secret. Here, the reason Geraldine Ensnared Don't Keep it a Secret Reggie used to call on her five nights a week. One night he planned to get married only they didn't want to announce their engagement for several months. That night while Reggie was standing in the doorway Geraldine discovered a woman's veil in his coat pocket. Enraged she rushed to the davenport and late in the evening she told Reggie she took French leave. She received a letter sometime later stating he was in some distant city, and that he would not return until the night they had set for the announcement of their engagement. Reggie returned but he found the place entirely different from the place he left—first of all there was a cowpuncher—but that's where the real story of "The Veiled Adventure" begins. This picture will be shown at the Colonial Theater to-day and tomorrow.

The Victoria management is offering another stellar attraction to Harrisburg, the picture "The Marriage Price." This picture will be shown at the Regent theater to-day and tomorrow. "The Forfeit," a western drama filled with pathos and humor. The picture will positively only be shown to-day and tomorrow as Wednesday and Thursday George Walsh will be presented in his latest release "Help! Help! Police!" This picture is heralded as the funniest and best thing George Walsh ever did. In case this is true and it must be so—Harrisburgers surely have a treat in store.

The Victoria management has also booked Theda Bara in "Cleopatra" for a return engagement at this theater. Elsie Ferguson, one of the most famous of America's galaxy of stage stars, is appearing in "The Marriage Price" at the Regent theater to-day, to-morrow and Wednesday. "The Marriage Price" presents a novel treatment of the much-discussed problem of marrying for money. It is one of the best pictures the famous star has produced, and as it is at the Regent, it isn't necessary to add that it is a "first-run" picture and has never been shown in this city. Harrisburg's enthusiastic welcome home to her heroes of the Keystone Division, is graphically set forth in a special motion picture of the celebration, produced through the forethought and at the personal expense of Manager Magaro, of the Regent. A laughable Chester comedy completes the bill for the first half of the present week.

Maniac Father Slays Twins, Then Tries to Kill Wife, Too Lancaster, Pa., May 19.—Angellus Angelini killed his four-year-old twin sons and attempted to kill his wife yesterday afternoon. She fled from the house, ran to a neighbor's and before the police arrived, the boys' bodies had been horribly mutilated. Mrs. Angelini was in the kitchen of her home on the outskirts of the city when her husband took the boys into a bedroom and locked the door. He first clubbed them, next used a towel on their heads and wound up by hacking them to pieces with a pickax. He then carried the bodies to the yard and was busy cutting them to pieces and putting them in a milk can when the police arrived. He had a blanket around his body, but wore no clothing when taken into custody. He made no resistance saying the another man killed the children. Three months ago his wife had him committed to the county insane asylum, but he apparently recovered his reason, was released from the asylum on probation. In 1913 he was in an automobile collision and from that time his mind had been affected.

OLD GOVERNOR'S TROOP EXPECTED HOME THURSDAY In All One Hundred and Fifty Harrisburg Men Await Discharge

Harrisburg men of the Governor's Troop of this week, on Long's, chairman of the Home Folks' Victory Association, said to-day. Preliminary arrangements are now being made by officials of the organization to royally welcome the men on their arrival. Unofficial information, Mr. Long says, is to the effect that the men will be mustered out of the service on Wednesday afternoon, May 22, these circumstances, they may be expected to start for home on Thursday morning, to arrive in Harrisburg during the early afternoon.

Plans for the welcome home of these men provide for an affair quite similar to the one arranged for the men of the One Hundred and Fifty Troop, which was held on Wednesday. Efforts will be made to duplicate the previous celebration as much as possible. Officials will endeavor to secure the same musical organizations to assist in the short parade. A slight change in the route is expected. Mr. Long, together with other officials of the association, will go into conference with Mayor Daniel L. Keister to-day to consider more detailed plans.

A public reception in the Chestnut Street Auditorium and a dinner in the Penn-Harris afterward are being planned for the men on May 22. A score of the sons of Father Harris of the old Governor's Troop were in Harrisburg over the week-end for the first time in many months. These men were on forty-eight-hour passes. Each one was confident that they will be in the city as civilians by next week this time, feeling sure that the discharges will be presented to them on Wednesday or Thursday of this week. Telegrams sent from Camp Dix on Saturday afternoon brought a crowd of almost 200 persons to the station to greet the returning veterans. All of them are members of Batteries E and F of the One Hundred and Eighty Field Artillery, in which the old Governor's Troop is now included.

Included among the old Governor's Troop men who were in the city on passes over the week-end were: Sergeant Lester Haley, Sergeant Charles Yontz, Corporal Fred O. Lyter, Corporal Harry Patterson, Sergeant William Cunningham, Mechanic Earl Shuman, Sergeant Ship, Robert Seal, Robert Fohl, William Shipp, Lloyd Pike, Nevin Moyer, Oscar Sutch, Truman Harper, Henry Baker, Joseph Ogelsby, Horace Cassel, Cooper, Sellers, Culp and Wilson.

China Has Confidence in United States, Says Bishop Home From Orient

Bishop Wilson S. Lewis, a Methodist church bishop in China, with headquarters at Foo Chow, spoke in an interesting address at the morning services in the Grace Methodist Episcopal church. The white race has the money and the political standing and to them has been entrusted the responsibility of the world's salvation, Bishop Lewis said during his address. It is not because the race has a greater abundance of money, but because they have the other facilities to accomplish the desired results, he continued. The bishop dwelt upon the good feeling existing between the United States and China, saying that the Chinese have faith in America and are willing to follow the leadership of the United States. Speaking in the interest of the Methodist missionary movement, in the interest of which he has been in the United States speaking for a year, Bishop Lewis expressed himself as being well pleased with the conditions as he found them in this city and said that he had no doubt but that Harrisburg would quickly exceed its quota. Bishop Lewis is now the sole bishop in charge of the work in China. Bishop J. W. Bashford, the second bishop in charge of the work in that area having died in March. He will continue to work in the United States towards the Pacific coast until June 30 when he expects to sail again for the East.

Scion of Harrisburger Leaves Over $4,500,000

Major Clarence Fahnestock, soldier and hunter, who died in the service during the war with Germany, possessed about $2,500,000 of his own and held power of appointment over an additional $1,000,000, which amounted to a life interest. Just prior to dying of pneumonia at the battlefield in France, he had, therefore, a fortune of $4,500,000 at his disposal. Major Fahnestock was a son of the late Harris C. Fahnestock, a prominent New York City banker and a native of Harrisburg, whose estate was appraised two years ago at about $18,000,000. It was Harris Fahnestock who donated Fahnestock Hall to the Harrisburg Y. M. C. A. Major Fahnestock whose estate has just been appraised was a doctor by profession and had traveled extensively on hunting expeditions, left a will which was filed in Putnam county, where he had a country residence, several weeks ago. He left the country home, with its 6,000 acres of land in Putnam county township, to brother, Dr. Ernest Fahnestock. He bequeathed his jewelry to his sister, Mrs. Helen Campbell, and her children, and divided the residue of his estate equally among Dr. Fahnestock and William Fahnestock, brothers, Mrs. Campbell, and the children of Gibson Fahnestock. The assets given in the statement filed include hunting trophies, including a rug with a lion's head, valued at $200; leopard skins, monkey skins, and other hunting relics such as guns, etc. The summer home is estimated worth $150,000. TWO CHARTER MEMBERS Columbia, Pa., May 19.—The forty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the Artisan Order of Mutual Protection finds the assembly with 200 members and of this number only two, Amos R. Hogendouber and E. H. Staman, are surviving charter members.

"DRY" MEN WILL MAKE A BATTLE

Will Fight Against Effort to Kill the Liquor Enforcement Bills Tonight

"Dry" members of the House of Representatives talked fight this afternoon when they heard of the plan to kill the Vickersman and Fox prohibition enforcement bills on the ground that prohibition enforcement is a matter for the national government. John W. Vickersman, of Allegheny, leader of the "dry" forces, said this afternoon that he had received assurances from Senator Boies Penrose and Governor Sproul that they would help on the bills and was disposed to go on that assurance. He said that he would resist any attempt to recommit or kill the bills. These two bills, with the Ramsey alcoholic content bill, are on the third reading calendar of the House for to-night as special orders. The "wets" were busy to-day getting men here to help defeat the bills and the "drys" were just as busy. The fact that a national enforcement bill is said to be under preparation at Washington by the National Anti-Saloon League is being industriously used by the "wet" forces as a reason why the bills should be killed to-night and prohibition be turned over to the national authorities to enforce. The "dry" people said that they looked upon the bill as a means of preventing the turning of the bill.

Charged With Theft of Two Liberty Bonds Says He Stole Auto to Visit Grandmother

Charged with trying to steal two Liberty bonds valued at $150 from Mrs. Josephine Mozane, 717 Showers street, Curtis Zeigler, 17 years old, of Reading, is in the hands of the Harrisburg police. Zeigler, soliciting for Boyd's directory, visited the Mozane home, being unable to find the name in the directory or to understand Mrs. Mozane, and is said to have asked her to show him the name in writing. Mrs. Mozane started hunting for such papers and in doing so picked up the Liberty Bonds. Zeigler is alleged to have grabbed them. Patrolman Knell noticed the man running at top speed and arrested him on suspicion and started back in the direction from which Curtis came. He encountered Mrs. Mozane and after she had related her story, Curtis was searched and the bonds were found, the police say.
