$30 Rental Due From Trust Company Forgotten

County Controller Henry W. Gough today advised the County Commissioners that two public service companies that have special privilege concessions in the use of county bridges and the Commonwealth Trust Company, which has a rear entrance to its Market street building, facilitated by the passageway along the east side of the courthouse, have not paid rentals due the county for several years. He urged the county heads to send bills and collect the money.

PRESIDENT WILSON HAMMERS AHEAD

entente will be willing to deliver food under such conditions. Much blame on Emperor. The agreement on responsibilities for the war is understood to have been a compromise between divided reports presented by the commission of which Secretary Lansing is chairman. There was a practical agreement on the general responsibility of the German emperor for bringing on the war, but division occurred on whether it was feasible to bring him to justice before an international tribunal.

The French and British view favored a tribunal, but the American view, it is understood, favored moral indictment without recourse to prosecution, owing to the lack of an international law as a basis for trial before an international court.

Belgium, on which the war fell first and heaviest, is reported to have taken a view much similar to that of the United States, while Japan and Italy were partially in accord with the American view.

Method of Procedure. It was owing to these divergent viewpoints that the council devised a new plan, whereby one of the allied nations, probably Belgium, would initiate prosecution against the emperor and other responsible for the breach of treaties, the invasion of territory and the destruction directed against this country, and leading to a more general spread of the war. The exact nature of the agreement is not disclosed, the foregoing is believed to cover the main lines.

The text as finally approved on reparations specifies that the enemy countries must admit responsibility and accept the blame for the war. The allied nations, and their citizens caused by the unjustifiable aggression. In view of the inability of the enemy countries fully to recompense these losses, the clause states, an inter-allied commission will assess the amount due on the basis of thirty years, beginning May 1, 1921, with an initial payment of $5,000,000,000.

Germany is to bear the entire cost of the commission and staff during the thirty years of operations. The maintenance of the allied troops in the occupied regions, and the security priority is for the payment of food relief furnished to Germany.

Germany is to be inviolable. President Wilson once proclaimed our frontiers those of humanity itself. They must, then, be made inviolable.

There will be no diminishment in the intellectual productivity of France, President Poincare declared today at a service at the Sorbonne in honor of French writers killed in the war. German Liners on Way Over With 5,000 Yankees. Washington, April 10.—Three of the twelve German liners allocated to the United States for troop transport service have left Brest with approximately five thousand officers and men of the American Expeditionary Forces.

The Patricia, the first to sail, is due at Boston April 20; the Graf Waldersee is due at New York April 22, and the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria is expected to reach the same port April 16. Several others of the twelve vessels now are loading troops at French ports and the entire fleet is expected to be in service within a short time. Upon the arrival of the ships at American ports they will undergo alterations to increase their troop-carrying capacity.

Concerning the Catholic teaching of transubstantiation, the speaker said that the arguments in its favor were not to be challenged. The doctrine set up against it, most of which had been set aside, he said, were not in accord with the spirit of Christ, and he quoted a number of scriptural texts to show that transubstantiation was clearly spoken of by Christ and instituted by Him as a means of salvation.

Doughboy "Chorus Girls," Who Gave Costumes to Ill-Clad Women of Recaptured French Town, Now Appearing in 27th Division's Show

When there were no Huns to chase the doughboys of the Twenty-seventh (New York) Division turned a dozen different ways for diversion. Some of them got busy and wrote the two-act musical comedy "Let's Beat It" while they were in Flanders and Picardy. The company was pretty well costumed and rehearsed fully, but when the Twenty-seventh returned to a French town held for four years, the doughboys found the women in sore need of clothes. The result was that the boys who impersonated women gave their costumes to the French women. These costumes were all recycled, however, when the Twenty-seventh returned and the boys are now giving their show at the Century theater in New York. This picture shows some of the Hun chasers, as chorus girls, rehearsing one of the ballet numbers.

BACK TO CATHOLIC FOLD HIGH CHURCHMAN'S PLEA

Philadelphia, April 10.—Ralph Adams Cram, a leading High Episcopal layman, of Boston, created something of a sensation when, in an address at the monthly luncheon of the Clerical Brotherhood, in the Church House, he advocated church unity on the basis of a return to the Roman Catholic fold. Mr. Cram, who has made a life study of Christian tenets, manifested a wonderful knowledge of the fine points of Catholic and Protestant Episcopal theology.

The address, which was probably the most radical of its kind ever heard here before a Protestant audience, was evidently in accord with the ritualistic branch of the Episcopal Church, which has for years been more and more favorable to Catholic doctrine, and which, it is rumored, is contemplating joining the Roman Catholic body through a special commission recently sent to Rome. The anti-ritualistic branch of the church was visibly opposed to the spirit of the address, though praising its profound theological value and scholarly treatment.

Divided Christian Churches. In the course of his remarks Mr. Cram showed the divided and scattered efforts of the Christian churches in trying to solve the great and perplexing questions facing the world in the present crisis of reconstruction. He then called attention to the doctrines of the Catholic Church, dwelling for a considerable time upon the sacraments of that body, which he insisted were indispensable in the preservation and practice of the Christian faith. He said that without a doubt the Anglican Church had to go back to the tenets of the middle ages, when church and State, hand in hand, insisted upon the indissolubility of the marriage tie and when it taught that the sacrifice of the Mass was the greatest and highest religious service, and that the forgiveness of sins in the sacrament of penance was essential to winning back the grace of God.

Congratulated by Bishop. Bishop Rhinelander, at the conclusion of Mr. Cram's address, congratulated him upon its spirit and said he was sure it was greatly admired by all the ministers, even by those who did not altogether agree with him in the final analysis of it. A few remarks were made at the conclusion of the banquet by Bishop Arthur Dunn, of British Honduras, whom Bishop Rhinelander introduced as the highest representative of the Episcopal Church in Central America. Bishop Dunn said that in his diocese, which covered 290,000 square miles, he had to minister to people of six foreign countries, with seven sets of laws. There were 150,000 Anglican members, the great majority of whom were West Indians, and 130,000 among the laboring classes. There were in his diocese, he said, a million untouched heathen population. He said he needed at least 20 more priests for mission work and made an earnest appeal for financial aid.

Heiress to Carnegie Millions and Her Fiance

At the launching of the steamship Strathnaver which she christened at the yards of the Downey Shipbuilding Company, Arlington, N. J., Miss Margaret Carnegie, daughter of Andrew Carnegie, and probably the least conspicuous of the heirs to great wealth, made her first real public appearance. She is seen in this photograph standing beside her fiance, Ensign Roswell Miller, U. S. N. The announcement of the engagement of the steel king's daughter was made in November but no date has been set for the wedding.

for expense in this or any of the other operations visited. The job was done in a hurry and when final adjustments are made large sums will have to be charged off as war costs. It was felt by the practical builders present here that Harrisburg could build the same type of houses far more cheaply and rent them far more reasonably than the government will be able to offer under these conditions.

A Beauty Spot. Yorkshipp Village will be one of the beauty spots of the United States when completed. And when the builders turn over the operation to the government it will be a town complete in every respect, from barber shop to church. The whole village is laid out with the idea of beauty and convenience combined. The streets are designed in large swinging curves and with the thought of giving every resident a short cut out to the shipyards and the center of town.

Chairman J. Horace McFarland expressed himself as delighted with the trip. "I believe that the interest of all those who attended has been greatly stimulated," said he. "We did not agree upon any program. That is a matter to be settled by discussion and investigation in Harrisburg, but I feel sure that when the committee gets together it will have a lot to talk about that it did not have previously, and I believe that the influence of our visit to these government developments at Yorkshipp Village and the development of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and embracing the best thought of modern town builders will be felt in all our deliberations."

HAPPY ROTARIANS HERE FOR CONFERENCE

Harrisburg, Reading and other clubs. President Hershey Welcomes. Howard C. Fry, district governor, opened the morning session of the conference. Following the lusty singing of a list score of songs, Dr. George Edward Hawes, pastor of the Market Square Presbyterian Church, offered the invocation. President Eli N. Hershey of the Harrisburg Club, delivered the address of welcome, and Harry S. Evans, member of the Philadelphia and Washington clubs, responded in the text.

Harold N. Rust, immediate past district governor of the Third District, Members of the Chester, Harrisburg, Lancaster, Milton, Philadelphia, Pottsville, Reading, Scranton, Shamokin, Sunbury, Wilkes-Barre, Williamsport, York, and York Springs clubs, responded in the text. Wallace of the Winnipeg, Canada club, brought greetings.

Announcements were made by William M. Robinson, secretary of the Harrisburg Club. It was announced that Rotarian John Barrett, director-general of the American Union, Washington, D. C., would address the afternoon meeting in place of the morning, whereupon the conference declared a recess.

At all sessions the Atlantic City delegation persisted in their advertising of the famous resort town. The personal delegation consisted of J. A. McNamee, chairman; M. B. Markland, H. F. Jones, Joseph Schwartz, J. H. Troeller, George Zipler, and David Moore, the Rev. Gregory Moran, Hubert Sömers, G. W. Meredith, Harry Evans, Fred A. Parker and C. P. Stine.

Boy Scouts as Messengers. Much comment was heard on the splendid work of the trim khaki-clad Boy Scouts who acted as messengers in the conference. Those on duty at the morning session were: Karl Moeslein, William H. German, Jr., William Maglachlan, Frank Foote, Theodore Selig, Malcolm Graeff, Leroy Conrad and Courtland Freubrun.

Noise Aplicity. While the Rotarians were waiting for luncheon at the Penn-Harris, minstrels standing on the lounge floor balcony led the crowd in the lobby, singing various ditties. Members of the Wilmington Club formed an aluminum band, using hand-made saxophones and other necessities in vogue at the time. Their music pierced to the roof of the hotel.

Finally, when the "mess call" was sounded, the hundreds of delegates rushed into the lounge room while the ladies went to the ballroom. Because of the enormous crowd many of the men were sent to the ladies' luncheon upstairs.

The lounge room was attractively decorated with the flags of the various Rotary clubs in attendance, including Frederico Alfonso Pezet, minister from Peru.

William I. Shaffer, Attorney General, and Dr. Charles A. Eaton, chaplain of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, were among those scheduled to speak at the session following the luncheon. Dr. Eaton's subject, as scheduled, was "Autocracy, Bolshevism or Democracy." The Bethlehem Steel Company band played a number of selections. At the ladies' luncheon, Mario Peruzzi, a member of the Wilkes-Barre Club, distributed as favors jars of club pastries. The ladies received as favors from the Harrisburg club corsage bouquets of sweetpeas. The decorations in the ballroom were the work of J. William Bowman and were designed in the art department of Bowman & Company.

Go Sightseeing. The ladies were as full of spirit as the men, singing songs and performing innumerable stunts. Mrs. Wilbur P. Harris sang. A feature was the splendid accompaniment of Miss Margaret Evelyn Essick. The ladies were on a sightseeing trip through the Capitol and other showspots of the city this afternoon.

The report of the committee on resolutions was scheduled to be brought up late this afternoon at the session to be held in the afternoon. The membership discussion of the following topics with leaders named was also scheduled:

"Promotion of Club Meetings," Edmund E. Read, Jr., president Camden Rotary Club; "Membership Classifications," Landis F. Miller, Esq., Essexville Rotary Club; "Promotion of Attendance at Club Meetings," Royal W. Weiler, president Allentown Rotary Club; "Education of Rotarians as to Individual Member, His Opportunity and Responsibility in Rotary," Alexander Armstrong, president Hagerstown Rotary Club.

The closing feature of this afternoon's session will be an address by President Selden L. Haynes, of the Wilkes-Barre Rotary Club, on "The Age of Principle."

A round table on "Work Among Boys" will be held this afternoon at the closing of the session. To-night a conference dinner with dancing and cards will be held with the ladies. An address will be delivered by John Poole, international president, and other speakers will be present.

Atlantic City sent a big delegation of boosters to the convention. They boosted hard for their home town and impressed it on everyone that Atlantic City is the only place where the next international convention ought to be held.

Atlantic City's plea for the next international convention followed. "Whereas, The Atlantic City Rotary Club has decided to extend an invitation to the Board of Directors of the International Association of Rotary Clubs to select Atlantic City as the site of the 1920 convention of International Rotary Club;

Whereas, Atlantic City possesses to an eminent degree all of the facilities essential to the economic and efficient elaboration of convention details, including commodious hotels having large and luxurious capacity, attractive and varied amusements, a railroad service unsurpassed by any city; and

Whereas, The month of June, with its balmy breezes from the southeast to the north, is cool and delightful to the temperate of the ocean permits of delightful bathing; and

Whereas, International Rotary has been holding its conventions recently in the West and Southern states; it would seem only fair and just that the 1920 convention should be held in the Atlantic coast, thereby giving to the eastern seaboard the renewed influence of Rotary that has come to where the various international conventions, and which said influence would do much to strengthen and promote Rotary principles in the East.

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved, That the delegates assembled in the conference of the Fifth District of International Rotary held at Harrisburg, Pa., April 10 and 11, 1919, strongly recommend to the International Board of Directors of Rotary that they should act favorably on the request of Atlantic City, that we will select Atlantic City as the place in which to hold the 1920 convention of Rotary and that we will recommend to our respective club members to do all in their power to bring to the Board of Directors of the International Association of Rotary Clubs."
