

SURVEY WORK ON SUSQUEHANNA IS TO START SOON

Col. J. J. Loving Confers With Congressmen Kreider and Griest SPEED STRONGLY URGED Army Officers Trained in Work to Direct Engineers at Earliest Possible Date

A survey of the Susquehanna river from Tidewater to Harrisburg, in order to determine the navigability of the river, now is receiving the attention of Col. J. J. Loving, of the regular army, who is in charge of the United States engineer office, 209 Customs House, Baltimore. Two Pennsylvania Congressmen, W. W. Griest, of Lancaster, who introduced the bill to authorize the survey which Congress subsequently adopted, and A. S. Kreider, of the Harrisburg district, who has given the matter considerable attention, were in consultation with Col. Loving.

The Pennsylvania Congressmen urged that the program for the survey be determined expeditiously. Col. Loving assured the Congressmen that in view of the fact that Congress had authorized the survey and the money had been appropriated, that the work would be proceeded with at the earliest practicable date.

The Congressmen promised to furnish Col. Loving with a delay of a large amount of information which had been gathered by engineers and others through many years of observation and examination of the Susquehanna river, which data had come into their possession through the courtesy of interested parties.

General Taylor informed the Congressmen that the work would be performed entirely by officers of the regular army, who were educated and specially trained and had great experience in work of this character.

After the War Department has determined whether or not it is possible to make the Susquehanna river navigable between the points designated, and at what cost, a report containing the facts and such recommendations as are deemed proper will be made to Congress, and it will then be up to Congress to take further action as is practicable.
