"When a Girl Marries"

By ANN LISLE

A New, Romantic Serial Dealing With the Absorbing Problems of a Girl Wife

CHAPTER CLXXX

On the very day after he offered me that first, flying bird's eye view of our apartment-to-be, Jim took the next determined step in his march forward and upward. Early in the afternoon he called me on the phone and announced: "Anne, I've just had Tom on the wire and told him that we're quitting him as a landlord and taking him on as an interior decorator. He was a brick about it."

"I'm glad," I replied with a panicky feeling, "that Jim expected something of me, and that I must try to approach the mark, even if I couldn't quite toe it. Tom has been very decent about the apartment all along."

"He sure has!" agreed Jim, heartily, and I know I had pleased him. "Now, little lady, you hustle out and find a woman to help you pack and clean up the new place for you."

"Oh Jim I can do it myself! Why they get three or four dollars a day now!"

"Do as I tell you!" rasped Jim's voice. "Can't I make you understand that I can afford the things I suggest? What I can't afford is of an allowance every cent I spend. My time's valuable. Good-by."

Then he rang off abruptly. Meekly and unhelpfully I made ready to go out and hire the accomodator I didn't want nor need.

It was after three by the time I started on my way, and the employment exchanges were as bare of white faces as a winter tree of green leaves. One place, however, promised to send a reliable woman around in the morning, and with that I had to content myself.

Then, because I really had nothing in the world to do, I began roaming around the shops. Staring at the pretty finery, on display a whole season ahead of the calendar, made me forget the loneliness I was beginning to feel again, with Betty away and Pheobe estranged, and the old soreness against Virginia breaking out again because it was she who separated Neal and Pheobe in the first place. I felt indeed friendless.

I thought of Evvy and of Carotta, but I was not willing to seek them merely for the sake of companionship. I could only turn to either of them if actually driven to it. And as I wandered aimlessly up an aisle where fashionable frocks and blouses were displayed and down another where more bags crowded the counter, I wondered if I would ever be "driven" to Evvy or Carotta again.

Suddenly a show case where beautiful faces were exhibited caught my eye. I stopped charmed by the exquisite fairy-like webs, and at once an elert saleswoman began exploiting her wares. "Can I help you, madam?"

I shook my head.

"Let me show you some of our flets, French and Swiss, very beautiful and great bargains."

The clerk was old and gray, evidently a "gentlewoman." At first she interested me more than her wares. I began trying to figure what had brought her here to work side by side with saucy

THE HEART BREAKER

A REAL AMERICAN LOVE STORY

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER LXX

Honora gasped at Arthur's statement. "How do you know?" she demanded.

"I had to stop at the station for a moment after I left you. Chandler was at the ticket window. He was asking for two tickets to Hartford. Fool that I am, I never thought of Mildred in that connection. I was only glad he was going away—that was all."

"That's all you know about it?"

"Except the name of the hotel he planned to go to. He had been drinking and was very talkative. He told the ticket agent where he was going to stay overnight in Hartford. The house he named is a poor sort of a place."

"I am named for Mildred!"

Honora made the announcement abruptly, recognizing the person whom she and Mildred had seen on the train with Tom Chandler on that Sunday week ago, the person with whom he was driving last Saturday afternoon. This hotel was probably the kind of a place frequented by her feet.

Honora reflected with anguish.

"Only fifteen minutes had passed before Arthur Bruce returned to the gaudy parlor. To the waiting girl it seemed like as many hours. She sprang to her feet as he entered.

"Milly!" she tried to speak the name, but could only whisper it.

"She is not here, dear," Arthur said quickly. "No—don't look like that! Chandler is here. He registered under another name—with a woman he presented as his wife. I saw them together just now as they went into the dining-room. The clerk told me he calls her 'Kitty.' Why, Honora, what is it?"

For she had caught his hand in hers and was holding it fast, while she sobbed noiselessly and tried to smile at the same time.

"Thank God! Thank God!" she murmured. Then her smile faded suddenly. "But where is Milly? Or, Arthur! Where is she?"

"Not with Chandler at all events," he reminded her. "So there is a lot to hope for yet."

COLLEGE WEDDING AT MERCERSBURG

Uniformed Student Body Attends Marriage of Headmaster's Daughter

One of the memorable events of Mercersburg Academy was the marriage of Miss Mary E. Fisher, daughter of Headmaster and Mrs. William Mann Irvine, to Naval Ensign John Dorman West, Thursday evening, April 24, in Keil Hall.

The bride scene was most impressive. The entire student body, in uniform, stood along the side aisle from the great carved mantel to the large bay window at the south end of the building. The altar was arranged by the Rev. Dr. E. E. Fisher, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Vic. Francis W. Roanoke, Va. Edward Shields, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Homer Smith, of Reading, Conn., Thomas Halloway, of Beverly, N. J.; John B. French, of Maple Wood, N. J. The best man was Horace G. Benedict, of Roselle, N. J. All these men were aviator friends of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a charming costume of white duchesse satin with old lace. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, of Jersey City, the bridegroom's father. Irving Hart Rutledge, another cousin of the bride, carried the Episcopal prayer book used for the service.

Academy Glee Club sang the old English song, "It Is Thy Wedding Morning," and an orchestra played "The Wedding March." After the ceremony students sang several times. A wedding reception was largely attended by the new bride's friends from an eastern honeymoon. They will reside in Maplewood, N. J., not far from New York, where Mr. West is in business.

Give Engagement Dinner in Miss Cluster's Honor

Miss Clarelle Claster and her fiance, Clifford L. Solomon, of New York, were the honor guests at a dinner dance given last evening at the Penn-Harris by Miss Claster's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Claster. Shaded candles cast a soft glow over the long table, disclosing baskets of hydrangeas and iris, topped with slender reed vases of orchids. Suspended from these and blending with the masses of flowers were festoons of narrow ribbons.

Mrs. Claster wore a sea-wave sequin gown with trimmings of jet and tulle. Miss Claster's costume was of flame metallic cloth with panels of French blue sequins and draperies of brocaded chiffon.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Claster, Miss Clarelle Claster, Miss Beulah Claster, Miss Sylvia Claster, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Claster, Miss Carlissa Claster, Miss Jeanette Claster, Miss Adelle Claster, Joseph Claster, Jr., Samuel Claster, Harold Claster, all of this city and those guests from out of town: Mr. and Mrs. Solomon, Mr. and Mrs. N. Rosenthal, Mrs. O. Siegel, Miss Birdie Solomon, Miss Mildred Solomon, N. Rukseyer, Chas. L. Solomon, Clarence Solomon, Eugene Mendelson and Emanuel Mendelson, all of New York City; Miss Rose Mendelson and S. C. Mendelson, of Marlinton, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. R. Steinfeldt, of Lancaster; Miss Lillian Claster, Williamsport; A. Shapiro, of Lebanon, and Miss Reba Mallison, of Dallas, Texas.

Many University Men Enjoy Spanish Plays

A large and enthusiastic audience of University Club men, Spanish Club members and their friends enjoyed an unusual program at the University Club rooms last night. There were many expressions of surprise and pleasure at the ease and ability with which the embryo footlight favorites used the Spanish tongue in well-acted sketch comedies, recitations and songs.

The Rev. Ralph White, who spent several years in South America, spoke on the commercial situation between the U. S. and its southern neighbors. He sounds a note of warning regarding the questionable quality of some of the goods exported from here to South America and tells of the bad reputation it is giving this country.

Prominent business men, ministers and educators were in attendance. Mrs. Menges, principal of the school of Spanish, presided during the Spanish program, the preparation of which is in charge of Mrs. Karl Schaff. Refreshments closed the evening's pleasure.

Attend Dinner Dance at the Colonial Club

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dillinger entertained a dinner dance at evening at the Colonial Country Club in honor of their son, Edward Hudson Bucher. Two baskets, filled with masses of roses, graced the table and some of the guests who have recently returned from the service told interesting tales of their experiences in the Army. The following people were present: Miss Hazel Beatty, Miss Ruth Beatty, Miss Marion Towson, Miss Ruth Towson, Miss Lois Harrison, Miss Elsie MacIntyre, Miss Grace Canty, Miss Florence Burnett, Miss Frances Burnett, and Miss Esther B'shop.

Mrs. N. Boyer Tells How Cuticura Heals Itching on Hands

"I was very much annoyed with a breaking out and itching on my hands and arms. When I first noticed it, it was coming like rough pimples, and then turned to a rash that was red and sore. My hands were swollen, and when I put them in water, it was like a knife cutting me. At night, it irritated me till I would wash the house. Then I got a sample of Cuticura. With the second application I was relieved, and I used two cakes of Soap and three boxes of Ointment when I was healed." Signed Mrs. N. Boyer, South Bend, Pa., July 1, 1918.

You may rely on Cuticura to care for your skin, scalp, hair and hands. Nothing better to clear the skin of pimples and blotches, the scap of dandruff and the hands of chapping. Besides, the Soap has no superior for all toilet uses.

See to see that the fascinating fragrance of Cuticura Talcum on your skin. The Soap, Ointment and Talcum on each everywhere.

Seniors Win Demand For Early Commencement

Central High school seniors were granted the request to have the annual commencement exercises held in the morning of June 18, instead of having it as an evening event, the city school directors making the change at the regular meeting yesterday. It was postponed for practically every member of the graduating class.

It was decided by the board to cooperate in the campaign against flies by the State Department of Health. Grammar school pupils will be given an opportunity to draw posters picturing the need for such a campaign. Eight prizes will be given to the pupils whose posters are selected as the best.

Permission was given by the board to colored people to use the Wickerson building as a community center for them. The University club also was granted the use of the Technical High School to hold a banquet and meeting next month.

The Americanization schools have closed for the summer months. Professor J. H. Beckley, the supervisor of special activities, reported, the students voted unanimously to continue the classes next year.

Dickinson Fraternity Organizes New Chapter

Members of the former Alpha Lambda Mu fraternity of Dickinson College, will hold a banquet at the Penn-Harris Hotel to-night when their organization will be installed as a chapter of the Sigma Alpha Mu, a national order.

The Alpha Lambda Mu was organized as a local fraternity at Dickinson College soon after the demobilization of the Students' Army Training Corps. Due to the efforts of the members they were finally recognized by the national fraternity.

The new chapter will be known as the Sigma Chapter. The committee which will be in charge of the installation of the officers and other ceremonies incident to the affiliation with the national body will arrive from New York early this evening, and will include Michael E. Reiburn, Herbert Weinsberg, Louis Lichtenstein and Jacob Kaplan.

The members of the new chapter are Edward Goldman, who will act as toastmaster to-night; Mark T. Roanberg, Joseph Handler, Nathan Lehman, James Z. Bloom, Harry Waldman, Bertram T. Berg, Ernest Glickman and Samuel Kaufman.

RETURNS TO SHARON

Mrs. Walter Bruce Caldwell, who has been making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Stackpole, during her husband's service in the Naval Aviation Corps, left for Sharon to-day. Ensign Caldwell, who was recently discharged from the service, now holds a responsible position with the National Steel Hoop Company at Sharon.

TWO GET HEARING

Mr. and Mrs. George Mitchell will be given a hearing by the State Department of Health, on a disorderly practice charge. Both were arrested in the recent "dope" raid in the city. Mitchell is the proprietor of the Case, Benjamin Dougherty and Frank Robinson, now serving jail sentences, and four other persons awaiting trial on the charge of being implicated in the illegal narcotic trade in this city.

MUST PAY TAX

Judge S. J. McCarroll in an opinion to-day directed the John McGinn Distilling Company to pay State tax and interest for 1914, 1915 and 1916 totaling $2,798.48. The company alleged that it did not do any distilling in this State, and was not liable for taxes on a ten-mill rate for the year 1914. The judge directed the company to pay the tax and interest in favor of the State.
