TYRONE MOTOR EXPRESS ROUTE Freight and Express Delivery Will Be Improved by Establishment of New System

HELP TOWN'S BUSINESS Elimination of Tyrone Transfer Has Seriously Affected the Freight Movement

Tyrone, Pa., April 19.—Tyrone business men are interested in the establishment of a motor express route, having Tyrone as the terminus, and covering the country enroute to Huntingdon and State College. This promises great things for these localities. The rail route to State College is long and slow, and from three and four days are consumed in the delivery of freight and express by track. With this motor express, deliveries can be made from Tyrone in less than half a day. The elimination of the Tyrone Transfer has made the local freight movement to the points east of Tyrone, towards Huntingdon, one of the slowest in the State, although the distance is only twenty miles. The establishment of a motor route would make these places daily shoppers in Tyrone. A hearing for the establishment of this motor express route was held at Harrisburg last week. When it was held in Tyrone this week of the elevation to captaincy of Joseph A. Dickson, who is now in France. This is a merited promotion. For one of the best of the Young Guard before he was eighteen years of age, and has been in the military game ever since. He was commissioned a second lieutenant, and on the outbreak of the war with Germany, he was given a first lieutenantcy, and assigned to the 28th Infantry, of the Twenty-eighth Division. Few promotions have been made since the signing of the armistice, and Dickson is a product of the military regime, and had no college or training camp experience. Trinity Episcopal Church, which has had under contemplation the erection of a new church, during the summer and were arranging plans for the building, when it was announced that the building would be completed by George E. Wilson, as a memorial for his mother, Mrs. Henrietta C. Wilson, who was a charter member of the church. Last October, while in the service of the military, he determined on a War Chest to take care of all war demands and activities. Whereas the calculation was $25,000 to be obtained, almost $20,000 was subscribed to the War Chest well filled. Almost 90 per cent of the subscription were for the purchase of the building. The directors of the church realized that the money could be accumulated, have now ruled that only one-half of the subscription of each individual needs to be paid. For those who may have subscribed to the fund which they paid, will be refunded to them.—The Neptune Fire Company is now conducting a campaign to raise about $11,000 for the purchase of a new piece of motorized equipment for the fire department, and this new piece, which has already been ordered, will put the fire department on a par with the best in the State. YORK HAVEN PAPER COMPANY CONTEMPLATES BUILDING PLANT FOR CONCENTRATION OF WASTE

Sulphite Liquors Will Be Converted Into Materials Used in Leather Industries and in Manufacture of Core Binders, Adhesives and Plastic Products; Plant Would Have Earning Capacity of $1,800 Daily

York Haven, Pa., April 19.—Installation of a plant for the concentration of the sulphite waste liquors, thereby converting them into various useful products, is being considered by the York Haven Paper Company. Equipment for an experimental plant is now being sought by the officials of the paper company. A plant of the proposed character would have an earning capacity of approximately $1,800 daily, it is said. The output would amount to thirty-five tons of the powder daily, which will be sent to consumers in burlap bags, of seventy cents of the thick liquid, which would be shipped in tank cars. Some of the products that could be produced from the sulphite waste liquors are used in leather industries, as adjuncts in the tanning process. Somewhat similar products made from the concentrated sulphur waste liquors, are used in the manufacture of core binders, plastic products, adhesives and road binding material.

RECOLLECTIONS OF BEATTY

My most vivid picture of Beatty will be that of the great Admiral, who was sailing away, reminding me of another historic episode—that of Drake, insisting upon finishing his game of bowls before going forth to fight the Great Armada. Another war is ended. The greatest of all the world's great wars, ended and won. We look back, now, to the time when we were young, and we know well. They will not soon be forgotten. But the leaders—the leaders of the forces that won for us, where they were, are really unknown! And we will never know! We do not know. The great Nelson, faced with the realization of this same impending tragedy, expressed himself by applying some very old lines, which he found had been used at the end of a former war: "Our God and savior we adore In times of danger, we beseech The danger past, both are alike required: God is forgotten, and the sailor is left to work."—Lieutenant Hunter in the April World's Work.

Lewisberry, Pa., April 19.—Mrs. Clinton Reiff received a letter from Wagoner Edwin Spangler, of the Supply Company, of the 28th Infantry, written from St. Selve, France, in which he states that he was in the Argonne drive. His team was killed on the night of October 2, while he was sitting in the back of the wagon was killed by the same shell. He came out without a scratch. He also states that the Argonne drive, where he is now, is a great winter center, they see many ox-carts, with large barrels of wine. The French drink very little water, but you see them see them drunk. Wagoner Spangler sent Mrs. Reiff a pink silk handkerchief with "Somewhere in France—1919" worked in the allied colors, and trimmed with lace.
