

The Private Life of the Kaiser

FROM THE PAPERS AND DIARIES OF THE BARONESS VON LARISCH-REDDERN The Kaiser and Kaiserin's Late Major Domest, Chief of the Royal Household at Berlin and Potsdam.

Baroness von Larisch-Reddern is the TRUE name of the Berlin Court Lady who gave the story of the Kaiser to Henry William Fisher, Uxala, Countess von Eppinghoven being a nom de guerre, heretofore used to shield her.

The country residences of our Prussian grandees, you must know, were as a general thing quite innocent of sanitary arrangements, and often several rooms had to be entirely rebuilt and furnished with running water before His Majesty would set foot in the houses.

Now, an unsophisticated reader might think that to plead old-fashionedness would scare away William, but that is a miscalculation. If he scented a full game-bag on any baronial domain, he would invite himself and only when it was too late to raise objection did the Court-marshal put in the standing claims of his master.

venerable general of his grandfather in a manner that would have resulted in a duel if rank did not make a crowned poisoner inviolable. One example of many: As long ago as the early nineties, the Kaiser tried to forestall the revolution that at last materialized in November, 1918, ordering the then President of the Prussian Ministry, Count Botho Eulenburg to railroad through the Diet and House of Lords an arbitrary anti-revolutionary bill of Wilhelm's own making, which attempted nothing less than the abolishment of the constitution - such as it was. Botho, working under the Kaiser's lash, acted like a bull in a china shop, the country was in a state of confusion.

Song and Dance - Business of State At the same time he decided on a visit to Castle Liebenberg, the country seat of his bosom friend, the infamous Philip Eulenburg, who, at the time had not yet made his appearance in the criminal court. Even at the height of his success Wilhelm never could face the disconcerting political defeat which he wished, he would run away and, ostrich like, hide his head far from the maddening crowd.

The Kaiser at Dinner At Philip's seat, the Kaiser found all Eulenburgs except Botho: the Ambassador, the Court-marshal, the commander of the Body Uhlans, and Colonel Eulenburg. The supper was of the finest: roast turkey, saddle of roe, stewed cherries and cucumber salad, courses which the Emperor likes to eat wholesale. Having chipped the tender meat with his knife-fork, he mixes it with the sweets, potatoes, and greens into a hotch-potch, and, for dessert, he had biscuit pudding with chocolate sauce; is there anything better in the wide, wide world?

WARNS AGAINST BOLSHEVIST EVIL SPREADING IN U.S.

Chamber of Commerce to Hear Noted Canadian Explorer at Luncheon

L. O. Armstrong, noted Canadian lecturer and explorer, will address a noon luncheon meeting of the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce Friday in the Penn-Harris Hotel.

Mr. Armstrong is touring the country under the auspices of the Bureau of Public Instruction, Washington. He originally was secured by the American Red Cross, to deliver a series of lectures during the war, but when the growing seriousness of the Bolshevist menace necessitated a campaign of public education to offset its sinister influence, Mr. Armstrong's services as a lecturer were secured by the Department of Public Instruction.

Mr. Armstrong has had wide experience as a traveler and explorer, and his career of laying out and planning towns and cities of Canada have brought him into direct contact with problems of social and political unrest. He saw the inception of Bolsheviki ideas in the Western Continent, and has carefully studied the spread of the pernicious doctrine which is arraying itself against civilization.

Chamber of Commerce officials feel that a discussion of the new doctrine of Bolshevism is equally important at this time and therefore are co-operating with the Department of Public Instruction in securing Mr. Armstrong to go into the subject exhaustively at the luncheon meeting Friday.
