

SPACE PLANS TO BE DECIDED ON

Board of Public Grounds and Buildings Will Determine Upon Office Needs

Members of the State Board of Public Grounds and Buildings have directed immediate studies to be made regarding the necessities of space for the various departments to be taken care of in the new office building to be erected in Capitol park.

The new building, which will be merely an official structure without ornamentation, but of material similar to the Capitol, may contain more than 80,000 square feet and will be located in Capitol park on a line with the south wing, commencing at the line of the present Fourth street. It will be housed various buildings now scattered through office buildings in the city. Their needs are to be studied and the space will be assigned before the building is started, which will probably be some time this summer.

Capitol Closed—This being a legal holiday, the State Capitol was closed and everyone who could, was in Philadelphia to see the review of the Keystone Division.

Drawing Up Orders—The Public Service Commission will shortly pass the formal order apportioning costs and approving the plans for elimination of the grade crossings at Hummelstown and Swatara. There will be two subways built in that section.

Interest in Bids—Much interest is manifested in the contracts for State highway construction for which bids will be opened late this month. Some of the biggest contracting firms in the State are expected to bid.

Awards Later On—Bids for furnishing supplies to the State government are still being tabulated at the Department of Public Grounds and Buildings. The awards will be made late this month. The contracts are effective in June.

Comly Hall, West Chester; J. Hibbs Buckman, Langhorne; B. Pemberton Phillips, Wayne, and for Rittersville State Hospital: John J. Tullen, Philadelphia; William A. REPUBLICANS ARE RELATED OVER FOUR WARSHIPS

BALTIMORE VOTE Elect Mayor in City Which Is Normally Democratic by 30,000

Washington, May 15.—The election of William F. Broening, Republican, as mayor of Baltimore is easily the political sensation of the day among politicians of both parties, who are gathering here for the extra session of Congress. Democrats are visibly depressed and Republicans are correspondingly elated.

It was one of the most remarkable elections in the history of Baltimore. The Democratic candidate had the support of the Democratic state organization to such a degree that it acquired the significance of a state campaign. He also had tremendous financial backing, probably greater than any Baltimore candidate in recent years. The city is normally overwhelmingly Democratic—the registration books showing 75,000 Democrats and 45,000 Republicans, with approximately 25,000 independent voters. The returns show that the Republicans received the solid support of not only the independent vote but also the votes of several thousand Democrats carrying the city by about 30,000. Precincts which are normally heavily Democratic were carried by the Republican candidate. Broening is the third Republican to be elected mayor of Baltimore since the Civil War—a period covering over half a century.

While Democrats are really greatly distressed over the result which loses them control of the largest city south of the Mason and Dixon line and over 5,000 political jobs, they pretend "for publication" to see nothing nationally significant in the upheaval, preferring to attribute it wholly to "local issues."

Republicans, on the other hand, say the Baltimore result is only another straw which is showing the very heavy anti-Democratic wind that is blowing everywhere. Only a few weeks ago, the normally Democratic city of St. Louis elected a Republican mayor. Other by-elections have exhibited the same tendencies.
