THIS WAR WORKER GETS HELPFUL AID

Mrs. Sara Hall, 6707 Woodland Ave., Philadelphia, tells of the relief that came to her through Tanlac. "I suffered from stomach trouble, gastritis and diabetes. My appetite would be awful, then I wouldn't have anything for days. Gas would form at a terrific pace whether I wouldn't eat or not. I soon began to look wan and thin like a shadow. I was in a sorry plight with little hope of ever being well again. I heard about Tanlac and my son had used three or four bottles with good results. I bought some and gradually improved after the first few doses. Later my recovery was quite rapid. I couldn't sleep at all until I took Tanlac." Tanlac is sold here at Gorgas' drug store.

ALEXANDER BLAMES ALLIES FOR DEATH OF TWO BROTHERS

Former Grand Duke Says Reds Were Made Bold by Semi-Recognition of Bolsheviks Through Invitations to Attend Meeting at Prinkipos Island; Royalty Fades

Paris, April 8.—"I am not here as a grand duke," said former Grand Duke Alexander, of Russia, to the Associated Press. "I know very well each thing does not exist any longer. I am of the opinion, however, there always will be an aristocracy in the world—if not that of birth, then of intellect and education—the aristocracy of gentlemen."

The former grand duke spoke feelingly, with apparent effort to repress his emotion, of the execution of his two brothers in Petrograd when they were led out from Peter and Paul fortress and shot down without a shadow of a doubt, and I do not dare to shatter her last illusions."

The Bolsheviks would never have dared to do this unless strengthened by the semi-recognition afforded them by the proposal to meet the delegates of the Entente at Prinkipos Islands," he said. "I have given up all hopes of ever seeing my nephew, the emperor," he added. "When I left Crimea I still entertained some hope he might be alive, but now even that hope has died. There is only one member of the family who persists in clinging to the hope that he is alive—the Dowager Empress. She has made a vow not to leave Russia until the demise of her son is established beyond a shadow of a doubt, and I do not dare to shatter her last illusions."

Prince of Wales Stole Her From Doughboys For Five Dances at Coblenz

"The prince is a fine fellow—and when he sticks to the one-step—a dandy dancer." This is the opinion of the Prince of Wales expressed by Miss Elinor Whittemore, of Boston, who has just returned from Coblenz where she was serving with the Y. M. C. A. Although Miss Whittemore doesn't say so the heir to the British throne must have thought she was a pretty good dancer for sandwiched in five dances when he could get her away from the American doughboys.

BIRTHDAY CIGARS. To-morrow's my birthday and I shall get the usual very welcome box of cigars from my wife. "Welcome? Huh! I'll bet you throw them away?" "Not much I don't! I give them to my friends. They remember the horror, and later when I offer them a cigar that's really good they pass. I tell you, wife's gift is dozens of dollars in my pocket every year." From the Boston Transcript.

SIMS SECRETLY WENT TO EUROPE BEFORE THE WAR

Changed His Name and Put on Civilian Clothes For Trip

New York, April 8.—How Rear Admiral William S. Sims, accompanied by one aid, proceeded incognito into England under Navy Department orders issued him two weeks before the United States entered the war against Germany, was told the Associated Press by the Admiral on his return from overseas.

On March 24 or 25, 1917, the Admiral said, he was ordered to report "without delay" to the Secretary of the Navy. Upon his arrival there he was told that it "looked as though we shall go to war," and it was briefly explained that he was to go to Europe "to see the people on the other side" and reach an understanding as to how the United States best could co-operate with Allied sea forces in operations against Germany.

Don Civilian Clothes. Commander J. V. Babcock, aid to Admiral Sims at Newport, was chosen to accompany him, and both officers immediately laid aside their uniforms and donned civilian clothes.

Simultaneously they dropped their names and assumed others "more suitable to the occasion." The Admiral and his aid sailed from the port of New York, March 31, 1917, on the steamship New York, he said. No one on the vessel recognized them.

News of the declaration of war by the United States on April 6 reached them by the ship's wireless news service. It did not disturb them.

Entered Liverpool harbor on April 9 in a thick mist, the steamer struck a mine and a hole was blown in one of her forward compartments, but the Admiral and his aid were "not especially disturbed" by that, either.

They went ashore unnoticed, "like anybody else." A special train was waiting in the Liverpool railroad yards, however, with Admiral Hope aboard, representing the British Admiralty.

They arrived in London on April 10, both Admiral Sims and Commander Babcock still wearing their civilian clothes. They went at once to the Admiralty offices, where Admiral Sims went into conference immediately with Admiral Jellicoe.

On April 13, at a luncheon in London, the United States Ambassador made the first formal announcement that Admiral Sims had arrived in the country.

HITCHCOCK AND LENROOT DISCUSS NATIONS LEAGUE

Former Declares It to Be Great Compromise to End War

New York, April 8.—Acceptance of the League of Nations covenant as a "great compromise of nations willing to unite to end war" and its rejection unless it meets the requirements of "that somewhat old-fashioned idea of America first," were the pleas of two United States Senators in a joint discussion before the Economic Club here last night.

Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, was the advocate of the covenant in virtually its present form. Senator Lenroot, of Wisconsin, advocated the "America first" idea.

Present Plan or None. Senator Hitchcock declared that persons who object to the present league plan should be placed in the same class with those who believe in no league.

"It is not just what we want," he said. "It is not what England wanted, or France or Japan. It is a compromise."

Senator Lenroot confined his address to the original draft of the covenant, explaining that he wished to "show how well-grounded was the action of the thirty-seven Senators who signed the round robin against the original covenant."

Answering Senator Hitchcock's assertion that it was necessary to accept the covenant unamended or to reject it altogether, Senator Lenroot asserted it was "peculiar that neutrals can be asked to suggest amendments, but that neither the Senate nor the people of the United States have been asked to suggest changes."

"I hope the treaty, when completed, will be in such form that I can vote for it," he concluded, "but I will not be coerced to vote for it if I believe its provisions are disastrous to the United States."

Thin, Weak Folks Need Blood-Iron Phosphate. If you are thin, weak and emaciated and lack strength, energy, vigor and endurance; if you have that worn out, all gone, tired feeling, the chances are that it is because your nerves need phosphate and your blood needs iron. Either phosphate or iron by itself is insufficient, but when they are supplied at the same time, for this purpose pure Blood-Iron Phosphate is unequalled.

A 5-grain tablet taken at meal times three times daily restores nervous energy, enriches the blood and helps you to put on pounds of good stay-the-flesh in a manner that is little short of marvelous. Get enough pure Blood-Iron Phosphate from Gorgas or any other good druggist for a three weeks' treatment—it costs only $1.50—50 cents a week—and take as directed.

If at the end of three weeks you haven't gained several pounds in weight and don't feel stronger and better than you have for months; if your eyes aren't brighter and your nerves steeper; if you don't sleep better, and your vim, vigor and vitality aren't more than doubled, you can have your money back for the asking and Blood-Iron Phosphate will cost you nothing.

PADEREWSKI IS REASSURED

Premier of Poland Feels Better After Meeting the Allied Delegates

Paris, April 8.—After conferences yesterday with Premier Clemenceau, Foreign Minister Pichon and Colonel House, Jan Ignace Paderewski, the Premier of Poland, told the Associated Press that he was somewhat reassured about Marshal Foch's agreement concerning the moving of troops through Danzig.

"Our information throughout Poland," said M. Paderewski, "was based largely on the German version of the arrangement made at Spa; consequently the Poles regarded it as a surrender to the German terms. As the matter has been explained to me by the Entente officials, it looks very different, of course."

Replying to an inquiry as to whether he felt that the principle of the right to land Polish troops at Danzig had been maintained, Paderewski said:

"We are uncertain still and not satisfied with the status of the negotiations concerning Danzig. If Poland is not given Danzig, the war is lost."

Asked if the neutralization of Danzig would be satisfactory to Poland, Paderewski replied emphatically in the negative. "We have seen how the neutralization of Danzig works. The whole world knows what a failure that was in the past."

Governor Sproul Advises The Buying of Coal Now

April 3rd. Hon. Wm. C. Sproul issued a statement declaring "that the action of the producer in announcing a gradual increase of ten cents per ton beginning May 1 is justified."

The Governor Advises: "My feeling is that everyone who can do so should lay in Coal now, get the present prices for themselves and stimulate production to keep our miners employed and assure against a shortage next winter".

The Wise Consumer orders now and takes a fair share of his year's coal supply under existing price conditions; he provides himself against a recurrence of the horrible conditions of two years ago. If widespread labor troubles arise at the coal mines during cold weather, who can measure the value of the coal already in the cellar.
