musical comedy attraction announced for local production at the Orpheum next Wednesday, matinee and night. This latest musical success which proved so lastingly popular at the George M. Cohan Theater, in New York, where it ran nearly an entire season, is the joint work of Glen McDougall, who wrote the book and lyrics, while Raymond Hubbell composed the score.

To those who have never witnessed a performance of the great moral drama, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," also to those who may have seen it and have been so impressed and wish to see it again, an opportunity will be given when it appears at the Orpheum next week Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with daily matinees, to gratify their wish.

In "Tea For Three," Roi Cooper Megrue's latest comedy, which will be seen at the Orpheum on March 31 matinee Tuesday and April 1, with several assertions of which the following are a fair example: "A man may not have loved, but there is no man who has not loved." "If forbidden fruit is sweet, temptation is forbidden men the most evil." "No woman likes to hear that she is so bad that a woman can't find an excuse for him." "There are two kinds of fools—those who give advice and those who won't take it." "It takes a bachelor to criticize a husband."

All of which are rather interesting in view of the fact that Mr. Megrue, himself, is a bachelor. Which fact is here set forth in order to assist Mr. Megrue in answering more than 300 letters of inquiry he has received since the play opened, all of which asked him point blank whether he was or not.

He hastens to add, however, that while one may write what one thinks in a play, it does not necessarily follow that one writes from personal experience.

"Tea For Three" is being presented under the direction of Selwyn and Company, with an exceptionally brilliant cast, including charming Charlotte Walker, the well-known star, who will be seen in the leading feminine role.

Organize to Support Reform in Courts Martial Procedure
By Associated Press.
