

NEW ELECTION BILL REVIEWED

Will Facilitate Elections and Simplify Many Matters Soon

What is expected to make it easier for Pennsylvania electors to vote for candidates on the nonpartisan ballot in primary elections, was presented by Senator William E. Crow yesterday. The bill was drawn in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. It is quite likely to be passed by the Legislature, say observers.

dictates names would appear on one ballot, which would be handed to every elector entitled to vote a partisan ticket. The voter who is not enrolled under any party would receive a separate nonpartisan ballot. The bill is weak in that it does not provide against some election boards possibly handing out a combined partisan and nonpartisan ballot and a separate nonpartisan ticket, making it easy to stuff the ballot box. Other amendments in the bill to the present nonpartisan law are applicable only to the judiciary. It is proposed to clarify the provision relative to a candidate in the primaries becoming the sole nominee at the November election. The amendment on this subject reads: "One-half of the total number of votes cast for such office at such primary shall be ascertained by taking the total number of votes cast for all candidates for such office and dividing such total votes of all such candidates by the number of persons each voter is entitled to vote for at such primary for such office and this quotient shall be divided by two, and any candidate who receives a greater number of votes than the result obtained by the above method of ascertainment shall have met the requirement herein before provided." The working of this plan could be taken by illustrating the situation in Allegheny county, where five Common Pleas Court judges are to be elects this fall. Each elector would vote for five candidates. Presuming that 10 candidates in the field would poll an aggregate of 400,000 votes, each candidate receiving 40,000 or more votes would be unopposed at the November election. The bill provides that in a case where a greater number of judicial candidates than there are vacancies to be filled receive more than one-half of the total vote cast, then the candidates equal to the number of vacancies to be filled, who receive the highest number of votes, would be the sole nominees. At the primary the present system of having the names of judicial candidates appear on the ballot alphabetically will be continued, but at the November election the names are to be arranged in accordance with the number of votes each received. The candidate with the highest vote would head the list of candidates, their position would be decided alphabetically. It is understood the legislative leaders have decided to pass the bill which permits any person entitled to vote at a general election to absent himself from his employment for two hours on the day of a general election for the purpose of voting without the loss of salary. If the employer does not designate the hours, the employe can make his own selection of two consecutive hours while the polls are open. All employees of municipalities are included under the terms of the bill. The penalty for violating the proposed law is a penalty of $50. The bill has passed the House. The bill proposes "general" elections, the proposed law could not apply to any but elections held in even-numbered years, when State and national candidates are elected. The Constitution terms the elections of odd-numbered years as "municipal." So far it has not been figured out how railroad men absent on their "runs" can be given two hours to vote.

PERSHING MAKES ADDRESS AT "Y"

Talks to Soldiers While on a Recent Tour Through Paris

Paris, April 10.—General Pershing, in a recent tour of Y. M. C. A. hostilities in Paris, stopped to address several hundred men he found in the lobby of the Hotel du Pavillon, much to the delight of the soldiers themselves, who declared afterwards that he had talked to them like a friend instead of a commanding officer. "I may not have the opportunity of meeting you boys again," he said to them. "I may not have the opportunity to meet your comrades in your units as you return to them, but I want you to carry back with you these messages. I appreciate the way you have fought. You have been true soldiers and brave men, and as an army officer, I want you to know that my hope is that you will return to America as clean, healthy and physically, as you came to France. The Y. M. C. A. and other organizations are making that possible by equipping places like this in which you now are. I know that you appreciate the Y. M. C. A. or this room would not be here. I want you to know that as commanding officer of the American forces, I appreciate the work that is being done by the Y. M. C. A., and I hope that when you return to your units you will carry back with you the message of that common appreciation—mine and your own." Although Paris is a "three-day leave area" into which four hundred officers and eight hundred enlisted men come daily, it is still considered somewhat of an experiment, and General Pershing showed a great deal of interest in seeing what accommodations and amusements were available for the soldier. Paris, one must remember, is not only the gayest city on earth, again, but it is the most expensive city right now, and but for the Y. M. C. A. and other agencies, the average soldier could not spend the night within her gates.

Unique Program at Grace M. E. Church

The Grace Church Alliance was recently organized for the purpose of developing the social, educational and spiritual life of the young people of Grace Church, and in order to secure effective co-operation of all the organizations engaged in young people's activities. Instead of having its monthly social meeting, elaborate preparations are being made for the "What's Up?" entertainment to be given this evening in the Sunday School room of the church. This program is most unique and varied. There will be stunts by the little folks--from the Primary and Kindergarten Departments--and by those not so young; there will be good music, vocal and instrumental, and music that is otherwise; there will be an orchestra, and a "would-be" orchestra.

Thieves Break Into Wood Street School

Thieves entered the Wood and Ann Street school building twice during the last few days, gaining entrance from the rear by taking out one of the window panes. They ransacked all the teachers' desks, and in one of them they found fifteen cigarettes, which one of the teachers had taken from the boys. These they smoked and threw the stumps all over the floor. It is thought that they got away with several buckets of coal, as both side doors were unlocked when the janitor arrived in the morning. Harry Killian, of Chester, is spending the week in town.
