

DESIGN RULES TO MAKE GOOD ARMY

Court Martial System is not For the Individual Soldier

Washington, April 18.—The system of military jurisdiction is designed to produce an efficient, dependable fighting army, not to do exact justice to individual soldiers, according to the views vigorously presented yesterday to the committee of the American Bar Association by army officers of field experience, including Major General Edwin F. Glenn, organizer and commander of the 3rd division and now again in command of Camp Sherman, in attaining that objective, the officers contended, the present machinery for enforcing military discipline had proved both efficient and fair, the final product of the system closely approximating justice to the individual in addition to producing what General Glenn described as the best disciplined army in France. Cases of courts martial sentences so excessive in the penalty awarded as to be ridiculous were freely admitted by the officers. Such sentences only served, General Glenn insisted, to prove that even in the early stage of the military legal proceedings, the action of the courts in no case being final, to prove that fairness was the general rule. Judge Gregory, chairman of the committee, and General Glenn engaged in considerable argument which brought out that the officer speaking both from his military experience and his special training in civil law as a graduate of the law school of the University of Minnesota, saw little in common between the purposes of civil justice and its military equivalent. Major Charles H. MacDonald, General Glenn's divisional judge advocate at Camp Sherman, but who is a temporary officer and before the war was counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, followed his chief and expressed the same views.

"When exact justice interferes with the building up of the army, exact justice must be sacrificed," Major MacDonald said.

Denies Alleged Misconduct of U. S. Missionaries

New York, April 18.—Dr. George T. Scott, speaking in behalf of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions denies that any of the missionaries representing the board in Persia had interfered in local affairs there as represented to the State Department. He said that instead of strife between Persians and Assyrians, as alleged, the Presbyterian missionaries had on the contrary sought to use their utmost efforts to allay troubles between the various races in Persia. He said that eight missionaries had died in taking care of refugees of various races driven from the district around Urumiah in northwestern Persia by the Turks and Kurds and others had suffered untold privation. One who had died was Dr. William A. Shedd, appointed acting United States consul at Urumiah.

NORTHCLEFFE ATTACKS GEORGE

His Newspapers Accuses British Premier of Failing in Promises

London, April 18.—(By the Associated Press)—Open warfare between David Lloyd George, the British prime minister, and Lord Northcliffe, England's foremost publisher, is to the political world the most interesting result of the premier's flying visit to London from the Paris peace conference and his speech before the Council of Four yesterday. Lord Northcliffe and Baron Beaverbrook who served as the official "eye witness" for the Canadian government at the front in 1915 and later became chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and minister of information, always have been credited with being the powers behind the scenes who brought about the retirement of Premier Asquith and the succession of Lloyd George as head of the cabinet. Northcliffe's newspapers gave Lloyd George general support throughout his management of the war, but when the general election followed the armistice they shifted somewhat to the attitude of friendly critics. Only during the latest developments of the peace conference have they become sharply critical of Mr. Lloyd George's leadership.

The premier in his speech in the House of Commons credited this fact to the "disease of vanity," and pointedly hinted that it was due to disappointment on Lord Northcliffe's part that he had not been appointed on the peace delegation. The premier referred to the peace terms Lord Northcliffe commented in the Times before the peace conference began, saying:

"I am prepared to make some allowance when a man is laboring under a keen sense of disappointment. However unjustified and however ridiculous the expectations may be, under those circumstances he is bound to be apt to think the world is badly run."

The Times today replied with a slashing attack, accusing Lloyd George of overlooking reports prepared by experts.

"It is currently said by his colleagues in Paris," the Times declares, "that while he is able to read and write he does neither." After saying that the record of the Times during the war speaks for itself the newspaper apparently threatens a future attack saying "some points of his war records require to be more fully known."

Investigate Books of Black Diamond Oil Co., Now Bankrupt

Chicago, April 18.—An investigation into the affairs of the Black Diamond Oil Company, capitalized for $25,000,000, was begun yesterday by Federal Judge Landis. A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Washington, D. C., by officials of the company last December.

It is asserted that $70,000 assets are in the hands of the Rev. Hartley O. Chambers and A. D. O'Neill, of Chicago.

Attorney J. Korvis, representing the Washington trustee, said he was attempting to trace assets valued at between $20,000,000 and $40,000,000, which were scheduled in a sworn statement to the Secretary of State of Illinois in an application for a "blue sky license."

Arthur C. McLaughry, treasurer of the company, testified he had received $5,000 from sales of stock.

New York Gunmen Admit Guilt; Given Sentences

Philadelphia, April 18.—Five of the alleged gunmen from New York, arrested in connection with the killing of a policeman on the Fifth ward election row in September, 1917, yesterday changed their pleas of not guilty to guilty on the charge of manslaughter. Louis Brunelli, Anthony Colangelo and Nicholas Cononico were sentenced to two years each and Nicholas Ritt and Vincenzo Leone to 23 months each. All of the sentences date from the commitments.

British Used 4,000,000 Rounds of Artillery Ammunition in Somme

Washington, April 18.—During the battle of the Somme in 1916, the British army used four million rounds of artillery ammunition, according to a statistical announcement published by the War Department. This is the largest number of shells used in any single engagement so far as records show. For a single hour, however, the American forces in the battle of the St. Mihiel salient in 1918 far surpassed this record, using 1,098,217 shells in four hours.

APPOINTMENTS MAKE BUSY DAY

President Wilson Held Conference with Chinese Peace Delegation

Paris, April 18.—With no meeting of the Council of Four yesterday, President Wilson devoted the entire day to a series of appointments, beginning at ten o'clock with the Chinese delegation to the peace conference and ending after five o'clock with Frank P. Walsh, a member of the delegation sent by Irish societies in America to plead the cause of Ireland.

The program for the day had been planned carefully, the President receiving some one every fifteen minutes. Among those received were a French delegation which wanted to see the President about the left bank of the Rhine; the foreign minister of Switzerland; a delegate from Chaided, two American women labor leaders, the Patriarch of Constantinople, Premier Briatano, of Rumania, Premier Pachitch, of Serbia, the Portuguese minister of foreign affairs, and many others who desired to discuss the problems of their countries.
