

RED TAPE CUT ON BRIDGE WORK

Senator Smith's Bill Would Open Way For Economical Construction

Senator Smith, Dauphin, introduced a bill in the Senate to-day which makes it possible for contractors to submit specifications and prices for county bridges, other than the ones originally advertised for by the county commissioners. Thus, should bids for a steel bridge be advertised for, concrete firms might submit bids for a concrete structure, which the commissioners would be authorized to accept, if in their opinion it was the better of the two.

The Eyre bill authorizing the Governor to appoint volunteer state police, and directed against Bolshevism and like activities, passed the Senate finally on a 26-3 vote. The measure now goes to the House for its concurrence.

Senator Crow, Fayette, introduced an amendment to the non-partisan act providing that the non-partisan ballot shall be printed upon the regular party ballots. All ballots cast for non-partisan candidates upon the party ballots are to be counted as though cast upon the regular non-partisan ballot.

Senator Daik, Philadelphia, introduced a bill providing for the licensure of ticket brokers by the Auditor General at a yearly fee of $100. A bill prohibiting the use of tractor engines and vehicles weighing more than fourteen tons upon state highways, was introduced by Senator Eyre, Chester.

The Senate adjourned until 9 o'clock Monday evening, April 21.

Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use. One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

WOOLWORTH DEATH RECALLS HISTORY

Story of How He Accumulated His First $1,000—Project to Start Five-cent Store Here Seemed Vague to Capital City

The death of Frank W. Woolworth yesterday brought to the recollection of many Harrisburgers the early efforts of this remarkable man, whose first successes were identified with the store which he established here far back in the month of July, 1879. Mr. Woolworth was little acquainted in Harrisburg and his project of setting up a "five-cent" store seemed indeed vague to most persons of the Capital City.

The success extraordinary, business and career of this enterprising man began only a few years previous to that date and the narrative of what he did before reaching Harrisburg is well worth reading. Always a reticent man, Mr. Woolworth eventually gave a good, concise story of himself to Philip R. Dillon who published it in the New York World under the heading "My First $1,000." The article was timely, for at this time, 1912, Mr. Woolworth was involved in spending $12,000,000 in erecting the colossal Woolworth building which fronts Broadway and City Hall Park, and is now a landmark of America. To Dillon the famous merchant explained:

"I was born and brought up on my father's farm, at Rodman, Jefferson county, N. Y., in 1852, and lived there until I was twenty-one years old. I went to the district school in winters, and later I went two terms to a business college in Watertown, N. Y. The education I got in that business college did me more good than any classical college training I might have got.

"When I finished the two terms in business college I said to a bank cashier: 'I am fitted to keep the books of the largest concern on earth.' He warned me against conceit. He told me I had only learned the theory and that I would have to learn it all over in practice. He was right.

"In March 1873, when I was twenty-one, I commenced as errand boy with the dry goods firm of Auggsberg & Moore—afterwards Moore & Smith—in Watertown, N. Y. Yes, I had wasted time. I was pretty odd for an errand boy. Salary? I worked for nothing. "The head of the firm told me that I ought to pay him tuition during the first six months I was working for teaching me the business. However, we compromised. I agreed to work three months for nothing, and then, if I succeeded, I would get $3.50 a week for the next three months. When I began I had $50 in cash, which I had accumulated by doing odd jobs outside of my farm work. "I had to open the store at 7 a. m. and remain each night until 10 p. m. There was no work too mean or

MAKING READY FOR RETURN OF IRON DIVISION

Adjutant General Beary Secures War Department's Fullest Co-operation

Philadelphia, April 9.—Plans for the debarcation of the Twenty-eighth Division at the port of Philadelphia, decided upon by the War Department, are rapidly being perfected, it was disclosed today after a conference between Adjutant General Frank D. Beary, of Pennsylvania, and Colonel McAndrews, of the Division of Operations of the general staff.

No change is contemplated in the program of landing the One Hundred and Eighth Field Artillery and the One Hundred and Ninth and One Hundred and Tenth Infantry at Philadelphia, and every effort will be made to parade the full division in Philadelphia following its inspection at Camp Dix. Both General Beary and Colonel McAndrews indicated today the three regiments from Philadelphia and vicinity would parade in the city and as many more of the real Pennsylvania units will take part in the celebration as can be included without seriously affecting the War Department's demobilization arrangements.

General Beary Satisfied It is the plan of the War Department to have the Twenty-eighth Division at New York and send the troops on to Camp Dix for the divisional inspection. As the division during the last six months has been used in the training of replacement troops from various sections of the country, it is understood some of these will be demobilized if they desire within forty-eight hours after their arrival at Camp Dix. General March, chief of staff, has recently ruled that soldiers shall not be held in camp against their will for parades, but in the matter of the Twenty-eighth, it has been indicated the Pennsylvania units will be persuaded to go to Philadelphia for the welcome home.

General Beary left Washington for Harrisburg late yesterday pleased with the developments. He said he left he intended shortly to get more details regarding the sailing arrangements, but would be writing by mail, indicating his understanding with War Department officials was so complete another trip to Washington probably would be unnecessary. "General Beary called at the War Department," said Colonel McAndrews "to discuss some of the details of the return of the Twenty-eighth, and he learned that no changes had been made in the program virtually agreed upon a week ago when he and J. J. Jarden Guenther, secretary of the welcome home committee, came to Washington to present Philadelphia's case. "The One Hundred and Eighth Field Artillery, and the One Hundred and Ninth and One Hundred and Tenth of Infantry, the Philadelphia units, surely will be landed and permitted to parade in Philadelphia. "It is General Beary's intention to submit some point for further consideration to the War Department regarding the time of sailing of a few additional units of the Twenty-eighth Division. This he will do by letter as soon as he returns. "While every consideration will be given to any additional question regarding the units of the division, we are unable to say at this time what can be done beyond the present arrangement, as everything must be done to prevent increased congestion at the port of New York. "Besides any plans for changes in sailing dates and likely to disarrange the entire embarkation and debarcation arrangement of the War Department. It must be remembered that the department is receiving hundreds of such requests and it would be impossible to grant them all. "General Beary has been entirely reasonable in all the requests he has made which naturally adds to our desire to go as we can in meeting his desires as well as the desires of Philadelphia. Both he and Mr. Guenther have shown a thorough appreciation of the situation."

Beary Picks Him to Command the Reorganized Body

Philadelphia, April 9.—Adjutant General Beary announced in Washington, according to a message received here, that Brigadier General William G. Price, Jr., commander of the Fifty-third artillery brigade, Twenty-eighth division, has been invited to become the head of the reorganized Pennsylvania National Guard. The invitation is contained in a letter now on its way to General Price in France. General Beary said he believed General Price would accept and that his acceptance would be received by Governor Sprout in time for the Governor to place the nomination before the present Legislature.

Positive assurance came from Washington yesterday that three regiments of the Twenty-eighth division would land in Philadelphia upon their return from France.

Ex-Governor Whitman to Head Campaign to Head Campaign For Salvation Army

New York, April 9.—Charles S. Whitman, former Governor of the state of New York, has accepted the invitation extended by Commander Evangeline Booth to become national chairman of the Salvation Army home service fund campaign, through which the Salvation Army hopes to raise $13,000,000, which will be devoted to the care of the poor and unfortunate in the United States.
