The Rotarians, who were the guests of J. W. Roshon, listened to a very entertaining address on art of portraiture and inspected a number of especially made photographs of Rotarians, good and otherwise, as samples of how and how not to look when facing the camera. Following the address "Prof." Miller, of the Y. M. C. A. Athletic Department, introduced a class of eight Rotarians, consisting of Dr. Frank B. Kann, E. Fred. Rowe, James P. McCullough, Robert B. Reeves, Dr. J. B. Lawrence and Captain Geroge F. Lamb. The "Y" athletic department won a lot of converts as a result of the exhibition and the businessmen's class is going to be much larger next year. Following this there was staged a three-round boxing bout between "Prof." Miller and "Cap" Lumb, with Fred. Rowe as second for Miller, "Doo" Lawrence acting for Lumb and "Jim" McCullough as referee. It was a lively tilt from start to finish, and ended in a draw after McCullough had suffered a half-dozen Jabs in the neck and ear trying to break up the clenches. Senator Woodward started the ball rolling in a fifteen-minute speech urging the passage of the bill. Senator Vare then rose in his place and declared that he had not intended to say anything on the floor of the Senate, as it had been agreed to let the fight take place in a House committee. He felt called upon, however, to resent the remarks of Senator Woodward, and John C. Winston, of Philadelphia, head of the charter revisionists, who was present in the Senate chamber. Claiming that Philadelphia world, Senator Patton advised the senators to leave their hands off Philadelphia, declaring that it would be a crime to upset the financial system of a city with the best credit in the nation.

Senator Daix, Philadelphia, rose in his place to resent the remarks of Senator Vare concerning Senator Woodward. The vote was then taken, resulting in a 38-2 tally for the
