NIGHT GAIN FOR STEEL PERSISTS

Grangers and Coalers Lead Rails in Stock Market Today

By Associated Press.

New York, May 15.—Wall Street—Disregarding the prospects of higher money to-day's stock market opened with a resumption of the rise in rails, steels, motors and various industrials. U. S. Steel was the prominent feature on an initial transaction of 7,000 shares at 104 1-4 to 104 1-2, an overnight gain of virtually a point, and its highest price of the year, while Gulf States Steel made a further advance of 6 points. Grangers and coalers led the rails at fractions to 1 1-2 points and Studebaker and leathers rose 1 to 2. Oils were firm, coppers alone showing an easier trend.

STATE'S FIRST CITY GIVES GLAD WELCOME

of the reorganized National Guard of Pennsylvania.

Colonel William R. Dunlap, of Pittsburgh, commanding the One Hundred and Ninth Infantry, the old First, swept proudly by Independence Hall with his men and as his right hand flashed to a salute two wound stripes showed on his sleeve.

Then came Lieutenant Colonel William E. Meehan, a Philadelphian, from whose chest dangled a Distinguished Service Cross.

General's Wife Sees Parade

Mrs. Muir, wife of the general in command of the division, after seeing the start of the parade in the lower end of the city, motored to the Independence Hall stand and sat with Governor Sproul and Mayor Smith while the soldiers marched by.

Nearly 200 motor cars carrying the wounded of the Iron Division were parked near the starting point. When the soldiers of their regiments tramped by the wounded men were unable to restrain themselves. With cheers they forgot their wounds, leaped and hobbled from the machines and made their way to the line of the marching men. They had not seen these comrades since they had been carried from the battlefields where they fell wounded by shell fire.

Rush For Doughnuts

Twenty thousand doughnuts of the kind that made the Salvation Army famous in France, were served to the men before they started on their parade. When the wagons with the tootsome cakes and lemonade came up military discipline, morale and everything else took temporary departure while the boys broke ranks and rushed for the doughnuts. As they ate their fill the soldiers reminisced about the days on the other side.

"I saw six of them girls baking doughnuts under shell fire and wearing tin hats, while they did it," mubled one doughboy.

The parade was two hours in passing a given point. At its conclusion the men marched to Shibe Park, where the Philadelphia American League baseball team plays ball. Here preparations for feeding 19,800 soldiers had kept the Red Cross workers on the jump. Twenty-six motor trucks of the motor transport corps carried food and supplies to the park.

Roast beef, hot and juicy, steaming coffee and potatoes and the other edibles were in large army food containers.

Red Cross Workers Help

In accordance with the schedule the soldiers were assigned to places in the stands. They marched in companies through the temporary food house and past tables burdened with food. The Red Cross workers spent the night in preparing 25,000 sandwiches. All the soldiers carried their eating utensils, with the exception of the casuals. These men had cardboard plates and cups. As they were given their dinners they marched to their seats in the grandstand to eat.

At 3 o'clock, after the last man had eaten, all marched to the railroad station where twenty-one trains were waiting to take them back to Camp Dix.

M'ADOO URGES PARENTS OF BOYS TO AID SCOUTS

Fathers and Mothers May Become Associate Members of Organization

Fathers and mothers of American boys and other adult Americans are urged to become associate members of the Boy Scouts of America during the nation-wide campaign for 1,000,000 associate members, to be waged during the week of June 8 and 14, in a proclamation issued by former Secretary of the Treasury W. G. McAdoo, chairman of the Citizens' National Committee. Mr. McAdoo says:

"The Congress of the United States, recognizing the value of proper training of American boyhood, granted a special charter for the organization of the Boy Scouts of America. This organization now embraces 375,000 splendid American boys; but this is a very small proportion of the 10,000,000 American boys between the ages of 12 and 21 who ought to be given the benefit of Boy Scout discipline, training and practice.

"The future of the nation depends, of course, upon its youth. The fathers and mothers of American boys will be gravely derelict in parental duty and in national obligation if they fail to give their hearty support, moral and financial, to this great American Boy Scout movement. Not only is every Boy Scout given useful knowledge and training which equips him better for the battle of life itself, but there are inculcated in him the duties, obligations, ideals and higher conceptions of American citizenship.

"Each year the Boy Scout movement is turning out thousands of better boys and creating the finest types of future American patriots. No cause should appeal more strongly to the mothers and fathers of America than the Boy Scout cause.

"The Boy Scouts raised several hundred million dollars in the Liberty Loan and War Savings Stamps campaign. They did splendid work for the Red Cross in its several national campaigns. They served the Government in many other effective ways during the great world war. It is an organization of gallant patriots and deserves the encouragement and support of the nation.

"The week beginning June 8 and ending June 14 has been set apart as Boy Scout Week for the purpose of enlarging and strengthening the Boy Scout organization. Associate membership in the Boy Scout organization will be offered to the mothers and fathers of American boys and to other adult American citizens. This, if successful, will provide a supporting adult organization to the Boy Scouts of America which will assure the enlarged usefulness and effectiveness of the Boy Scout movement. Surely there are 5,000,000 American men and women who are willing to help the boys of America to become the best of all American citizens. Surely there are millions of other American citizens who are willing to contribute a small sum to put the Boy Scout organization on a strong and permanent basis which will assure the continuous training of the youth of America in the finer ideals and conceptions of citizenship in the greatest democracy on earth.

"This worthy cause stands alongside the Red Cross and other humanitarian organizations which have had the generous support of the American people. In the name of America's best boyhood, I beg America's manhood and womanhood to help."

Auto Theft Risks May Be Abandoned

Philadelphia, May 15.—Automobile thefts have become so serious throughout the country that Charles W. Disbrow, president of the American Automobile Insurance Company, of St. Louis, has stated that if conditions continue to grow worse, theft insurance will have to be discontinued altogether.

M. C. Hart, vice-president and general manager of the Auto Abstract and Title Company of Chicago, puts forth the suggestion that title insurance for motorcars, similar to that given for titles to real estate, is the solution of the problem. The matter will be discussed by the National Automobile Underwriters at their conference this month.

Quart of Whisky Cost Him $45, Says Miner

Hazleton, Pa., May 15.—John Slepock, Swamptown miner, says that a quart of whisky cost him $45, and that the end is not yet.

He was in a trolley car brawl and when captured had a quart of whisky with him, which another man claimed. He paid the costs and $7 fine before a local alderman. When rearrested it cost him $11, plus a second set of costs. He says he was taken into custody again, taken before the magistrate who tried him the first time and was fined $25 for that self-same quart of whisky, of which he did not have even a taste.

GERMANY UNABLE TO SIGN PEACE PACT

tween Fiume and Spalato. These forces are said to have moved inland and to be fortifying strategic points.

Allies Answer Note

The reply of the Allied government, sent by M. Clemenceau, sets forth that the Allies take note of the declaration made by the German delegates that domestic peace and the advancement of mankind depend upon the adjustment of the labor question.

They are convinced that such adjustment will be rendered easier in the future than in the past, as men's minds are freed from the fear of war, and industry is relieved of the burden of armaments which German militarism had imposed upon it.

Berlin, May 15.—Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace mission at Versailles, handed to M. Clemenceau, president of the Peace Conference, three notes one of which deals with the economic aspects of the peace terms and the effect they will have on Germany. This note says Germany is no longer an agrarian state and cannot feed more than 40,000,000 people.

The economic terms of the peace treaty, with their restrictions of trade and other factors which are involved, mean, the note says, that "many millions of people in Germany will perish, all the more quickly as the nation's health is already broken by the blockade."

The note points out that Germany in two generations has passed from an agrarian to an industrial state. As an agrarian state, it could feed 40,000,000 persons, and as an industrial country it was able to provide food for 67,000,000, the note declares. Before the war, it is said, 15,000,000 Germans were dependent for their living upon foreign trade, shipping and foreign raw materials.

The note proceeds to indicate in detail how the peace conditions would produce economic paralysis, destroy German industry and make it impossible to provide work and food for millions of people, "who would be obliged to emigrate or perish."

NAVAL BALLOON GROPES IN FOG

morning. The telephone was indistinct, but the telegraph flash said the "blimp's" navigator had made an error in reckoning his bearings. A few minutes later word was received that the dirigible's course had been corrected and that she was proceeding toward the anchorage here.

Landing Crew on Duty

A landing crew from the Chicago was on duty at the airdrome at sunrise, ready to take charge of the balloon, while Lieut. Commander Coil, the "skipper" and his fellow aviators obtained rest in anticipation of a possible start across the Atlantic.

The dirigible reported her position as "probably over Trepassey" at 12.30 Greenwich (8.30 a. m. N. Y. time). The Chicago started a siren in operation to guide the balloonists. As the morning progressed the weather began to clear.

Makes Perfect Landing

With Lieutenant D. P. Campbell at the wheel, the big bag made a perfect landing within the narrow confines of the old cricket field used as an anchorage. It had been seeking St. Johns for several hours, its radio having been out of commission for a time, Lieutenant Commander Coil said, and the last few miles of the journey was made by following the railroad track to this city.

The "blimp's" troubles began shortly after midnight, the commander said, when the sky became overcast. Before that time the balloonists had operated under a full moon, flying at an altitude of 1,000 feet. The big craft lost its bearing when approaching Little Miquelon island, off the south coast of New Foundland, and about 170 miles from St. Johns. Lieutenant Commander Coil described the trip as the roughest he had ever made. He gave crdit for completion of the voyage largely to Lieutenant Campbell and Lieutenant J. V. Lawrence, both of whom, he said, were weary "and almost seasick" but stuck to their posts.

Stars "Cross Lots"

"We made a landfall at St. Pierre, but found ourselves on the west instead of the east shore of Placentia bay," said the commander. "From this point we attempted to follow the Chicago's radio directions but they did not work. For the moment we were lost. We started 'cross lots' and saw about all of New Foundland, and I must say this is the 'doggondest' island to find anything on I ever struck.

"Eventually we hit the railroad track and followed it to top sails, which we identified and continued on to St. Johns'. There was considerable fog but it did not trouble us."

Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood in command of the aviation base, greeted the C-5's commander who, with his brother fliers, was bundled into an automobile and hurried to the Chicago for a late breakfast. After making a report to Washington the aviators turned into berths prepared for them on the cruiser.

NC-4 Starts on Trip to Trepassey Bay, but Has Trouble and Turns Back

By Associated Press.

Halifax, N. S., May 15.—The American naval seaplane NC-4 left to-day for Trepassey, N. F., to join the NC-1 and NC-3 for the trans-Atlantic flight. The NC-4 left the tender Baltimore at 9.45 A. M. (8.45 New York time) and began a cruise about the harbor. The craft took the air at 10.03 A. M. (9.03 New York time) after circling over the city. The NC-4 returned here at 11.15 A. M. (10.15 New York time). The seaplane was forced to descend twenty-six miles east of this port. She took the air again for the return trip.

Trepassey, N. F., May 15.—Commander John H. Towers, chief of the American seaplane division, announced to-day that the NC-1 and NC-3 might start before nightfall for the Azores. The commander stated that if the NC-4 left Trepassey twelve hours later than her sister planes she would be able to make the flight to Lisbon in their company. The trans-Atlantic voyage could not be delayed much longer, he said, because the destroyers in the warship patrol were exhausting their fuel.

St. Johns, May 15.—Reports received through the American air station here led Hawker and Raynham, the British fliers, to hope that a start would be possible to-day in the long-delayed attempt to fly to England.

OLD STYLE WORSHIP USED AT REVIVAL

song that is familiar to virtually every one who has ever seen the inside of a church. Three women, dressed in plain black garb, one wearing a black hat, brightened by a white band carrying a Scriptural quotation, led the singing, while an evangelist in the severe clerical dress, sat at the back of the platform. Men in the audience who belonged to the faithful of the denomination, wore, for the most part, plain black. In some cases neckties were lacking, as in the Church of the Brethren. It was explained to a curious bystander that the church does not discuss the wearing of the necktie but leaves this to the judgment of the members. "We do, however, prohibit the wearing of jewelry or ornaments," explained a member.

Old Time Evangelism

Following the hymn of praise, a prayer service began. There was much of the atmosphere of the old-time evangelistic service with the fervent and powerful appeals to the Creator which marked those gatherings. The spirit of old-time Methodism seemed to linger over the people as they punctuated the petitions of the prayers with frequent "Amens" and "God Be Praised's." The exhortations for the most part were not appeals for mercy or clemency, but on the other hand were pregnant with thanks for the many blessings that had been showered on the congregation.

There was a song or two, and then a black-bonneted Salvation Army lassie, with her face lit with fervent relief, led the testimonial service. "I'd sooner be here than at a motion picture show," the testimonial of a speaker rang out. I'd sooner be here than in Heaven, and certainly I'd sooner be here than in hell." Every testimonial was filled with thanks for kindnesses and blessings. Nowhere was their a word of complaint heard.

A Touch of Pathos

There was a touch of pathos in the story of another man, who, according to his statement, had been fighting sin for many years. With rugged earnestness he recited his struggles with the Holy Ghost. "Many a night I'd wake up from my sleep, and the Holy Ghost would struggle with me and throw me on the floor," he naively confessed. And when he had finished, the audience sang spontaneously the gospel song:

"This is my story,
This is my song,
Praising my Savior
All the day long."

The invitation was again extended and a man with the silver of three-score years gleaming in his hair, told how he had been "a lost sinner, traveling on the way to hell," and how the Lord had found him and pulled him up. The Salvation Army girl, with sincerity and inspiration shining from her face, led the singing of gospel hymns, many of the hearers recalled joining in, when they swung their legs from high, rough seats in campmeeting days of forty and more years ago. The voice in the lead was a clear, sweet soprano, not possessing the qualities of a Melba, a Tetrazzini or a Galli-Curci, but in it there was fervor and an infinite tenderness and faith that was reflected in the ensemble singing.

Then there came additional testimonials. Rugged metaphors bristled in the experience of another hoary-headed man, who shouted, "I'm praying for Victory! It's coming down the road! The Holy Ghost is on us." "Amen!" came the deep-throated chorus from the band of worshipers.

Not Cranks

Dr. E. E. Shellhammer, who is in charge of the meeting, addressed a few remarks to the outsiders. "Many of you think this is a show and that we are crazy cranks," he said without a tinge of malice, but rather with kindly courtesy. "We are simply followers of the old-time Methodist religion. We do not have organs or pianos in our churches, neither do we wear jewelry. Our sole aim is to live a righteous life in conformity with our interpretation of the Word.

"We are not here to breed disloyalty to your church, but rather to make you better church members."

Narrating the work of the brethren in constructing the meeting place, he told how they purchased the lumber and had sawed it and hammered the nails in themselves, contributing their services without any charge. "If there are any of you who wish to purchase seats, write your name on the seat you occupy and the charge is fifty cents," he announced.

Down on His Luck

Dr. Shellhammer then told of his own experiences in company with his family. He was arrested
