this country. That play is "Friendly Enemies."
Although there is much fun in the play, pathetic moments are frequent. The scene in which Karl Pfiefer learns that his only son is an American officer and is about to sail for France to fight against Germany, is sepecially gripping. Throughout the three acts, from the time the first curtain rises, the play is a splendidly effective plea for Americanism, increasing in intensity and strength, at the last curtain it leaves the audience with a higher and holier and more determined sense of the desperate need of winning the war and rescuing the world from the grasp of autocracy.

If you are fond of sensationalism, then don't miss seeing Homer Romaine perform on the trapeze and At the rings at the Majestic this Majestic week. "Getting Mary Married," the photoplay which is showing at the Colonial Would You Get Mary Married? Theater to-day and to-morrow, featuring Marion Davies, is considered one of press and crities are unanimous in their opinion that this is by far the hest picture Marion Davies has ever taken the leading role in. It is expected this attraction will appacity. The plot star and continues throughout the play, never dropping interest, even at the end, when understanding contains.

even at the end, when understanding comes.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, the Colonial management has booked another feature attraction. It is Pauline Frederick in "One Week of Life." This is the story of a poor woman, who has a chance to trade one week of her life with one week of the life of a rich woman. This predicament forms the base of a mighty clever laugh-producing play.

To have the man you love propose to you, to accept him and to be the happiest girl on the Regent find him kissing a woman you hate is the situations which confronts Dorothy Gish in one of the dramatic moments of "Boots," her newest Paramount picture, which will be shown for two days at the Regent Ty. The man finds his sweetheas apparently false to him, and in her. This time "Boots her her wom tearful resentment for two devents and the "Boots her some tearful resentments her her she her has been false to her. "So," says Dorothy Gish, "it makes hitle difference which, side of the fence the clover is on, the other side looks different ways."
