

HID IN JUNGLES DURING THE WAR

German Army Officer Has Come Back to Civilization

Sydney, Australia, April 10.—Konrad Detzler, a German engineer who had been hiding in the New Guinea jungle four years or since the beginning of the war, has come back to civilization and now is in an internment camp in Australia. Detzler's story is on a par with other romantic incidents of the war as it affected the South Sea.

Detzler holds a captain's commission. When the war began he was surveying the boundary line between the then Kaiser Wilhelmland, or German New Guinea, and Papua, or British New Guinea. He de-camped into the bush. This was a risky act, for the bushmen prefer human flesh above all other kinds. When an Australian force occupied Kaiser Wilhelmland, Detzler was overlooked.

For more than four years Detzler lived in the bush near Mismis. He had a shotgun but it was not long before he ran out of cartridges. Thereafter he lived on yams, taro and kau (a variety of sweet potato) in common with the natives, and upon birds and animals which he caught by means of snares.

Several times the Australians searched for him but Detzler managed to elude them. He might have stayed indefinitely in the jungle, but missionaries told the Papuans of the armistice and they in turn told him. Thereupon he surrendered to the nearest Australian officer. While living throughout the war at Mismis, Detzler wore only a lava (native kilt). The result is that he is almost as brown as a Papuan. He now wears a German uniform.

GERMAN TARIFFS IN PEACE TREATY

Provision Is Made For Most Favored Nation Treatment

Paris, April 10.—Provision for the most favored nation treatment in the German customs system for the allied and associated countries, and a single tariff, and no tariff discriminations based on the flag of the vessels in which goods are transported, or the route of importation or exportation, will be incorporated in the peace treaty with Germany, according to the present provisional agreement. The restriction is to be enforced for five years after the conclusion of peace and it will probably include the provision that the tariffs in force upon imports from the associated countries during that period shall be based on the most favored nations schedules of 1914.

The obligation to maintain under a single tariff the 1914 schedules will be specified only for a limited period, since there is a fairly general realization that Germany will be able financially to raise the maximum of reparation payments and limit or exclude unnecessary imports only by the imposition of higher customs rates. And the proposal is under consideration to give Germany, after the period which will be required for the study and revision of existing tariffs, absolute freedom to increase all her duties.

The economic problems of Alsace-Lorraine and German Poland, the industries of which have heretofore been completely shut out of the German empire and access to the German markets, will probably be given consideration by a provision permitting them freedom of trade with Germany during the period of transition and readjustment, until it is possible for them to build up new markets.

Such a solution was found absolutely essential for certain industries, like cotton manufactures and the wines of Alsace-Lorraine, for which no present market exists outside of Germany. The conference experts, who agreed upon this solution, believe this arrangement to be equally advantageous and acceptable to Germany.

The problem of the experts in formulating the conditions under which Germany will be permitted to re-establish commercial relations with the rest of the world has been most complicated and intricate, since, in addition to providing for equality of trade relations and prevention of discriminations against the present opponents of Germany, it has been necessary to consider that Germany's ability to pay reparations is largely contingent upon the absence of hampering restrictions upon the development of home industries and an outlet for foreign trade.

It has been the endeavor in the consideration of the problem to cause as little loss as possible to the trade relations created before the war by virtue of special arrangements and to allow Germany freedom of tariff regulation so far as is compatible with the necessities of reparation.
