10 OBSERVE MOTHER'S DAY

Burgess McEntee Asks That Next Sunday Be Observed in Honor of Mother

The following proclamation was issued last evening by Burgess McEntee:

"I, Thomas T. McEntee, burgess of Steeleton, do declare Sunday, May 11, as Mother's Day. A white carnation is to be worn as a testimonial of respect for mothers. It is the duty of all loyal Americans to so honor mother. It was mother who saved civilization for the world; she furnished the soldiers who fought so nobly. It was the teaching of mother that made the American soldier respect the women and children in a foreign land. It was mother who taught the boy to be an honorable soldier and to fight for so just a cause. It was mother who shed the tears for that boy as he was leaving his dear old home, perhaps never to return, as many have not. It is mother who must bear the sorrows of the absent ones who will never return. We, as loyal Americans, cannot do a greater honor to the good mothers that placed such men with good morals and courage in our army, men who fought to a glorious victory for America. Let us, as sons of these proud mothers, wear a white carnation in their honor, on Sunday, the 11th day of May."

THINNESS SAVES SOLDIER

Oklahoma City.—If Oscar F. Sliger had been an inch thicker the Germans would have killed him at Chateau Thierry.

Instead he sat in an easy chair at the Red Cross canteen and told of lying flat on his face while machine gun bullets whizzed the ground all about him, leaving him with a collection of flesh wounds as a relic of his part of the scrap.

Sliger, who was on his way to Tupelo to visit his parents, says he enlisted in the Army late in 1918 before America took a hand in the war and went across with the signal corps in July, 1917. He did his first fighting in the Toul sector at Verdun and was near the Argonne forest when the armistice was signed.

None of the wounds received was sufficiently serious to send him to the hospital, Sliger says, but he believes that being spread out so thin on the ground saved his life.

STATE HAS HARD TASK TO GO OVER IN VICTORY LOAN

Governor Sproul Urges Pennsylvanians to Do Their Full Duty

That Pennsylvania must "put its best foot foremost" in the effort to put the State across the line a winner in the purchase of Victory Bonds was the declaration to-day of Governor William C. Sproul.

"It must not be said of Pennsylvania," declared the Governor, "that it was remiss in this, the last of the Liberty Loan campaigns. Our war record table to date has been as clean as it has been wonderful. We must take up our full quotas, everywhere. I urge upon every man and woman—every wage—and salary-earner in this State, that he or she does his full duty before the campaign ends."

This sentiment was seconded by many State officials. "Pennsylvania must retain its position as the foremost State of the Union," declared Lieut. Gov. Beldeman.

"I repeat what I have already said," declared Col. Edward Martin, State Health Commissioner. "There are no reasons why we should not buy bonds; there is every reason why we should."

"Just as this State is leading the nation in an effort to complete for itself a system of good roads, so must it lead the balance of the Union in completing its record for having supported the Federal Government in every crisis," said Lewis S. Sadler, State Highway Commissioner.

"It surprises me very much to learn that we are not buying bonds as we should," said State Senator T. Larry Byre. "They are not only one of the best investment opportunities ever offered the nation, but their purchase is a patriotic act which should not call for deliberate action on the part of any of us."

Banking Commissioner John S. Fisher, whose experience in financial affairs puts him in a position to command attention, urged concerted action on the part of the State at large.

"This is the last of the Liberty Loans," said Commissioner Fisher. "Pennsylvania has performed nobly in the preceding four campaigns, and many millions of dollars of the Government's Liberty securities are put away in our vaults and strong boxes. This fifth issue of bonds is a remarkable one in many ways. It presents an extraordinary investment opportunity. That alone should mean that Pennsylvania's allotment be taken up without loss of time. And when we couple with the investment opportunity the fact that buying bonds shows we are still carrying on then we are assured that Pennsylvania must not fail."

"There are few of us, if any, who cannot afford to buy Victory Bonds," said Cyrus E. Woods, Secretary of the Commonwealth. "I mean that there are few of us who cannot afford to save money. That is all we are being asked to do. We are asked to loan a few dollars to the Government for four years. With this money we will pay the balance of the cost of the war. Are we going to be any less patriotic than we were on the day the drive at Chateau Thierry began and the day the armistice was signed?"

"During the next week or 10 days," said Auditor General Charles A. Snyder, "Central Pennsylvania will be called upon to welcome home thousands of soldiers of the Iron Division. They are going to ask us what we were doing while they were on the other side. Are we going to tell them that we were with them till the war ended, and that now we have 'slacked up,' and are off the war? Surely not! Pennsylvania will continue to be the brightest star in the galaxy of States."
