PENN STATE TO HAVE WORLD'S GREATEST SPORT PLANT; TROUT THIEVES GET 640 DAYS

Finest Athletic Plant in World For Penn State

College officials consider wholesome, open-air sport as the prime aid to keeping America fit is proved by the announcement to-day that this institution will establish an eighty-acre playground, where twelve football games can be played simultaneously, with forty tennis matches going full tilt, four soccer games, two la crosse and the same number of hockey encounters, ten basketball contests, half a dozen volleyball battles and a hundred or more men cavorting about a cinder track with several groups of solfmore men cavorting about a cinder track, with several groups of golfers in the background.

Rumor is that a wealthy alumnus Rumor is that a weatthy atumnus will also equip a monster steel and concrete building, big enough to stage a football game, and also a vast swimming pool. Penn's weekly newspaper, The Collegian, is authority for the statement that the trustees have already set aside the land for this project and that work will begin the present summer. It continues:

begin the present summer. It continues:

"Under the direction of Hugo Bezdek, head of the college department of physical education, every student who is physically able is actively engaged in one or more forms of athletic sport. The plan has worked so well that the demand for more room is imperative. The college, prominent graduates and the athletic association are combining to make over the eighty acres into the most complete play-ground of its kind in the country.

"Athletics for every student has been the slogan of Bezdek, former football coach at the University of Oregon, and it is largely due to his untiring efforts that the plans are about to be realized. His theory last fall developed several football stars at Penn State who otherwise would never have been heard of in that capacity, and his plan has worked equally well during the winter. The scheduled location of the Center county college makes the environment such that it is a simple matter to get every student interested in some athletic sport.

"There are chances that work on the athletic building will be started by fall. The trustees of the college have already accepted plans offered for their action by a prominent graduate, and it is intimated that he will foot the bill.

"The building will be 400 feet long, 100 feet wide and thirty feet to the first beams. The front of the building will be two stories in height and will include the offices of the department and others, such offices as may be necessary.

"Immediately behind the offices will be the gymnasium. There will be a permanent wooden floor, large enough for the laying out of three basketball courts and surrounded by a dirt track, one side of which will be a 100-yard straightaway. The rest of the floor space will be of dirt and will be divided by means of curtains into baseball cages and special sections for track, football and other sports, thus enabling practice to be held indoors when the weather will not permit out-of-floors work.

Every One Can Have His Own Trout Pend," Says Selinsgrove Sport

Beaver Springs, April 18.— Francis H. Gemberling, Selins-grove, is a true disciple of Izaak Walton. The lure of the stream calls him out so frequently that he has decided to bring a fishing place right up to the door. With this in mind he plans to build an artificial lake in the aqueduct hol-how, three miles south of Selins-grove.

how, three miles south of Selinsgrove.

There is a natural reservoir and a stream in sight of the aqueduct, where Middle Creek flows into the Susquehanna river. Penns Creek also empties into the Suequehanna river at the same point. Middle Creek emptied into the Susquehanna at this point centuries before Penns Creek was diverted to this point, as it formerly emptied into the Susquehanna just north of Selinsgrove, until the Pennsylvania Canal was built.

The new lake will be used for fishing, and is also planned as the nucleus of a summer resort.

only during this restricted period of navigation.

Reykjavik is on the southwestern coast of Iceland about two-thirds of the way on the North Atlantic voyage between Port Nelson and Liverpotol. Much of the wheat bound for Europe could be shipped out of Canada to Iceland before Hudson Bay freezes. It could then be transhipped to Europe at leisure as Reykjavik is an open port for the greater part of the year.

The plan, as announced is greatly interesting western Canada grain growers. The Hudson Bay road, which is a branch of the Canadian National Railway system, will extend from The Pas in Manitoba to Port Nelson. It will be 424 miles long and all but about 80 miles of track is laid. The last link, it is expected, will be completed this summer.

The East Asiastic Company, according to advices from Denmark, is planning to build storage elevators at Reykjavik in Iceland and establish a line of steamships between that town and Port Nelson, the railway terminus on the western shores of Hudson Bay.

The Hudson Bay railway will shorten the railway haul of grain from western Canada to Europe by 1,000 miles, will materially reduct transportation costs and increase the profits of the farmers. ## TROUT LAW CRIMINALS GET 640 DAY PRISON SENTENCE

The fourth day of trout fishing showed no record in decimating the sparklers, for the weather has been too unsettled, to bring out the multitude of stream whippers. From State Police headquarters, however, it is evident that a big number of daring citizens took a chance at breaking in before the season opened and two men at Wilkes-Barre certainly got a lesson. Trailed down by a clever State cop they were nabbed with the goods and taken to court. It was learned this morning that neither could pay his fine and each was sentenced to $40 days in prison, as the law calls for one day for each dollar fine, and the total fine was in each instance $40. The State Police are determined to carry out the law and have no sympathy with law-breakers. The State has been generous in stocking the streams and so long as the police department is supported as now, these criminals will get all that is coming.
