Our Examinations Are Thorough There is really only one way to fit eyeglasses so they will be beneficial and satisfactory, and that way is to make a thorough, scientific examination and ground lenses to meet the exact requirements of the case.

nonstop high gear run. The little car is traveling along at a splendid clip up hill and down hill, over all kinds of roads, it is keeping up a pace day and night that has never been maintained before, and running perfectly.

At the end of the fourth day of running it had made 2,851 miles, 495 miles ahead of Oklahoma's car. That is maintaining a fraction less than 30 miles an hour for the entire time it has run, not counting the time out for repairs and refilling with gasoline and oil.

Yesterday's running was made through showers and over muddy roads. Last night there was a heavy fog most of the time from midnight on. The speed of the car was cut down considerably for the 10 to 2 turn, only 101 miles were made.

Placed Blame on Ford Grilled by attaches of the sheriff's office and the jail authorities yesterday, Faulkner, the older one of the pair, placed practically the entire responsibility for the planning of the escape on Ford.

while on the 2 to 6 turn 114 miles were made. Enthusiasm is running high with the large number of automobile owners and dealers in this vicinity. Large crowds are always on hand at the control station at the Telegraph building to witness the coming in of the car, and there is always a number of people reading the log and the large dial that is in front of the Telegraph building. On the road through small towns, the crowds stop to watch the car as it passes.

Police Still Search For Enola Man Who Sawed Way Through Jail Bars

Seranton, Pa., May 8. — Private detectives, county officials and authorities are hot on the trail of a Lester Ford, Enola, who sawed his way out of the county jail to freedom, Saturday morning. Ford escaped in company with Roy Faulkner, of Easton, who was captured in a West Seranton hotel Saturday night.

No inkling as to the clues upon their search for Ford, the brains of which the authorities are working in the combination, has been given, but his seizure within the next few days is expected. The last seen of Ford by his partner was at 7 o'clock Saturday morning, when they parted near West Seranton, Ford walking down the D. & H. tracks.

Placed Blame on Ford Grilled by attaches of the sheriff's office and the jail authorities yesterday, Faulkner, the older one of the pair, placed practically the entire responsibility for the planning of the escape on Ford.

Despite his story, however, the authorities are believed to incline to the theory that if the implements were fashioned in the prison, the work was done by Faulkner, who is a boiler-maker by trade.

Faulkner was a "runner" at the jail, being one of the men who waits on the other prisoners in the tier, serving them meals from the kitchen and cleaning up the "run," where the occupants of the cells in the tier take their exercise. These men, while not "trustees" enjoy more liberties than the other prisoners.

The Easton man, it developed yesterday, is not without a prison record. In 1910, it is alleged, he broke jail at Belvidere, Pa., and was turned over to the police by his family. The fact that Ford, however, was to be removed from the jail Saturday is construed as positive that he had planned the getaway for Friday night.

Prof. Kuschwa to Play at Zion Organ Recital

The next in a series of Saturday organ recitals in Zion Lutheran Church, arranged by Mrs. Edwin J. Deceve, choir leader, will be given May 10 from 4 to 5 o'clock by Professor Alfred C. Kuschwa, organist of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church. Among the numbers Mr. Kuschwa will play "Orientale" by Cui; "Menuette in A," by Boccherini and a favorite sonata.

Miss Jennie Shartzer, contralto of the Second Reformed Church, will sing "The Lord Is My Light," by Altitzen and several other favorites.
