"The New Bread"

T'was three o'clock in the afternoon, Of a Grocer's quietest day, The clerks had nothing much to do
But loaf around and play.

But soon a stir of business fills the air,
And gradually the clock moves around to "IV," The phone rings, the mothers call for "supper things,"
School is out, so children fill the floor.

They come in one door, then They come in one door, then the other,
And shout the things they want to buy,
From frankfurts, sugar, eggs and butter
To pickles, cheese and apple pie!

And bread, the constant call for bread!
They all want bread, and be it truly said,
When pleasantly the clerks inquire, "What kind?"
The children shout, "The new bread, my mother said!"

"The 'new bread,' what kind is that?"
The clerk asks with a wink, "Why Gunzenhauser's—I can't say that,
But that's the way, I think."

It's "the new bread, the new bread"
From morning until night;
The ma's and pa's and childrem, too,
All think it out of sight.

The Model Bread, or Gunzen-hauser's, Are names they can't quite see,

The delicious stuff it's made of, though,
On that they all agree.
