

The Wonderful Stories of OZ

By L. Frank Baum

The Prisoners of the Queen.

Approaching the gateway of Emerald City the travelers found it guarded by two girls of the Army of Revolt, who opposed their entrance by drawing the knitting-needles from their hair and threatening to prod the first that came near.

But the Tin Woodman was not afraid. "At the worst they can but scratch my beautiful nickelplate," he said. "But there will be no 'worst,' for I think I can manage to frighten these absurd soldiers very easily. Follow me closely, all of you!"

Then, swinging his ax in a great circle to right and left before him, he advanced upon the gate, and the others followed him without hesitation.

The girls, who had expected no resistance whatever, were terrified by the sweep of the glittering ax and fled screaming into the city; so that our travelers passed the gates in safety and of the way and allowed them to advance without protest.

This action rendered the Scarecrow uneasy.

"I'm afraid we are walking into a trap," said he.

"Nonsense!" returned Nick Chopper, confidently; "the silly creatures are conquered already."

But the Scarecrow shook his head in a way that expressed doubt, and Tip said: "It's too easy, altogether. Look out for trouble ahead."

"I will," returned his Majesty. "Noopposed they reached the royal palace and marched up the marble steps,

"It's too easy, altogether."

which had once been thickly encrusted with emeralds but were now filled with tiny holes where the jewels had been ruthlessly torn from their settings by the Army of Revolt. And so far not a rebel barred their way.

Through the arched hallways and into the magnificent throne room marched the Tin Woodman and his followers, and here, when the green silken curtains fell behind them, they saw a curious sight.

Seated within the glittering throne was General Jinjur, with the Scarecrow's second-best crown upon her head, and the royal sceptre in her right hand. A box of caramels, from which she was eating, rested in her lap, and the girl seemed entirely at ease in her royal surroundings.

The Scarecrow stepped forward and confronted her, while the Tin Woodman leaned upon his ax and the others formed a half-circle back of his Majesty's person.

"How dare you sit in my throne?" demanded the Scarecrow, sternly eyeing the intruder. "Don't you know you are guilty of treason, and that there is a law against treason?"

"The throne belongs to whoever is able to take it," answered Jinjur, as she slowly ate another caramel. "I have taken it, as you see; so just now I am the Queen, and all who oppose me are guilty of treason, and must be punished by the law you have just mentioned."

This view of the case puzzled the Scarecrow.

"How is it friend Nick?" he asked, turning to the Tin Woodman.

"Why, when it comes to Law, I have nothing to say," answered that personage; "for laws were never meant to be understood, and it is foolish to make the attempt."

"Then what shall we do?" asked the Scarecrow, in dismay.

"Why don't you marry the Queen? And then you can both rule," suggested the Woggle-Bug.

Jinjur glared at the insect fiercely.

"Why don't you send her back to her mother, where she belongs?" asked Jack Pumpkinhead.

Jinjur frowned.

"Why don't you shut her up in a closet until she behaves herself, and promises to be good?" enquired Tip. Jinjur's lip curled scornfully.

"Or give her a good licking!" added the Saw-Horse.

"No," said the Tin Woodman, "we must treat the poor girl with gentleness. Let us give her all the jewels she can carry, and send her away happy and contented."

At this Queen Jinjur laughed aloud, and the next minute clapped her pretty hands together thrice, as for a signal.

"You are very absurd creatures," said she; "but I am tired of your nonsense and have no time to bother with you longer."

While the monarch and his friends listened in amazement to this impudent speech, a startling thing happened. The Tin Woodman's ax was snatched from his grasp by some person behind him, and he found himself disarmed and helpless. At the same instant a shout of laughter rang in the ears of the devoted band, and turning to see whence this came they found themselves surrounded by the Army of Revolt, the girls bearing in either hand their glittering knitting-needles. The entire throne room seemed to be filled with the rebels, and the Scarecrow and his comrades realized that they were prisoners.

"You see how foolish it is to oppose a woman's will," said Jinjur, gaily; "and this event only proves that I am more fit to rule the Emerald City than a Scarecrow. I bear you no ill will, I assure you; but lest you should prove troublesome to me in the future, I shall order you all to be destroyed. That is, all except the boy, who belongs to old Mombi and must be restored to her keeping. The rest of you are not human, and therefore it will not be wicked to demolish you. The Saw-Horse and the Pumpkinhead's body I will have chopped up for kindling-wood; and the pumpkin shall be made into tarts. The Scarecrow will do nicely to start a bonfire, and the tin man can be cut into small pieces and fed to the goats. As for this immense Woggle-Bug—"

"Highly Magnified, if you please!" interrupted the insect.

"I think I will ask the cook to make green-turtle soup of you," continued the Queen, reflectively.

The Woggle-Bug shuddered.

"Or, if that won't do, we might use you for a Hungarian goulash, stewed and highly spiced," she added, cruelly.

This program of extermination was so terrible that the prisoners looked upon one another in a panic of fear. The Scarecrow alone did not give way to despair. He stood quietly before the Queen and his brow was wrinkled in deep thought as he strove to find some means to escape.

While thus engaged he felt the straw within his breast move gently. At once his expression changed from sadness to joy, and raising his hand he quickly unbuttoned the front of his jacket.

This action did not pass unnoticed by the crowd of girls clustering about him, but none of them suspected what he was doing until a tiny grey mouse leaped from his bosom to the floor and scampered away between the feet of the Army of Revolt. Another mouse quickly followed; then another and another, in rapid succession. And suddenly such a scream of terror went up from the Army that it might easily have filled the stoutest heart with consternation. The flight that ensued turned to a stampede, and the stampede to a panic.

For while the startled mice rushed wildly about the room the Scarecrow had only time to note a whirl of skirts and a twinkling of feet as the girls disappeared from the palace—pushing and crowding one another in their mad efforts to escape.

The Queen, at the first alarm, stood up on the cushions of the throne and began to dance frantically upon her tip-toes. Then a mouse ran up the cushions, and with a terrified leap poor Jinjur shot clear over the head of the Scarecrow and escaped through an archway—never pausing in her wild career until she had reached the city gates.

So, in less time than I can explain, the throne room was deserted by all save the Scarecrow and his friends, and the Woggle-Bug heaved a deep sigh of relief as he exclaimed:

"Thank goodness, we are saved!"

"For a time, yes," answered the Tin Woodman. "But the enemy will soon return, I fear."

"Let us bar all the entrances to the palace!" said the Scarecrow. "Then we shall have time to think what is best to be done."

So all except Jack Pumpkinhead, who was still tied fast to the Saw-Horse, ran to the various entrances of the royal palace and closed the heavy doors, bolting and locking them securely. Then, knowing that the Army of Revolt could not batter down the barriers in several days, the adventurers gathered once more in the throne room for a council of war.

Next story: "The Scarecrow Takes Time to Think," in which the adventurers realize that they must escape from their palace-fortress to save Tin and the Woggle-Bug from starvation. Such an escape seems almost impossible, however, for Jinjur's army surrounds the palace. Then the Scarecrow determines to think out a way. Does he succeed? Read and find out. Next week's installment tells.

SIGNS TUNNEL BILL
Albany, N. Y., April 12.—The vehicular tunnel bill carrying an initial appropriation of $1,000,000 with which to begin the construction of the tunnel beneath the Hudson River which will connect New York and New Jersey, was signed late last night by Governor Sprout.

JERSEY LEGISLATORS ADJOURN
Trenton, N. J., April 12.—The New Jersey legislature adjourned sine die late last night. Governor Edge made an address in the Senate thanking the legislators for their work and congratulating them on the results accomplished.

USL

STORAGE BATTERY SERVICE
That Means Exactly What It Says

Every car owner should pay frequent attention to the battery—it provides the energy for the motor, and a poor battery means a poor running motor. Call on us for inspection, recharging, overhauling or re-plating—you'll get expert service at reasonable cost.

FREDERICK C. SEIBER
USL Battery Sales and Service
130-150 PAXTON STREET

USL

$1865 Delivered

AMERICAN

"The Balanced Six"

Balanced With the Precision of a Watchmaker

Indispensable on the track, balance is equally highly desirable in ordinary road driving. The New American Six is the car that is putting all this master skill of racing upon the road. It is the car of perfect balance—with its weight evenly distributed over the four wheels to the last fraction of a pound.

It is the car that cannot help but hold the road at the highest speed and on sharpest turns. It is the car whose every part takes up the driving strain exactly as intended. It is the car that has matched its rugged power with safety and economy.

Come to-day and see the advance models that are now showing for immediate delivery.

American Auto Company
Front and Forster St.
C. A. SLOUGH, Manager.

MOBIL and WHITE SEAL OIL FOR SALE

GARGOYLE
Mobil oils
A grade for each type of motor

We have both these famous brands of motor oil for sale in any quantity.

Fenders For Ford Cars

We have fenders for Ford Cars—extra heavy—that mean good quality for less money.

C. A. FAIR Carriage and Auto Works
East End Mulberry Street Bridge.

The Cleveland Tractor

WHAT DO YOU WANT—

A tractor that will do any kind of work—up steep hills, in orchards, in the mud, on the roads, plowing, harrowing, rolling, mowing, harvesting, belt work, towing—at an economical cost. Of course. And that tractor, brother, is the CLEVELAND. You positively can't do any better. Buy the RIGHT one first.

See us to-day for a Demonstration and Booklets.

HARRISBURG AUTO CO.
DISTRIBUTORS
Fourth and Kelker Sts. Harrisburg

NASH

QUICK AND ECONOMICAL TRANSPORTATION

THOSE who know best the caliber of the Nash organization and its past accomplishments are surest that any truck bearing the Nash nameplate is a sound commercial investment.

Morris & Company, The Standard Oil Company, The Palmolive Company and The American Steel Foundries are among the nationally-known concerns using Nash trucks.

Myers Motor Sales Co.
SALES & SERVICE
1210 Penn Street, Below Broad Street
Harrisburg, Pa.

NASH TRUCKS

One-Ton Chassis, $1650 Two-Ton Chassis, $2175 Nash Quad Chassis, $3250

which had once been thickly encrusted with emeralds but were now filled with tiny holes where the jewels had been ruthlessly torn from their settings by the Army of Revolt. And so far not a rebel barred their way.

Through the arched hallways and into the magnificent throne room marched the Tin Woodman and his followers, and here, when the green silken curtains fell behind them, they saw a curious sight.

Seated within the glittering throne was General Jinjur, with the Scarecrow's second-best crown upon her head, and the royal sceptre in her right hand. A box of caramels, from which she was eating, rested in her lap, and the girl seemed entirely at ease in her royal surroundings.

The Scarecrow stepped forward and confronted her, while the Tin Woodman leaned upon his ax and the others formed a half-circle back of his Majesty's person.

"How dare you sit in my throne?" demanded the Scarecrow, sternly eyeing the intruder. "Don't you know you are guilty of treason, and that there is a law against treason?"

"The throne belongs to whoever is able to take it," answered Jinjur, as she slowly ate another caramel. "I have taken it, as you see; so just now I am the Queen, and all who oppose me are guilty of treason, and must be punished by the law you have just mentioned."

This view of the case puzzled the Scarecrow.

"How is it friend Nick?" he asked, turning to the Tin Woodman.

"Why, when it comes to Law, I have nothing to say," answered that personage; "for laws were never meant to be understood, and it is foolish to make the attempt."

"Then what shall we do?" asked the Scarecrow, in dismay.

"Why don't you marry the Queen? And then you can both rule," suggested the Woggle-Bug.

Jinjur glared at the insect fiercely.

"Why don't you send her back to her mother, where she belongs?" asked Jack Pumpkinhead.

Jinjur frowned.

"Why don't you shut her up in a closet until she behaves herself, and promises to be good?" enquired Tip. Jinjur's lip curled scornfully.

"Or give her a good licking!" added the Saw-Horse.

"No," said the Tin Woodman, "we must treat the poor girl with gentleness. Let us give her all the jewels she can carry, and send her away happy and contented."

At this Queen Jinjur laughed aloud, and the next minute clapped her pretty hands together thrice, as for a signal.

"You are very absurd creatures," said she; "but I am tired of your nonsense and have no time to bother with you longer."

While the monarch and his friends listened in amazement to this impudent speech, a startling thing happened. The Tin Woodman's ax was snatched from his grasp by some person behind him, and he found himself disarmed and helpless. At the same instant a shout of laughter rang in the ears of the devoted band, and turning to see whence this came they found themselves surrounded by the Army of Revolt, the girls bearing in either hand their glittering knitting-needles. The entire throne room seemed to be filled with the rebels, and the Scarecrow and his comrades realized that they were prisoners.

"You see how foolish it is to oppose a woman's will," said Jinjur, gaily; "and this event only proves that I am more fit to rule the Emerald City than a Scarecrow. I bear you no ill will, I assure you; but lest you should prove troublesome to me in the future, I shall order you all to be destroyed. That is, all except the boy, who belongs to old Mombi and must be restored to her keeping. The rest of you are not human, and therefore it will not be wicked to demolish you. The Saw-Horse and the Pumpkinhead's body I will have chopped up for kindling-wood; and the pumpkin shall be made into tarts. The Scarecrow will do nicely to start a bonfire, and the tin man can be cut into small pieces and fed to the goats. As for this immense Woggle-Bug—"

"Highly Magnified, if you please!" interrupted the insect.

"I think I will ask the cook to make

BRISCOE

You Take Pride In Its Beauty And Joy In Its Economy

You feel a thrill of satisfied pride as you seat yourself in a Briscoe, for it is all that a car should be in appearance.

And your pleasure isn't spoiled, as you spin along, by the knowledge that a hungry motor is eating up gasoline at a rapid rate.

For the powerful Briscoe motor is almost unbelievably economical in fuel consumption. When you're "down to the last gallon," you've still got a mighty long way to go. For records of over thirty miles are not uncommon; and even the average, somewhat careless driver frequently goes well over twenty-five.

The Briscoe is a car that you will consider

$965
DELIVERED IN HARRISBURG
CASH OR DEFERRED PAYMENTS

M. BRENNER & SONS MOTOR CO.
Third and Hamilton Streets, Harrisburg, Pa.

because of its style. And it's a car that you must consider if you value a saving of many dollars in upkeep.

Touring and roadster models, $885 at the factory.

And don't forget—99% built in the great Briscoe plants, to Briscoe standards of quality.

We'll be glad to welcome you at the Show.

BELL PHONE 4945 DIAL PHONE 4441