States.

Pale and almost fainting from emotion, Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the German foreign secretary and head of the delegation, passed through what evidently was one of the bitterest moments of his life. He was barely able to sustain himself through the brief ceremony and reach the waiting automobile, which had brought him to the gathering.

bile, which had brought him to the gathering.

Meet in Trianon Hotel

The meeting took place in the room of the Trianon Hotel previously used for the sessions of the Supreme Military Council. Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, on entering, was accompanied by Herr Landsberg, Professor Schuecking and two secretaries, and waiting for him the Allied representatives were grouped around Jules Cambon, the former French ambassador at Berlin, who is chairman of the commission.

Other members of the Allied party included Henry White, of the United States; Lord Harding, Great Britain, and Ambassador Matsui, Japan.

tain, and Ambassaco pan.

M. Cambon immediately addressed Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, stating that he was chairman of the commission entrusted by the Allied powers to receive and examine the credentials of the German delegates as the first step in a conference which, it was hoped, would lead to bessee.

which, it was a peace.

"Here are ours," continued M. Cambon, extending as he spoke the formal credentials of the Allied commission as plenipotentiaries to the congress. Von Brockdorff-Rantzau surrendered the German credentials, with even less of a formal address, his emotion being too great to enable him to deliver an extended dis-Course.

Ceremony Brief

After these brief ceremonies the Germans turned and left the hall, walking a few steps to the cars in waiting. They were followed immediately by the Allied representatives. The whole ceremony was over by 3.20 o'clock. The Allied delegates then rode to the chateau to inspect the Hall of Mirrors, where the treaty will be signed, and eventually returned to the hotel for tea.

tually returned to the hotel for tea.

The setting for the preliminary meeting was dull and unimpressive. The skies were overcast and there were occasional hursts of rain. This caused abandonment of the original plan, which contemplated having the German delegates walk from the Hotel Des Reservoirs across the park to the Hotel Trianon. This would have followed the involuntary precedent set by Louis Thiers, the French delegate, in discussing peace with Bismarck in 1870. He, like the Germans, resided at the Hotel Des Reservoirs, and made his way afoot to the little hotel occupied by Bismarck, then the world's diplomatic center.

Automobiles, instead, were provided. M. Cambou was the first of the mission to arrive in his car, accompanied by William Martin, chief of protocol of the foreign office. Lord Harding, accompanied by Secretary Henry Notman; Ambassador Matsui, with his secretary, and Henry White, with Secretary. And Henry White, with Secretary Christian Herter, followed in quick succession and immediately entered the conference room to await the arrival of the Germans. The latter were delayed for a short time owing to the fact that insufficient instructions had been given to the French gendarmes controlling traffic along the route to the hotel. They halted the car to see the chauffeur's permit. Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau at the entrance to the hotel raised his hat to a group of photographers, correspondents and officers, who stood outside the building, then passed directly to the conference room. The arrangements for the ceremony provided for strict privacy and the exclusion of all not immediately con-ridangements for the ceremony pro-ided for strict privacy and the ex-clusion of all not immediately con-terned from the precincts of the lotel.
