

BETTER FEELING IN IRON MARKET

Further Railroad Buying is Expected By the Iron Age

New York, May 15.—There is no mistaking the better feeling in the market following the dissolution of the industrial board and the freeing of the price situation "from government muzzling," according to the Iron Age of to-day.

It further says in part: "As at the original announcement of the March 21 prices, this last development has brought the release of some business held up for several weeks.

"In view of the formal inquiry of the railroad administration for 200,000 tons of 40-lb. to 120-lb. rails, bids to be in by May 17, much interest is taken in the prices that will be named. There is little expectation of lower than $47 at 2.75c, or $22 a ton advance, which has been the stabilized price, and the fact that $50 for bessemer rails and $52 for open hearth has been named on a dramatic inquiry for 750 tons in the past week points to the possibility of at least one equally high quotation on government business.

"That railroad buying before the end of the year will be of a considerable scale is more confidently looked for, as largely increased appropriations are discussed.

"The steel manufacturers having to the railroad administration that no further reduction could be made on railroad steel unless wages were reduced, are not expected to go out and signalize the new situation by price cutting. While advances would be surprising, with operations still as slack as for several weeks, an eastern maker of wide plates has announced a price of 2.75c, or $2 a ton advance. The a is also a quotation of $2.50 a ton higher on light rails, for which considerable export inquiries have come up lately.

"On the other hand, some price cutting has gone on here and there. Line pipe has been irregular, though on oil country goods the market has been active, with prices generally maintained. A leading pipe mill has shipped but slightly less product this year than in the first four months of 1918.

"Some of the railroads are insisting on the revision of prices on contracts made last year, and where mills refuse deliveries are suspending and new orders placed elsewhere.

"An increased demand upon the mills for ship steel is foreshadowed by the President's cabled permission to the shipyards of the country to accept contracts for foreign account as far as this price is done without interfering with the building of the American merchant marine. British yards have taken some large orders lately for Norway.
