

112TH INFANTRY ON REVIEW FOR THE LAST TIME

Long Friendships, Cemented by Blood of Battle, Soon to Be Severed

Camp Dix, N. J., May 3.—Regimental review yesterday morning and regimental parade in full dress in the afternoon kept the boys of the One Hundred and Twelfth hursling much of the time. On Tuesday night orders were issued for the barracks to prepare for the review to be held yesterday morning at 10 o'clock.

The boys fell in about 9.30 and marched to the parade ground forming opposite the blocks from Second and Fifth streets. The review was given at 10 o'clock. The first to be reviewed were the officers. Major F. R. Burke, staff officer, Major J. E. Shaw, staff officer, Captain Daniel Core, City adjutant, Captain Carl Frechauer, Philadelphia, and Captain William J. Robinson, Pittsburgh.

Reviewed by Pershing This was the first time the One Hundred and Twelfth marched as a complete organization since March, when the entire Twenty-eighth Division was reviewed by General Pershing at Colombey-les-Belles. At that time General Pershing first inspected every man in the division, lined up in platoon formation, after which the men paraded.

With the reviewing officers yesterday morning were General A. J. Logan, formerly commander of the Fifty-sixth Brigade; Major John M. Reed, former adjutant of the Second Brigade; Major J. K. James, company commander in the old Sixteenth National Guard, and Major M. E. Phelps, Erie, battalion commander with the One Hundred and Twelfth in France.

About 1 o'clock in the afternoon orders were given at regimental headquarters for the dress parade at 4. The boys had time to enjoy a big dinner and spent much of the afternoon reviewing the barracks until the noncoms sent calls to form platoons so that the companies could organize for the parade.

To Lose No Time Promptly at 4 o'clock this big event began. It will be the last time the men review, and the One Hundred and Twelfth as it is now organized, will appear together. Many were certain that the morning review would end the formation of the whole regiment for parade. It is officially announced at headquarters now that demobilization work is to start to-day. Demobilization efforts on the part of the One Hundred and Twelfth out as fast as possible.

The boys at the beginning to talk about the parting, and although they are all glad to be back in the States, there will be a strange feeling in store for these heroes of the War Division when they separate from comrades with whom many of them had been associated for at least a year.

"It's going to be a little tough on the boys," one remarked. "We've chummed together, fought together and played together, and we're all on pretty good terms. When the companies are disbanded some of the best of friends will part and it's going to mean a lot to them. We sometimes for weeks we saw no one but our own company men and then during the engagements so many of the fellows started to get together, encouraged each other on, kept up the spirits and morale of the whole outfit and helped make things at least cheery in conditions. This developed a strong spirit of comradeship and the parting between hundreds of boys from all parts of Pennsylvania and other States now in the regiment through replacements will be with deep feeling of brotherhood between them."

CHURCH CHOIR SOCIAL Dauphin, Pa., May 3.—An interesting social was held Thursday night by the Methodist Episcopal church choir at the home of Mrs. S. McNeely, when plans were presented by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Schaffer, for building up the choir. Several new members were received and instrumental music by Frank Williams, Miss Stella Robb and Mrs. Effie Zweig and a general good social time spent including refreshments.

Thursday night was set apart as the regular night for rehearsals at the church. The Ladies' Aid Society also held an interesting meeting this week to arrange for the banquet to be held on Saturday, May 10, in the Odd Fellows' hall. Various committees were appointed and other features looking forward to the growth of the society were discussed.

WELCOME FOR SOLDIERS Newport, Pa., May 3.—Newport is making plans for a mammoth celebration for the Perry county men who served with the United States forces during the war. In order to have as great a number of men as possible at this affair, it is not scheduled to take place before the middle of the summer at the earliest. A general invitation will be extended to all Perry countians to attend the event.

To-day is the last day at the Victoria for the remarkable screen story of one of the experiences of a girl which resulted in her firm conclusion that men in general are "human beasts" and marriage in particular is a farce. "Why I Would Not Marry" is the title of these screen confessions, which are declared to be the actual personal experiences of a real, modern American girl. She asserts that because of these experiences, which she says are not uncommon to any girl, or just peculiar to herself, she has determined never to marry.

A special warning to Harrisburg girls about men in general has been issued by this girl, whose experiences make up the basis for this story, but remaining to be seen whether or not they will heed her warning. Opinion is divided as to whether or not this is justified in making the marriage statement she does about marriage and men. What do you think?

VICTORY PANORAMA THOUSANDS TODAY

Ever-Changing Picture of America's Mighty Army Unfolded in Interest of Loan; Tanks, Planes, Bands, Trenches, Machine Guns and Huns in Uniform Depicted

By Associated Press. New York, May 3.—The most novel and spectacular parades ever held in Fifth avenue, a "panorama of victory," staged by the Army in the interest of the Victory Loan, thrilled thousands to-day and brought home to many a realization of America's participation in the great war.

Every Branch Represented For more than four hours, over five miles of march, there was unfolded an ever-changing, vivid picture of the marvels of the mighty army America had raised to help vanquish Germany. Every branch of the military service, from the front-line fighters to the organization that brought them after health, food, weapons, transportation and hundreds of other necessary lines of endeavor, were represented.

Tanks in Procession Scores of tanks of small, medium and large sizes, and squadrons of airplanes in battle formation and giant dirigibles followed the procession overhead, the thunderous drum of their motors through the same path of error and the martial music of eighty bands. The fire and smoke of the battlefield, the wall of sirens and shattering explosions of bombs, hand grenades and guns brought a sense of the grim reality of war. More than 300 cleverly-devised floats showed the Army's activities in a way never before understood by the layman.

Huns in Uniform Depicted Trenches, machine gun emplacements, dugouts, camouflaged artillery positions, signal stations and lookout posts, all manned by fully-equipped doughboys, were shown. On some of the floats, Germans in their field gray uniforms and scute-shaped helmets were depicted for the sake of making the mimic warfare seem more realistic.

From another float men hurled the Stokes trench mortar bombs, laying down a smoke barrage around German machine gun nests. Another float showed the entire process of filling gas shells from the moment of their receipt at the plant to their shipment to the dump for transportation overseas.

Other floats depicted the different military periods in American history. Cabinet officials, Army and Navy officers of high rank, Governors of several States, Federal, State and city officials and military attaches of foreign powers formed the official reviewing party.

Pennsylvania Must Do Her Share in Loan The same spirit and enthusiasm that characterized the other part of the coming Victory Loan drive. This loan is just as important as the four predecessors, even though the same path of error that characterized the workers when our sons were wrestling victory on the European fields of honor is not as apparent now as when danger confronted us. This is no time to falter. It is rather a time to put forth extra effort for the floating of a six-billion-dollar loan is not a simple task, even when engaged in such a titanic struggle as has so recently come to a conclusion.

As a loyal American, a true Pennsylvanian, and a fellow-citizen, I appeal to the citizens of this important Commonwealth to discharge the obligation now resting upon them with the same fidelity and diligence that characterized their efforts on four previous occasions.

INVALID TRAIN CARRIES HUSKY YANKS THROUGH

Soldiers Tarry in City on Way From New York to Camp Lewis, Washington

"Where are the invalids?" was the query raised by the sick yesterday when, for an hour, the people of this city had opportunity of visiting a hospital train carrying convalescent soldiers from the Greenport and Grand Central hospitals, New York, to Camp Lewis, Washington. The question was a natural one, for a hospital train of this kind, composed of men would be hard to find than those Pacific Coast lads, all of whom had suffered severe injuries. The train was open to the public in an effort to boost the Victory Loan.

"The boys repeatedly asked, 'How is Harrisburg responding in this heavy war?' and 'What is the quota?' The reply was, 'Harrisburg has never yet failed to go 'over the top.'"

Answer Many Questions During their brief stay the men answered many questions. One man approached an invalid dancing on the aisle in pajamas, to Victoria music.

"You don't look as though anything ever ailed you," she stated. He replied promptly, "No, I haven't." "Well, madam, nothing did. That is, not much. They only got me in two logs and one arm and I'd never claim now if I didn't have a good memory."

A Red Cross nurse, when questioned as to whether she knew a certain person in New York responded in the negative. She was then informed: "Well, I thought you would. He's a policeman."

Praise Auxiliaries The men could not say enough for the work done by the Red Cross and the Salvation Army. They also praised the reconstruction work at the hospitals. One lad wore a knitted cap of brown and gold. Asked the reason he explained that he never was cold, and he got it off because he knitted it himself under the direction of reconstruction aids at a base hospital.

Enthusiastic Over Reception The men were enthusiastic over the reception accorded them in this city. A laughing-eyed boy confessed: "At first I felt all out of place, just like a strange monkey in a zoo, but every one is so dandy and cordial that I'm having the time of my life."

Tells of Harrisburg Boys Just as the signal to leave was given a lad leaned from out a window and exclaimed: "Oh, I almost forgot. I want to tell you about two Harrisburg boys, members of the World War Veterans Club, Mrs. Jacob B. Grissinger, president, held a public tree planting in Susquehanna Park here yesterday. Burgess Clement, Prof. W. A. Geesey, Borough Superintendent of Schools, and the Borough Council assisted. Boy Scouts dug the holes.

Memorial Trees Planted For 16 Sunbury Soldiers Sunbury, Pa., May 3.—With fitting ceremonies sixteen maple trees honor sixteen Sunbury boys who gave their lives for the World War. The Civic Club, Mrs. Jacob B. Grissinger, president, held a public tree planting in Susquehanna Park here yesterday.

It was issued to him when a young man of 20 years, on October 28, 1865, at Petersburg, Va., at the expiration of a three-year enlistment.

Seventy-One Boy Scouts Are Awarded Medals Seventy-one Boy Scouts were awarded medals for the sale of more than 10 Liberty Bonds each, at a routing Scout rally held in Stevens Memorial Methodist church last night, addressed by Captain George F. Lumb of the city, and W. H. German, new Scout Commissioner.
